A court case of interest took place at Chesley recently when a man by the name of Herrington was charged with having sex of beer in the Public School at Chesley. It seems Herrington had access to the school through his brother, who is a teacher in the school. Magistrate Walker heard the case and found the accused guilty, assessing him with a fine of $200 and costs.

If rumor is to be relied upon, drilling for coal is again to take place in this section. The latest is to the effect that a man from Toronto was around this district recently and secured options on a number of properties. Just who the man behind it is is not known, but the man who is also interested in Pennsylvania anthracite mines; that a diamond core drill is to be used in the endeavor to discover if anything worth while is really to be found hereabouts.—Shelburne Free Press and Economist.

Chas. Tate has good reason to be thankful that he is alive to tell the tale of his narrow escape last Thursday afternoon. Charlie and Clarence Bryan were hauling some old cars from the rear of Bryan's garage to the dump east of the town. They were using a Fordson tractor to haul the cars and Charlie was doing the driving. Below the East Broadway hill they stuck in some soft ground. When Charlie applied more juice the tractor reared up, just as a fractious horse will sometimes do with its rider and fell over backwards pinning the luckless driver underneath. Had the tractor fallen squarely on Tate he would have been crushed to death. As it was he was pinned firmly on his back on the ground and with the oil and gasoline from the upturned tractor running over his face and into his ears was in a nasty predicament. Bryan was unable to lift the tractor, but he did what he could to ease off the weight until help arrived. It was nearly ten minutes before Tate was released. Apart from a number of severe bruises he was not seriously injured. The steering wheel and the seat of the tractor were smashed by the force of the impact on the roadway.—Orangeville Banner.

Social Evening of Y. P. S.

The Young People's Society entertained parents and friends in Annesley Church on Monday evening of this week under the Social Department, led by Miss Bell and Miss Gladys Patterson. A bright and well contested debate was the feature of the program. The subject was "Resolved that the girl of fifty years ago was more admirable than the modern girl." The affirmative was supported by Misses Vina Wiley, Jean Carruthers and Mary Lee, while the negative was sponsored by Misses Freda Eagles, Evelyn Shouldice and Florence Armstrong. The judges, Mesdames McCullough and Beaton, and Mr. W. J. Bowes gave the verdict in favor of the affirmative. Other numbers were: A radio stunt; a dialogue led by Miss McLoughry; a flower parade; a paper contest; a trio by Misses Irene Noble, Maxine Lyons and Margaret Perkins; a solo by Miss Helen Smith, and a duet by Eleanor Noble and Greta Elliott. An Irish reading by Jean Hamming. Miss Ruth Armstrong played a piano solo, and two selections by A. A. Milne were recited by Judith St. John. After dainty refreshments were served, which afforded a delightful social period, the party broke up informally, all greatly pleased with the whole evening. This was the closing meeting of the society before the summer holidays.
