Practical renovation advice will be featured in the Interactive Home Zone, at the Halton Hills Health, Home and Happiness (#H5) Show May 2-3.

There will be presentations and demonstrations to help people select materials and understand their correct use for home improvements, according to Coordinator Randy Baryla of The Renovation Company. A member of the Halton Hills Chamber of Commerce, the firm specializes in remodeling or renovations for homes and condos.

“Demonstrations and guest speakers will focus on several areas of interest to homeowners, whether they are renovating a bathroom, basement or kitchen or looking at whole home mechanical operations,” he said.

“Topics include the selection and use of generators, choosing flooring materials for different areas of the home and a primer on shopping for air conditioners and heat recovery ventilation systems (HRVs).

This year’s show is based on the theme of “Small Town Living At Its Best.”

More than 100 local businesses will be promoting their products and services at the May 2-3 show, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and The Independent & Free Press (IFP). Admission is free.
