INTERESTING NEWFOUNDLAND LETTER

Rev. Dr. Moore Relates Experiences on Visit to the Island Colony

The following letter from Rev. T. Albert Moore, D. D., Toronto, who made an official visit to Newfoundland within the last few weeks, has so much of general interest that we take the liberty of publishing it:

Reid-Newfoundland R'y
Leaving St. John, Nfld.
July 1st, 1918

My Dear Brother:—

It was my intention to have written you when in St. John's, but these people keep a man so very busy that there was no opportunity. Now that I am enroute home I thought I would get some letters written. But this road-bed and rolling stock are almost the limit. I hope you can read the letter. If not keep it till I get to Acton and I'll try.

This visit to Newfoundland has been a most delightful one. Coming across from North Sydney to Porte Aux Basques was not pleasant, but since then everything has been thoroughly enjoyable. When I arrived at Lewisporte I found little or no arrangements had been made for any of my work. These preachers have been so often disappointed that they now wait until the man arrives before completing arrangements. They tell their people he has intimated he will come, and if he does they will ring the bell and put up the flag. It has worked out all right.

I found I would have to go about 20 miles from Lewisporte to Exploit that afternoon, so we hired a motor boat, and away we went over the bays, around the heads, through the "tickles," and down the channels, arriving at Exploits about 6.00 p. m. You should have heard the bells ring a welcome. Almost everybody is a Methodist, and there never was a general conference officer there before. I was royally entertained, and preached to an audience of nearly 150 people on a Thursday evening.

The next day I went away to Twillingate, the "Capital of the North," where the people gave me a great surprise. We have two churches a little larger than the old home church at Acton, and they filled them for the Sunday services. I never had more appreciative audiences, and they manifested it by a contribution of $426.00 for our work. The next day I went to Herring Rock, and then back to Lewisporte with similar meetings and very liberal offerings.

Then for conference. Travel is not always pleasant. I went about 200 miles on the Atlantic, of course among islands, and always near the shore, but always in an open motor boat, and it rained as it knows how to rain on this Atlantic seaboard. Then, the trains have a habit of running at such unreasonable hours as midnight, two a. m., and many other times. But we got there, and have yet to make our first complaint. There is so much genuine hospitality, and generous liberality, and cordial fraternity, that one forgets the little inconveniences.

At conference they were looking for me and kept me very busy. Arriving Thursday evening they took me to the missionary banquet, where I gave an address; the next day a Sunday School and Epworth League address, an army and navy address and three addresses at evening session when annual report of department was being considered. On Saturday I think there were two addresses, and on Sunday a sermon at 11.00 a. m., an address at Sunday School meeting; and an address at a memorial to soldiers, all in the conference church; and then a sermon at 6.30 p. m. in Wesley Church. Altogether I surely addressed 5,000 people yesterday. This morning I said "good-bye" to conference, caught the train at one o'clock and am now over 50 miles on the homeward journey. I hope to reach Toronto by Friday or Saturday.

There are many attractive places here, and while the people have their own characteristics they are pure gold in character, hospitality and fraternity. I like them very much.

Yours faithfully,
T. ALBERT MOORE.

News of Local Import.

Junior Red Cross Sends Comforts

The Junior Red Cross has just shipped the following for overseas: 141 Huckaback towels, 111 Turkish towels, 72 Handkerchiefs, 92 Ambulance caps, 42 personal property bags, 18 binders, 17 hot water bottle covers, 12 bed pan covers. 38 pairs of socks were sent directly to France.

Sermon to the Orangemen

The members of Acton L. O. L. and visiting brethren from Georgetown, Nassagaweya and other points, to the number of sixty-five, paraded to the Baptist Church on Sunday evening. Rev. R. E. Jones preached a heart-searching sermon from John 3: 3, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." At the outset Rev. Mr. Jones read an excerpt from the statement of principles of the order showing the high character and exemplary conduct required of the brethren. He then amplified the text and showed that since it was necessary that Nicodemus, a pharisee and a good man morally was informed that it was necessary to be born again, so the text applies with equal force to all of us. Christ requires this of us, and it is Him who gives us the new life. The service of praise was especially well suited to the special character of the service.

Epworth League Garden Party

The weather on Monday evening was not ideal for lawn socials. The temperature was anything but the customary sultry midsummer atmosphere, and a cold westerly wind did not enhance the comfort out of doors. Nevertheless there was a very creditable attendance at the social at Mrs. Alex. Brown's residence. The Epworth League was in charge and an excellent programme was provided. There were solos by Mrs. Harold S. Nicklin, Mr. Wm. Gowdy, Miss Lily Alderson, recitations by Miss Marjorie Hope, instrumental numbers by Miss Lottie Mason and selections by the Sunday School Orchestra and the Boy Scouts Bugle Band. Rev. Mr. Moyer, the new pastor, gave a happy introductory address. The refreshment booth was well patronized, and though ice cream was a trifle discounted the hot coffee was in strong demand. The young people are quite pleased with the result of the function.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JAMES PERRYMAN

The death occurred last Thursday in Toronto of William James Perryman, Sr., son of the late Thomas Perryman, Sr., of Acton. Mr. Perryman had been in poor health for some time but until three weeks ago was not confined to the house. He was born in Markham and came to Acton with his parents when a babe. His boyhood days were spent here and nearly all his life he was closely associated with the town. He spent his schooldays here, and when but a lad carried the mails to and from the G. T. R. station and the Post Office, his father having the mail contract for some time. Forty-eight years ago he married Elizabeth Watson, daughter of the late Robert Watson, of the fifth line. Mrs. Watson predeceased him twelve years ago. Some seventeen years ago the family removed to Toronto. The surviving members of the family are Mrs. George Nellen, Acton; Mrs. Thomas Hewson, Norval; Miss Edna, at home; Robert and Elvin, Toronto; and John and Ernest, who are soldiers at the front. His brother Thomas lives at Brougham and his sisters, Misses Agnes and Sarah, and Mrs. Robert Watson, reside in Acton. The deceased was a quiet industrious man and enjoyed general esteem. He was an adherent of Woodgreen Methodist Church, Toronto. The funeral was held here on Monday afternoon. Rev. I. M. Moyer officiated at Fairview Cemetery.

ANTHONY STEPHENSON

For many weary months this esteemed resident was an invalid and unable to leave the house. During his long period of shut-in experiences he was ministered to with loving care and constant attention by his devoted wife and daughters. For several days last week he suffered unusual weakness and he appeared to realize himself that the time of his departure was not far away. The end came rather suddenly on Friday afternoon. Through all his suffering and weakness he was most patient, his greatest concern being the fear that he was too great a charge on the members of the family who were waiting upon him. Anthony Stephenson was a native of Halton County, his birthplace being in Nassagaweya. He was a son of the late James Stephenson. In his young manhood he went to learn his trade as a blacksmith at the shop of his brother, William at Knatchbull. At that time there was a large blacksmithing and plow business there. In 1871 the Acton Plow Company was formed, with William Stephenson as manager, and the Knatchbull business was moved to Acton. Anthony, who was now a young journeyman blacksmith, and his brother John, came here with the business. When the Plow Company wound up business Anthony Stephenson and Robert Ramshaw, now of Hamilton, operated a general blacksmithing and plow business for a time. This partnership was dissolved and Mr. Stephenson secured the shop on Main Street which had been occupied for years by William Overton, brother of Mrs. Thomas Lithgo. Later he built a new shop on the site of the old California Hotel. Here he conducted a successful business until nine years ago when, owing to poor health, he retired from active business life. He was a skilful mechanic and a successful business man. The Stephensons were all expert workers in iron. In fact, it is understood their ancestry can be traced back to George Stephenson, the inventor of the locomotive engine. William was a pioneer in the west in the invention of the steam plow and other important farm machinery, and his son Russell, a lad of thirteen, gives promise of superior inventive genius. On New Year's Day, 1873, Anthony Stephenson and Annie Milne were joined in holy wedlock and for forty-five years they lived most happily together in their fine home at the corner of Willow and River Streets. Three daughters came to bless the home. Of these two survive, Mrs. Hector Johnson and Miss Bella. Little Hazzie passed away when a little tot approaching her fourth year. Anthony was a quiet man of sterling character. He was a member of the Methodist Church during all his long residence in Acton. He had no desire for public office, but in 1885 when Councillor Charles Sidney Smith died he was elected to the vacant seat in the Municipal Council. It was during this year that the 19 acres which comprise Fairview Cemetery were bought. His colleagues in the Council were W. H. Storey, Reeve, D. Henderson, J. B. Pearson and Wm. Iamond. Though appealed to to continue in office he refused to accept further honors. The funeral on Monday afternoon was very largely attended. The service was conducted by Rev. I. M. Moyer, who was assisted by Rev. J. C. Wilson, B. A., and Rev. E. F. Maunsell, M. A. Messrs. A. E. Nicklin, J. P., H. P. Moore, J. P., A. T. Brown, N. F. McLean, Frank Gamble, J. C. Hill and Principal Stewart, who have been associated with the deceased in church fellowship for many years, carried the body to its resting place in Fairview Cemetery.

Fish! Fish!!

A WONDERFUL SEA FOOD CAMPAIGN

Have you noticed the advertisements in the Toronto papers?

"Did you know that last week for instance more Mackerel were sold in Acton than I have sold in any six months of my business here.

Do you know that the Campaign is proving a phenomenal success?

Some of the comments of my customers are amusing. They seem to think that Haddock, Mackerel, Market Cod, etc. are strange and wonderful animals of another planet. Also that everything that comes from the sea is salty.

Hark back for a moment to the time pineapples and grapefruit were introduced. They were unfamiliar and hard to sell. Not so to-day, however. Millions of them are consumed in Ontario.

It is the same way with the delicious Fresh Sea Fish.

Why do I harp on this Sea Fish stuff you ask?

Simply because it is the only avenue there is to cut down the high cost of living and save beef and pork, which our Allies need at the front, and also for the increased consumption.

The lakes fisheries are developed to the limit of production. Their daily catch is practically sold before it is taken from the water, but if Ontario will consume 100,000,000 more Sea Fish than at present they can be provided.

All Fresh Sea Fish quoted now arrive in refrigerator cars, by express at Toronto, and my order is expressed at once to Acton. So it is always fresh.
