

Community survey split school name change— about $2,000 cost

"I don't think we should name schools after people but if we are going to then we should use full names," she said, noting it has been done by the Halton public board several times since then.

Examples include John William Boich P.S., Dr. Frank J. Hayden S.S., Garth Webb S.S. and Anne J. MacArthur P.S.

Consultation of the Halton Hills community by the school board resulted in about 80 responses that were almost equally split support for and against the name change; the board said most of those against the change were concerned about the cost of changing signage and letterhead.

Thirty-seven of 50 staff members at Gardiner P.S. were in support of the name change.

A school board report said it will cost about $1,200 to change the name on the exterior of the school and approximately $700, if required, to change a road sign.

The board said Gardiner P.S.'s School Council had offered to pay the costs associated with changed signage.

The school plans to keep the sports team nickname Gardiner Grizzlies.

The school can use its new name immediately, however it will not officially be changed to Ethel Gardiner P.S. until Sept. 1, 2015, because of education ministry requirements associated with a mid-year name change.

Gardiner Public School on Danby Dr. will be renamed Ethel Gardiner Public School.
