MR. FORGOT

Mr. Forgot had a queer little shop,
Where Clara and Bertie and Tom liked to stop,
Of lazy excuses he kept quite a store;
I'm sure he had eighty or ninety or more!

The children, they took them each day to the school,
And used them at once if they broke any rule,
Until teacher she said, "I know well you have bought
Those lazy excuses from Mr. Forgot!"

Perhaps you have met him—this wily old man,
So well such excuses—it still is his plan,
Though now Bert and Clara and Tim never stop,
But laugh as they run past his queer little shop.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the issue of the Free Press of Thursday, September 19, 1901

Millinery openings are being prepared for.

Mr. Alex. McGregor has purchased the dairy business of Mr. Jas. Harry and will shortly take possession.

Through an accident to the boiler last Wednesday morning, Brown's sawmill was closed down for several days during the week.

The town hall flag floated at half mast out of respect to the memory of ex-Reeve Pearson from the hour of his death until after the funeral.

Mr. Wm. Brown's new silo is about completed. It is circular and built of stone for sixteen feet and has fourteen feet of circular planking above the stone.

Owing to the very wet night the mission church of Knox Church, Acton, at Speyside, was not opened last Thursday evening. The opening will take place this evening, Rev. Mr. Macpherson officiating.

The monument to Gunner Moore is to be unveiled on Saturday September 28, at Fairview Cemetery. Captain Langton desires to meet all the present and past members of Company No. 6, Halton Regiment, at Agnew's Hotel on Friday evening to make arrangements for the taking part in the unveiling ceremonies.

A very bright and hearty thanksgiving service was held in St. Alban's Church on Thursday evening. The church was beautifully decorated with fruit, grain and flowers. The service was taken by Rev. T. G. Wallace, M. A., of Georgetown, while Rev. G. F. Davidson, of Guelph, was the preacher. Sunday the services were a continuation of the Harvest Home and Thanksgiving service of Thursday evening.

Mr. C. C. Henderson, who left on June 10 to spend three months in British Columbia and the North West, returned on Tuesday evening.

Notwithstanding the favorable symptoms at first, President McKinley's heart action weakened and he died on Saturday. A mighty nation mourns and the worlds bows the head in sympathetic grief.

DIED

PEARSON—In Acton, on Saturday, September 13, 1901, Justus H. Pearson, in his 64th year.

AUTUMN SOWN CROPS

Within the past year, experiments have been conducted at the College and throughout Ontario with winter wheat, winter rye, winter emmer, winter barley and hairy vetches.

About three hundred varieties of winter wheat and many selections and crosses have been grown under experiment at the Agricultural College within the past thirty-one years. Fourteen named varieties of winter wheat have been grown under test at the College for twenty-six years with average results for the whole period as follows: Yield of grain per acre, 43.3 bushels; yield of straw per acre, 2.7 tons; and weight per measured bushel, 60.6 pounds. The percentage decrease per acre in 1921 in comparison with the average for the whole period amounts to 37.4 in yield of grain, 37.0 in yield of straw, and 2.3 in weight of grain per measured bushel. It will therefore be seen that the winter wheat results at the College are considerably below the average this season.

Among the particularly prominent winter wheats in Ontario at the present time are the Dawson's Golden Chaff, the O. A. C. No. 104, the No. 6 and the Imperial Amber. The Dawson's Golden Chaff produces a very stiff straw of medium length, beardless heads with red chaff, and white grain. The O. A. C. No. 104 was originated at the College by crossing the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Bulgarian. It is a white wheat with a white chaff similar to the Bulgarian and has a beardless head similar to the Dawson's Golden Chaff. It is more vigorous in growth and has killed out less in the winter than either of its parents. The No. 6 resembles the Dawson's Golden Chaff but has a square head, the straw has a purplish tinge, and the crop is apparently less subject to smut. The Imperial Amber is a bearded wheat with a red chaff and red grain.

Experiments at the College have shown that the best results have been obtained from sowing large, plump, sound, well-matured winter wheat seed of strong vitality.

Five varieties of winter wheat have been tested experimentally by farmers throughout Ontario in each of the past five years. The average results in yield of bushels per acre for the whole period are as follows: O. A. C. No. 104, 37; Improved Dawson's Golden Chaff, 26; Improved Imperial Amber, 25.4; Kharkov, 22.9; Yaroslaf, 21. The O. A. C. No. 104 surpassed the Dawson's Golden Chaff and the Imperial Amber varieties in yield per acre both at the College and throughout Ontario.

Of the winter rye the Mammoth White, Petkus, and Rosen have given the highest returns.

Winter barley is not quite as hardy as winter wheat but, when it survives the winter, it gives a high yield.

Distribution of material for experiments in Autumn of 1921—As long as the supply lasts, material will be distributed free of charge in the order in which the applications are received from Ontario farmers wishing to experiment and to report the results of any one of the following tests: 1. Three varieties of winter wheat. 2. One variety of winter rye and one of winter wheat. 3. Spring applications of five fertilizers with winter wheat. 4. Autumn and spring applications of nitrate of soda and common salt with winter wheat. 5. Winter emmer and winter barley. 6. Hairy vetches and winter rye as fodder crops. 7. Mixtures of winter rye and hairy vetches for feed production. The size of each plot is to be one rod wide by two rods long. Fertilizers will be sent by express for number 4 this autumn and for number 3 next spring. All seed will be sent by mail except that for number 4, which will accompany the fertilizers.—C. A. Zavitz, Agricultural College, Guelph, Ontario.

THE COMFORT OF A REAL FRIEND

Oh, the comfort—the inexpressible comfort—of feeling safe with a friend; having neither to weigh thoughts nor choose words, but pouring them all out together knowing that a true friend will take and sift, keep that which is good and, with a breath of comfort, blow the rest away.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 18

ABSTINENCE FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS—1 Cor. 10: 23-33; 3: 16, 17.

Golden Text.—"Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10: 31).

Lesson Comments

10:23.—Paul's letter to the church at Corinth was written in the year 57 A. D. By reading the earlier part of the chapter it will be seen what Paul was writing about. It was not contrary to law to eat stuff dedicated to idols, but because of the fact that many Jewish Christians were prejudiced it would not be expedient, profitable, wise or considerate to do so.

Verse 24.—Instead of having itemized rules and regulations of conduct and fellowship, each should consider the welfare and feelings of others.

Verse 25.—Shambles was the name of the market-place. Some Christians were afraid to buy public meat, lest it might have been offered in sacrifice to idols. Paul thought it better to be in ignorance of the whole matter, inasmuch as there was no moral or spiritual harm in eating or abstaining.

Verse 26.—To knowingly give to idols the glory due to the true God was a most grievous sin. The sin was not in the meat, but in the regard for idols.

Verse 27.—The food at the table of unbelievers involved no question of idolatry.

Verse 28.—To partake of meat that had been offered as sacrifice to idols might be construed by some as countenancing idolatry. The point that will cause others to stumble, morally or spiritually.

Verse 29.—Paul here considers not his own, but his neighbor's, conscience. "To him you would be doing harm incalculable if you followed him to suppose that there was no sin in worshiping idols."

Verses 30, 31.—The final point in the settlement of the question of the use of intoxicants is here. "Such a question should be approached and decided on one ground alone; namely, whether by using them or abstaining from them we shall best promote the glory of God."

Verse 32.—Keep the cause of Jesus Christ in mind and so live that no slander will come upon it because of your conduct.

3: 16, 17.—In this third chapter Paul is describing the kingdom of God as a great spiritual building into which individual Christians are wrought as material. The whole church as God sees it is the "temple of God" here mentioned. That which destroys it is unchristlike conduct on the part of its members.

Illustrated Truth

The terrible possibilities wrapped up in the use of unlawful things are all the more dangerous because they are hidden (1 Cor. 3: 17).

Illustration. — People who would shrink from criminal acts do not hesitate to make free with the things that have in them criminal possibilities. Some one says that while the lion and the tiger are ferocious-looking to the naked eye, they do not compare in frightfulness to creatures in the insect world that are allowed to plant themselves where they can harm us. Seen under the microscope, the gnat and the fly, with their cutting instruments, and the spider, with its deadly fangs and claws, become a terrible menace to mankind.

Topics for Research and Discussion

I. A Principle of Fellowship (vs. 23-31). 1.—When was Paul's first letter to the church at Corinth written? 2.—What subject has Paul introduced in the early part of this chapter? 3.—If it was not contrary to law to eat meat dedicated to idols, why did Paul consider it unwise? 4.—What does the word "shambles" mean? 5.—Why was meat dedicated to idols so obnoxious to Jews? 6.—What is the real point in this whole argument of Paul's? 7.—Why should a man seek his neighbor's good in preference to his own? 8.—What does the apostle Paul mean by "for conscience sake"?

II. A Principle of Conduct (vs. 32). 9.—In good behavior a matter of principle, or simply a matter of etiquette? 10.—If good behavior is a matter of principle, how may we know what the best principles are?

III. The Reasons for Both (3: 16, 17). 11.—What is Paul describing in this third chapter? 12.—How does Christian character correspond to a building? 13.—What is the purpose of the spiritual structure which Christ came to help men to build? 14.—If the church of Jesus Christ is so precious a building, what will be the ultimate fate of those who seek its destruction?

RAIDING THE ICEBERGS

The danger from icebergs in the North Atlantic is becoming so great that a destroyer has been sent out by Britain to see if it is possible to disperse some of these floating masses by means of torpedoes.

Although this is a new development Iceberg-hunting is a regular part of the work of American Navy vessels. Each year vigorous raids on the Icefields are carried out.

The International Ice Patrol, as the fleet is called, came into existence as the result of the sinking of the Titanic by striking an iceberg in April, 1912.

Since then it has done much good work. On more than one occasion ships have been saved from danger by the patrol's wireless warnings.

The cost of the work is borne by all maritime nations using the Atlantic, in proportion to the number of ships sailing under their respective flags.

Corns cannot exist when Holloway's Corn Remover is applied to them, because it goes to the root and kills the growth.

THE HONOR OF BUSINESS

There is an honor in business that is the fine gold of it; that reckons with every man justly; that loves life; that regards kindness and thoroughness more highly than goods or prices or profit. It becomes a man more than his furnishings or his house. It seeks him in the heart of everyone. His friendships are serene and secure. His strength is like a young tree by its river.—H. H. Longfellow.

SOLDIERS SENT INTO THE FIELDS

Cuba thinks that a soldier is for something else besides more fighting. So she is sending a thousand soldiers into the fields to study agriculture for a term of six months. This idea came from an American group of workers for the Young Men's Christian Association, and they are starting many other original ideas in education in Cuba much like this one. Education is to be made more general, more practical, and to give Cuba a greater variety of products for export.

A SUCCESSFUL WOMAN FARMER IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

(1.) Lillooet country, showing Mrs. Foster's ranch in foreground.

(2.) Mrs. Forster, of Lillooet, B. C.

At Illoost, about thirty miles west of Ashcroft and north of Lytton, right in the middle of the dry belt in British Columbia, where irrigation is the magic wand that turns the desert into a fertile garden, there is a little 32-acre farm owned and solely managed by a woman.

It catches the eye by its appearance of orderly prosperity. Its shady orchard, well-hoed gardens, the sleekness of the milk-cows grazing in the higher paddocks and the vivid green of its alfalfa fields stands out in strong relief against the vast brown barren slopes of the surrounding country, unbaked, covered with sage-bush and little else.

Weary as she is with a life-time's work of fifty-three years behind her, Mrs. Forster still carries on—as faithfully and as thoroughly as she did twenty years ago. With the help of an Indian who comes in to do the ploughing and give a hand with the haying and harvesting, she and a niece, who sometimes stays with her, manage the whole work of the farm alone.

Mrs. Forster gets more out of her acreage than any other farmer in the Province. Every inch of ground is turned to account on a methodical and scientific system; the vegetable and animal growth are made to react to each other's mutual benefit and both to the good of their owner and the country.

Her five milk-cows pasture on the farm and she sells all her dairy produce to an hotel; besides these there are a couple of work-horses, pigs and chickens. Every scrap of feed used for the stock is produced on the ranch itself.

Mrs. Foster has worked down to a fine point just exactly how much space it is necessary to devote to alfalfa, grain and hay in order to do this, and nothing is bought in the way of feed except perhaps chaff-shell for the chickens. The crop and the animals balance each other and no overweight is allowed on either side.

This farmer is also a first-class gardener, both in theory and in practice, and has sweet corn earlier and over a longer period than anyone else in British Columbia. She devotes about a quarter of an acre of well adapted land to her early spring garden and another piece with a colder aspect to her late summer planting; as by a carefully planned system of sowing in succession she has a plentiful supply of fresh vegetables to sell to the hotels and also to ship to other points.

Lillooet is never troubled by late frosts as her tomatoes are early and these she sells by the bucketful and last year shipped 100 boxes to the coast. The orchard contains every sort of tree-fruit, including Italian prunes, peaches and apricots, of which latter Mrs. Foster has two big trees (now in bearing) grown from seed sown since she came to the place nine years ago. Last year she shipped away 759 boxes of fall and winter apples.

There are some healthy looking hedges of grape vines which bear profusedly and plenty of raspberries and other small fruits, but her speciality is melons for which she is famous. There are rows and rows of these, canteloupes, musk and water melons, for all of which she finds a ready market. Her four bee-hives are partly the reason why her fruit is so successful.

And so we take off our hats to this woman who is "carrying on" so wisely and so well to our country's benefit.—H. G.-W.

HEALTH FROM SAND

One of the best ways of recuperating jagged nerves is to walk barefooted over a long stretch of sand. The nerves of the feet are slightly irritated by the sand grating, and the blood, being thus stimulated, circulates more freely.

Doctors say that, apart from the physical effects, the mental powers are greatly invigorated by the exercise. Their explanation is that the long stretches of sand, together with the absence of noise and other disturbances, have a soothing effect on the mind, which quickly responds to the treatment.

No child should be allowed to suffer an hour from worms when prompt relief can be got in a simple but strong remedy—Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

IF NOT READY—GET READY

Making excuses is a mighty poor business. When a man agrees to do a certain thing, he is expected to do it—that is all there is to it. It may salve his own feelings somewhat to go into lengthy explanations of why he could not or did not do the task assigned and accepted, but it does not make amends for the failure to "deliver the goods." People are not so much interested, anyway, in the "why's" and "how's" of our actions as they are in the "what's." If we are not ready to do what is expected of us, there is but one thing to do—get ready. If we cannot get ready, we are at fault in accepting the assignment.—New Orleans Advocate.

SWINDLED

A small boy was taken to see the new baby, whom he eyed very critically.

"Why, he's got no hair, father," was his first remark.

The fact was admitted.

"And he's got no teeth, father," was the next comment.

The circumstances could not be denied.

"I tell you what, father," was the final observation, "you've been swindled; he's an old 'uns!"

MIKE'S SHARE

The time had come to dole out the day's rations and in an Irish regiment the quartermaster and his assistant had been portioning them out in preparation for distribution.

The assistant turned to the quartermaster and with a twinkle in his eye, said: "Av ye plaze, sorr, there's a loaf short. Who'll I give it to?"

"Keep it yourself, Mike," replied the quartermaster.
