WHICH WOMAN ARE YOU?

Each day she spoils her happiness,
By picking out the hardest thing
For her to get—a snowy dress
Upon her child who loves to fling
Dust by the handfuls in the air
And grime himself; a special shade
Of goods that she has seen somewhere;
A certain outre width of braid—
Something exceeding hard to get,
But that she has to have or fret.

So though the sun shine warm for her,
And though the day be bright for her,
The world holds aye a storm for her,
And nothing e'er is right for her.

Another says: "I must decide
Which are life's big things, which the small,
If sought of cogent harm beside
My loved one, which are best of all
That I possess; if I can keep
My wonted health and know no lack
Of needful clothing, food and sleep—
No trifles that bestrew my track
Can trouble me! and I shall praise
The Giver of my glorious days."

So, though the small things oft go wrong,
The larger joys of life are hers;
Her lips are aye attuned to song,
And she is glad, whate'er occurs.

—Strickland Gillilan.

A vacancy occurred last week and on Thursday Miss McPhail was telegraphed to come at once. She left on Saturday morning. Miss McPhail's new position is in the residential part of New York. Her salary will be $600 with an annual increase.

MARRIED

WILLIAMSON-PRICE—At the home of the bride's parents, Esquesing, on Wednesday, December 18, 1901, by Rev. J. K. Godden, M. A., Mr. John Williamson, son of David Williamson, Nassagaweya, to Teresa, daughter of James Price.

A WEDDING STOPPED AT THE ALTAR

There was a strange scene at Cincinnati one day last week. A respectable and intelligent young lady was engaged to be married and made the discovery that her affianced was in the habit of drinking, and told him what she had learned. He promised never to drink again, and she forgave him. The wedding day was subsequently set, and all went well until the morning appointed for the performance of the ceremony. During the interval he made his usual visits, and though he drank at times, his betrothed never learned of his faithlessness until it was nearly too late to punish him for it. They were standing side by side and a moment more would have found them man and wife, when he turned toward her and his tell-tale breath spoke of whiskey. When the minister propounded the usual question to her, the response came faintly "No." In surprise the question was again asked, and this time the response was clear and decisive, "No." She then turned to her lover, accused him of drinking, reminding him of his promise to her, and said that a man who would break a promise so solemnly made could not be relied upon, and she feared to trust her future to such a man. Expostulation and entreaties were all in vain, and that little "Yes" still remained unsaid.—Cincinnati Times.

Muscular Rheumatism Subdued.—When one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism he cannot do better than to have the region rubbed with Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil. Let the rubbing be brisk and continue until ease is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of it than can be fully estimated.

THE COURTESY LINE

A long line of persons was standing at the return desk of the public library waiting to have books received. Rhoda came in late, glanced at the waiting line, frowned, considered, then walked up near the return window opposite the head of the line, instead of taking her place in line behind the rest. She watched the attendant eagerly.

Suddenly there was a break in the crowd pressing forward. The girl who should have come next was rumbling in her hand bag for her library card, and was not looking about her. Quick as a flash, Rhoda darted into the opening, placed her book—open at the stamp leaf, with the card, on the ledge of the window where the attendant was waiting. The latter hesitated, frowned, then caught up the book, cancelled the charge on both book and card, and returned the latter, saying: "You are out of your turn. Keep in line." But Rhoda seized the card and darted away, looking as though she were saying to herself:

"There's always a way, if you know how!"

Of course there is a way,—a way that tramples upon the rights of others, that ignores the weary waiters whom you push aside, but be sure that in the end the usurper pays. With every such act she loses; she becomes a little more selfish; a little more dull to the pleas of the rights of others; a little more coarse in manner; a little more obtuse towards the rules of courtesy.—Elizabeth Ferguson Sent.

Stranged with Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. Prompt relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FOR SUNDAY, DECEMBER 18

PAUL'S LAST WORDS—2 Tim. 4: 6-18.

Golden Text.—"I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."—2 Tim. 4: 7.

Lesson Comments

Verse 6.—The date of the writing of First and Second Timothy is fixed at 66 and 67 A. D., when Paul was looking upon his life-work as finished. Tarsus, where Paul was born, and Lystra, the birthplace of Timothy, were not far apart, and Timothy may have known or known of, Paul almost or entirely from the latter's conversion. Paul has laid down his life for Christ in service; he is now ready to lay it down at the end in any way that may be required.

Verse 7.—To give vividness, Paul compares his life to a contest and to a race in the Olympic games, with which Timothy was familiar. "He stands almost alone under the shadow of all impending death," but is victorious, nevertheless.

Verse 8.—Continuing the figure of the games, Paul triumphantly points to the crown which his Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ will give him for service well rendered. The expression "his appearing," refers to the second coming.

Verse 9.—Paul was lonely. His divine support was unfailing, but his human support was falling away.

Verse 10.—Demas had been a companion and fellow-worker of Paul. He is mentioned in Col. 4: 4-14 and Philemon 24, and was with Paul in Rome when the Epistles were written. He seems not only to have forsaken Paul, but also his faith. Crescens and Titus had departed upon missionary work. The kingdom principles had to be carried on. Later the churches at Vienne and Mayence both claimed Crescens as their founder.

Verse 11.—Luke, the "beloved physician," only was with the only apostle. Luke had been a steadfast and helpful friend through many of Paul's trials, and now he is staying with him to the end. At one time Paul dropped Mark, but that strong disciple later vindicated himself and we here find him reinstated in the apostle's affections.

Verse 12—Tychicus had been with Paul on this third missionary journey, and at other times, and in Col. 4: 7 the apostle calls him "the beloved brother and faithful minister and fellow-servant in the Lord."

Verse 13.—This verse has been considered one of the least important in the whole Bible, but we think not. It emphasizes the fact that as the Christ was both human and divine, so his gospel is both human and divine. The cloak of the time was long and thick and warm, and Paul may have worn it himself.

Verse 14.—This Alexander may have been the very man who caused Paul's arrest and present imprisonment.

Verse 15.—Alexander had probably stirred up opposition to Paul from Ephesus to Troas, "scheming to get him into trouble."

Verse 16.—In Paul's first trial in Rome he had no advocate, having to present his own case, but he blames nobody.

Verse 17.—He glories in having had opportunity to preach the gospel in spite of sufferings and obstacles.

Illustrated Truth

In the presence of the reward into which he was about to enter, present glories and trials alike seemed trifling to Paul (2 Tim. 4: 8).

Illustration.—A young nobleman who was loved for his beautiful Christian life lay very low. It was evident that his time was short. One day after he had read Paul's parting message to Timothy, he called his younger brother to him. "Douglas," he said, "you will soon be a duke." Hoping that his brother was deeply moved, he said cheerfully: "You will be gaining something, but I shall gain a crown of righteousness. Here I am only a duke. There I shall be a king."

Topics for Research and Discussion

I. The Good Fight Finished (vs. 6-8). 1.—To whom is the letter addressed from which to-day's lesson comes? 2.—How were Paul and Timothy associated? 3.—To what does Paul compare his life?

II. Hunger for Companionship (vs. 9-13). 4.—If Paul was such a devout man, why was he lonely? 5.—Which friend stayed by him to the last?

III. Personal Matters (vs. 13-18). 7.—How does Paul end his letter to Timothy? 8.—Review the mountain peaks of greatness in Paul's life.

A NEW STOVE

A fat citizen, having in view the purchase of a new stove, was yesterday standing in front of a hardware store, when a newsboy halted and respectfully said:

"I s'pose you've seen the new stove—the one that heats 'em all."

"I don't know that I have," was the calm reply.

"You orter see it, sir. They are allus talkin' 'bout these coal stoves which save ten per cent. of fuel, and now they've got one."

"Have, eh?"

"Yes'r, I saw this one goin' the other day, but 'aynt to bake an ox, an' it didn't burn any coal at all—not even a pound."

"Is that possible! Why, I never heard of such a thing! Didn't burn any coal at all?"

"Not an ounce, and it was throwing out an awful heat."

"Well, that beats me. I don't see how they got the heat."

"They burned wood, sir!" was the humble reply.

The man tried to coax the boy within reach, but the lad had to go to the post office.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

OSTRICH EGGS SLOW TO SPOIL

Ostrich eggs keep a long time before spoiling, according to a report by M. H. Jumelle to the French Acclimatation Society. He tells of ostrich eggs sent to him from Tolnar on August 22, 1919, which reached him at Marseilles on December 12 still perfectly good. M. Hermonier had eggs that he opened and into which he dipped as he needed them; this for several days.

—La Nature suggests that if a regular supply of ostrich eggs in large enough quantities could be arranged for it would be a boon to the confectionery and baking trades as one ostrich egg contained considerably more than a quart of goodness.

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions one of the best remedies that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and they will pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

KEEP YOUR SYMPATHY

The Gulf Stream, flowing through the chilly waters of the ocean, retains its heat sufficiently to modify the climate of western Europe, and give England, in the same latitude as Labrador, its salubrious climate. And the thought of that vast river rushing on its beneficient errand, not cooling off, though colder water is all about it, should be an inspiration to all young people. Do not lose your sympathy, your idealism, your optimism because you are out in the business world, where "Look out for Number One" is too often a guiding rule. For only as you keep the warm human sympathy with which you started can you bring blessings to others.

Hospital for Sick Children

COLLEGE ST., TORONTO.

Through Support of Public, Ontario Maintains Greatest Children's Hospital on This Continent.

Dear Mr. Editor:—

Nowadays people look ahead more than they used to. They realize, for instance, that the child of to-day is the citizen of the future. The privilege of this Hospital is to provide a service whereby any Ontario child, who is weakly, may be made strong, or if he is crippled, may be set straight.

Part of this service consists of personal medical and surgical care of the children. Part is in the schooling of doctors and nurses to carry the light of medical science into the uttermost corners of the province.

The whole is a contribution to CHILD WELFARE work which must command the Hospital to the sympathy and support of your readers.

You probably saw a Quebec despatch deploring the great infant mortality in that province. One great factor which gives the Ontario-born child so much better a chance in life is the maintenance of public philanthropy of the leading Hospital for children on this continent. And that child, whether it be pallid of cheek or crooked of limbs, is helped over the rough spots of infancy and adolescence by this same Hospital. Here are the average day's figures of 1921 attendance:—

Cot patients	268
Other patients	158
Total	426

During the year the Hospital actually saves the lives of scores upon scores of children. It restores health or straightens limbs for hundreds more. Every contributor to the Hospital funds is a shareholder in an enterprise which wing back health and happiness for thousands of children, and thereby gives joy to thousands of anxious homes.

Remember, however, that every child to whom the Hospital's doors are opened—and none are refused—adds something to the financial burden which the GREAT MOTHER CHARITY has to carry. But it has never defaulted on its dividends, which are paid not in money, but in service.

The continued service of the Hospital depends on the continued support of the public.—A minute of mercy costs fifty cents, and the clock in the treasurer's office is six months slow. So there are a lot of minutes to catch up.

The Hospital is accomplishing fifty per cent. more work than before the war. Owing to higher prices it requires almost twice the money. May I place that simple but serious fact before your readers in connection with the 46th Christmas appeal of the Hospital for Sick Children for funds to carry on another year of service?

Faithfully yours,
IRVING M. ROBERTSON,
Chairman of Appeal Committee.

AN UNUSUAL SCHOLARSHIP

A most unusual sort of scholarship has just been established at the University of Wisconsin by its New York City Alumni Association. The scholarship will have a value of seven hundred dollars and will be named in honor of Miss Zona Gale, one of Wisconsin's most distinguished graduates. But the unique part about it is that it will be awarded to a student who possesses talents of a high order along one certain line, and yet may not be able to keep up with the required work in other studies. The holder need not even be a high-school graduate, provided he or she has given proof of exceptional creative ability along a particular line. He will not be required to pass entrance examinations and will not work for a degree, since this would mean the completion of a large amout of required work. In short, he will be given a free hand to make progress in the development of his own special line, provided he continues to show advancement.

The New York Alumni, in offering this unusual scholarship, explain their purpose as follows: "Anyone who will spend a few minutes glancing through a biographical dictionary," they say, "will hardly fail to note instances of distinguished men and women who were misfits at college. Some of the leaders in every department of human activity were either unable to enter college because they could not satisfy entrance requirements; or having been admitted, were not allowed to remain because of deficiency in certain prescribed subjects." So the Alumni wish their scholarship to serve as an experiment which may help to prove whether or not it is a good thing to modify college requirements for persons of special talent along a single line.

The scholarship will be open to any student in any part of the country who has given proof of unusual ability to create. This ability may be shown in science, letters, or arts. There are no restrictions as to age or sex.

It seems fitting that this unique sort of scholarship should first be established at the University of Wisconsin, which has always shown great cordiality to students of every race and tradition, and has always stood ready to give encouragement and help to promising undergraduates. That the scholarship should be named for Zona Gale is also fitting. For it was during student days at Wisconsin that Miss Gale made the beginning of her distinguished career. She is one of Wisconsin's most loyal alumnae and is as fond of her Alma Mater as her Alma Mater is proud of her.—Ruth Davis Stevens.

THREE RULES FOR HIGH-SCHOOL GRADUATES

Yale's new president, James R. Angell, in an interview recently given to a representative of the American Magazine, quotes three rules which Edward Everett Hale once gave to a High School graduating class. In President Angell's opinion no better advice could be given to-day to boys and girls about to leave school who wish to keep on growing physically and intellectually. They are surely worth the careful reading of young people both in and out of school.

"First of all, make it a rule to be out of doors for some definite portion of every twenty-four hours. Nature is a great teacher, and the foundation of all large success is health, which she offers freely to all who walk in her meadows and woods.

"Second, make it a point to rub elbows every day with your fellow men. We live in a democracy, and no man can expect large usefulness in a democracy who lives to himself. Only by knowing your fellows, working with them, and letting their fellowship and influence work on you can you expect to achieve really first-class success.

"And finally, make it a rule to spend some time every day with some one who knows more than do you, a live man, if you can find him; or a man of a former generation speaking through a great book. No man grows except as he reaches out and up. Don't spend your life with those who know less than you do or not as much. Expose yourself regularly to the inspiration and education of bigger, more mature minds."

EVIDENTLY, NOT BY THE SENSES

An American was with a gushing enthusiasm describing his new car to an English visitor. "It runs so smoothly," he said, "you can't feel it. Not a bit of noise, you can't hear it. Perfect ignition, you can't smell it. And speed, why! it simply whizzes, you can't see it!"

"My word!" exclaimed the astonished Britisher. "How do you know the bally thing is there?"—Boston Transcript.
