A CAREFUL JUROR

That some persons have curious notions as to the responsibilities of jurors is shown by this story that a Chicago lawyer tells.

"I was present at a trial held in a court of this, my own state," says the lawyer. "A juror was about to be sworn in, when the judge bethought himself to say to the man.

"'I trust, sir, you fully understand the duties and responsibilities of a juror?'

"The man drew himself up, and answered:

'I am a plain man, your honor, and I believe in being fair to all. I don't go by what lawyers say, and I don't go carefully at the defendant in the dock, by what the judge says, but I look and I says to myself, 'He must have done something, or he wouldn't be here.' So I bring 'em all in guilty."

ALMOST SORRY

The Widow—"These lawyer bodies frae Edinburgh are near drivin' me daft wranglin' abeot this bit o' property an' that, till I whiles wish Sanders had never deed at a'."—London Fun.

—The snow in patches lies, the trees all gaunt and thin; beneath the pallor of the skies, give us no hint of spring. But spring, oh spring, is coming! It surges in the sap, and in the little running streams that wakes from Winter's nap.

—March is not doing so badly. Open season for spring poems, first robins, golfers and 4.4 beer may be only just around the corner. Three cent tax on gasoline, maple syrup, baseball games will soon be with us, and the month not half through yet.

—There is a prospect that Acton will have another law office shortly. The town and the community have been well served in the past. On the old axiom, that "law begets law" it may be felt by those interested that another office may find additional clients.

—Waterloo citizens will shortly vote on a by-law to grant tax exemption to the Quality Glove Company on a new $15,000 factory which it is proposed to erect. Representatives of the company were in Acton last week looking over the building of the Ryder & Mowat Glove Company.

—A letter from Rev. G. S. Cassmore, B. A., of Delhi, who spent five useful and happy years on Nassagaweya circuit, says: "The work here is strenuous, but I am liking it well." Mr. Cassmore reads the Free Press every week and says he is always glad to have its visits.

—No effort will be spared by the Horticultural Society to beautify Brampton with flowers this summer, and to secure attractive surroundings for the churches and public buildings. Committees have been appointed to see trustees and councils to get co-operation in the movement.

—The first robin was observed in town on Sunday evening on Church Street. A couple of young men in town discovered the welcome visitant on a Hydro pole at the residence of W. R. Kenney, J. P., and were good enough to call at Moorecroft and invite the editor to "come out and see the first robin." A number of other citizens reported seeing the robin on Monday morning.

Amongst the several deserving local institutions which do not get all the support they deserve in these hard times, prominence should be given to the First Aid station of Acton Vale, which is a temple of healing in a little room. Situated in the midst of Acton's danger area, for accidents in street and factory, it has more curative value to the square inch than most institutions of its kind.

The members of the Acton Fire Brigade were called from their beds at 5.40 a. m. on Sunday, to attend to a fire in The Vale, the alarm having been given by a police-constable from a street fire-alarm post. It was found that the roof of an old coach-house in the rear of some new buildings nearly opposite Bromyard Avenue was well alight, having been presumably ignited by sparks from a watchman's fire.

A curious thing happened on Saturday morning showing that the decision of the Town Council to purchase a street ambulance for Acton was made none too soon. A lady was knocked down by a motor-cycle and carried into a shop with an injured knee. She remained there for upwards of half-an-hour while unavailing efforts were made to obtain a motor ambulance in which to convey her to the hospital.

WOMAN

She's an angel in truth, a demon in fiction, a woman's the greatest of all contradictions. She's afraid of a cockroach, she'll scream at a mouse, but she'll tackle a husband as big as a house. She'll take him for better, she'll take him for worse, she'll split his head open and then he his nurse; and when he is well and can get out of bed, she'll pick up a teapot and throw at his head.

She's faithful, deceitful, keen-sighted and blind; she's crafty, she's simple, she's cruel, she's kind; she'll lift a man up, she'll cast a man down; she'll make him her clown. You fancy she's this but you find that she's that, for she'll play like a kitten and bite like a cat. In the morning she will, in the evening she won't and you're always expecting she does—but she don't.—Exchange.

BLUNDERS OF THE LAW

The law sometimes makes queer blunders. Recently two men were put on trial in a certain court, charged with having committed an assault with a club on a tailor who refused to go on strike with his fellows. When the case was called, the prosecuting lawyer moved the discharge of one of the two prisoners on the ground that there was evidence against him. As soon as he was discharged he was placed on the stand, and testified that the other prisoner could not have committed the assault because he himself had committed it. The other man accordingly went free, and so did the guilty one, for the code does not permit any one to be tried twice for the same offence.
