KNOW THIS CHAP?

Oh, he was a dandy spender when he went out with the boys, to mix straw, and the folks reckon'd out their love—oh, he was then a rare good sport, the spread in the land, and he could toss the coin around as from a bountious hand. His clothes were always of the best, by hook they'd have worn out, he never wore his trousers with patches on the seat, nor did he have on his lapel a portion of his meals, nor wear his pants when they were fringed to circles round his heels. He simply dotted on his ties, he hid 'em pink and red, he also had a dozen hats to decorate his head. And he would give donations, too, for every worthy thing, in fact he was an easy mark for every one to sting. He'd hand a thousand to some club to push along some fad, if only they pumped in his ear a tale that sounded sad. The sick cat fund, likewise, drew forth about two hundred beans, and for the crippled monkeys he dug down in his jeans. And folks, they used to beam on him, they said he was a saint and all he heeled was some widge, likewise, some, whitewash paint. And when he went into the Kirk he planted down a bill, that made the coppers rattle there and gave the folks a thrill. But when the time came round to get a new lid for his wife, you'd think that all the sunshine had scampered from his life—there was no head of such a bog, the hat she wore last spring, although 'twas worn and faded was still a dainty thing. And he made faces like some squash beneath a wagon wheel—instead of spending like a sport, he wiggled like an eel. Oh, I'd like to lay my hands on him, and take my mighty paw and swap him in the port side and slap him in the jaw, then take a brick and heave at him and hit him in the head, and leave him squirmin' in the mud like though he was half dead. Then put my hands upon his roll and hand it to his wife, and tell her for to scoot and have the time of her young life—to get a hat for fifty bones to make her look well dress'd, and then to spend a hundred more on another'n for best. Ark.

Price of Hats Going up

Hats are going up; some in the March winds, all in price. The explanation is simple. For suitable for hat manufacture has greatly increased in cost. Alcohol, essential in hat making has doubled in price. Paper for packing purposes has gone up. Leather for the hat band is more expensive than ever. The rise in the cost of mercury alone has sent up the cost of hatters' fur 35 cents a pound. Dyestuffs, once figured by the hat manufacturer in cents are now reckoned in dollars. Hatmakers are getting bigger wages to offset the attractions of munition plants. Increase in the price of coal and other things also enter in to the hat manufacturer's calculations.

Serve Save Produce

EVERY ONE CAN do something for his country

Some can bear arms
Some can produce food
Some can make munitions
Some can give money

It is the privilege of all to help.

YOU CAN SERVE by Fighting—Working—Saving—Giving

This is NATIONAL SERVICE

Are YOU doing your part?

ALL EYES turn now to the Canadian Farmer, for he can render the Empire SPECIAL SERVICE in this sternest year of the war.

But—our farms are badly undermanned—25,000 men are needed on the land.

With insufficient help, the Man on the Land fights an uphill fight to meet the pressing need for Food.

CITY and TOWN can help.

Municipal Councils, Churches and Schools, and other organizations, both of men and women, can render National Service by directing all available labour to the Land.

Farmers themselves can exchange labour. School boys can assist.

Were you raised on a farm? Can you drive a team? Can you handle fork or hoe? If you can't fight, you can produce. Spend the Summer working on the Farm.

Let every man, woman and child in the Dominion who has access to Land, no matter how small the plot, make it produce Food in 1917.
