

DIGGING OUT: Rick Greig had quite the job, cleaning off his son's car in Georgetown South on Monday after the Groundhog Day snowstorm. Greig helped his elderly neighbour with his driveway when he finished his own too. Inset, the Longlands of Georgetown had the benefit of snowblower, but with the amount of snow — 20-30 cm — that fell, it took some time. Top photo: Jon Borgstrom. Right: Submitted photo

Q

I want to make changes to my existing Will...is a codicil my best option?

A

If you want to make changes to your estate plan, it may be best to make an entirely new Will. A codicil is a separate document setting out the specific changes to your Will which could be lost if separated from the original Will and with the result that your changes may never be known. Making a new Will keeps all your wishes together in "one stop" document for your Estate Trustee.
