LIMEHOUSE

Limehouse Public School, S.S. No. 9, Esquesing, was the scene of a very happy occasion on Tuesday evening, Mar. 31st. About thirty-five Public and High School children took part in vocal and instrumental work as they rehearsed what they will give at the Burlington Musical Festival this week. Parents and friends were delighted, and the evening was enjoyed by all. Miss Grindell, teacher, was chairman, and a splendid program was rendered, consisting of vocal solos, duets, trio and chorus, also piano and violin solos.

One very interesting event in connection with the evening was the installing and use of a splendid piano in the school. Many thanks were expressed to the School Board, the Women's Institute, Mrs. Gowdy, and all who had a share in procuring it, as it was mainly through which.

Much appreciation was shown for the excellent work which Mrs. Gowdy, the musical director, had done in training the children to perform so well.

At the close of the evening the following address was read by Norma Stephenson.

Dear Mrs. Gowdy:

We, the Limehouse girls of Georgetown High School wish to thank you very much for your help in preparing our festival work. Whether we win trophies or not we have learned to love music more, and feel a greater desire to keep on and do still better.

We admire your patience with us, and hope we shall do credit to you. We know you have been very busy with your regular work, and yet you have freely and kindly given us your time and talent.

It gives us great pleasure to give you this token of our appreciation, and hope it will always remind you of our most sincere gratitude, and of the happy times we have had practising together.

Signed by Norma Stephenson, Peggy Smethurst, Muriel Stephenson, Helen McGowan, Isobel Stephenson, Helen Meredith.

During the reading the presentation of a three-piece dresser set, mirror, brush and comb, and a basket of carnations was made by Helen Meredith and Peggy Smethurst. Mrs. Gowdy was taken by surprise and replied that she had enjoyed the work, and wished them every success at the Festival. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

HAROLD MARSHALL ELECTED PRESIDENT FOR THE 1936 SEASON

On Thursday night last the Georgetown Baseball Club held a successful meeting in the Waterworks Building to elect officers for the 1936 season. Mr. Clarence Dunham was elected chairman for the evening.

The minutes and financial statement of last season were read and confirmed. The report showed that the local club received more support last season than the two previous years, all of which shows that Georgetown is coming into its own in this fine sport.

The officers for 1936 were elected as follows:—

Honorary President—Dr. R. Paul, Mr. H. Stone.

President—Harold Marshall.

Vice-president—E. A. MacCormack.

Secretary-Treasurer—Walter McGilvray.

Executive Committee—C. C. King, C. Dunham, W. G. MacPhail, Harvey Warren, J. Beaumont, Joe Hanson, C. A. Reddy.

THIS AND THAT IN SPORT

Well, folks, column last week finally died out, enough sport fans to organize a baseball club for this season.

Funny what advertising will do, isn't it.

Wonder who our nine will team up with this year?

Likely with Acton, Milton, Brampton and Guelph, if the latter have a team.

With weather like we had on Sunday, our local ball players will soon be able to toss the horsehide around and get their arms in shape.

Great hopes have been held that our ball diamond in the Park will be overhauled this spring and put into playing shape.

We would appreciate any sport comments for this column from other organizations, as we don't want to confine it to baseball alone.

We noticed a few of our local golfers out looking the course over on Sunday.

Just itching to get a club in their hand again, and wondering if they can still make it in par.

It is rumored that St. George's Club is about to organize for the 1936 season.

All eyes have been turned towards Toronto—American hockey players this week. With the Americans winning up the round last evening, a third game will be necessary to decide the winners. This game will be played in Toronto Thursday night.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, March 31—The House of Commons put on a show last week which provided a good deal of entertainment of a sort but which did not add much to the public welfare. It is doubtful, too, whether it contributed to the general respect for democratic institutions. There were insinuations and retorts, hair-splitting and word-juggling. It is always difficult to apportion blame for these episodes, but it was assuredly not all on one side. The liveliest exchange occurred on the bill to pay nearly seven million dollars to the western farmers who delivered wheat and coarse grains to the 1930 pools. The Minister of Agriculture was anxious to get the legislation through, because many of the farmers on the prairies need the money badly to buy seed grain for this year's crop. Perhaps under the circumstances, Mr. Gardiner was a bit indiscreet in one or two points he stressed in his speech. But whether or not, he got under Mr. Bennett's skin several times, and there followed a couple of hours of the most bitter play and counterplay the House of Commons has seen in some years. "Jimmy" Gardiner proved that he can "take it" and that he is a parliamentary scrapper of the first order; but some of the less truculent members of the Chamber were wishing the fireworks would cease and the Chamber start legislating again.

The Week Partly Wasted

The row continued in somewhat slower tempo on the following day. Coupled with a long technical discussion earlier in the week as to what should be the proper procedure when a resolution is being moved as the basis for a subsequent bill, it sits heavily into the week, and little advancement was shown. Some progress was made on the unemployment relief resolution, on the National Harbour Board Bill, on the bill to change the management of the Canadian National Railways; and the United States Trade Agreement was finally disposed of, so far as the Commons is concerned. The Senate did not seem inclined to do more than comment upon the latter and allow it to go through. There are sufficient senators of Conservative leanings to defeat such a measure easily, but so far the Upper Chamber seems to have displayed a more co-operative and useful spirit than has been observed in the Commons.

Change for the C.N.R.

The Canadian National Railways was formerly operated by a board of 15, later 17, directors. After the Duff Royal Commission had criticized the operation of the railway system and had urged a change, a Board of three trustees was substituted, of which Hon. C. P. Fullerton was made Chairman. That was in 1933. Now three years later, it is proposed to replace the Board of Trustees by a smaller board of directors, seven in number, appointed by the government. The idea is, partly, that the Board of Trustees constitutes a sort of "absent landlordism," that although it is responsible for spending scores of millions of dollars of public money annually it is not accountable to the government of the day. It is proposed to make the new board more closely responsible to the Minister of Railways. It is said that the choice of directors will no longer be subject to regional or geographic considerations. The best business men available will be sought.

The annual reports of the Canadian National Railways, of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships were tabled in the House last week. These are companies of which every Canadian is a shareholder, whose profits we all share and whose deficits we all meet; so that they are of greater interest than those of any private corporation.

A Slight Improvement

The Canadian National Railways was able to report a slight improvement over the previous year. To put the matter as simply as possible, the Railway had operating revenues of about $173,184,500 and operating expenses of about $158,926,600. This left $14,258,000 to meet interest on the funded debt, taxes, rentals and other cash requirements, which amounted to nearly $61,000,000. The system thus showed a deficit of $47,421,500. This was a betterment over the previous year of about a million dollars.

The Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, Limited, on the other hand, showed for the first time since the formation of the company a surplus sufficiently large to pay interest requirements. The improvement over the previous year was practically $300,000.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine Ltd. reported that after an unbroken sequence of operating deficits, running back to 1921, it was able to pay a profit to the government of about $313,000.

The House will adjourn for Easter on April 8, resuming April 20.

SCOUT NEWS

Last Friday evening the first baseline of the new two months competition was held with fifteen boys present. Besides the usual old contemptibles there were several new recruits there and these were allotted to their respective patrols to learn the Scout laws. The meeting opened with the customary prayer and then break, followed by ten minutes of troop formations. Then came several enjoyable games and an interesting study session on the compass and history of the Union Jack. The meeting came to a close at 8.30 and for thirty minutes the boys practiced their acrobatics, an art which is becoming popular with the troop. And assuming that some of the more ambitious Scouts do not break their necks or throw their vertebral columns out of line, the troop should be fitted with a nicely balanced gymnastic crew in a few weeks.

A very valuable addition has been made to the staff in the person of Mr. F. Stockford, who will act as assistant instructor to the troop, and who will coach the boys in the finer points of tumbling and mat work.

On Saturday several of the troop set out on an all-day hike to Limehouse. This expedition into the dubious of Georgetown was in charge of Patrol Leader Harley, who reports a well cooked dinner of the usual dishes was cooked over the traditional one match fire. The highlights of the day were: One chap who attempted to slide down an ice covered incline on his nose and another boy who found out that climbing up a rope is a different matter from coming down one. However, all arrived safely home and since the practical experience thus gained is of value to a Scouts training, another hike will be arranged soon.
