St. George's Sunday School Entertained

PRESENTATION TO MR. McNALLY

On Friday evening, at about 6.45 the pupils of St. George's Sunday School sat down to a supper in the church basement, being the guests of the W.A., assisted by the Daughters of the Church. The occasion was a very pleasant one, and was followed by a programme consisting of community singing, numbers by the Sunday school orchestra, an amateur hour, and a short play.

The concluding number on the programme was the presentation by the Rector of a most comfortable easy chair, and a fine floor lamp, to Mr. P. D. McNally, who is retiring from the office of Sunday School Superintendent, which office he has held for twenty-three years. The double gift was from the Sunday School, presented with the love of the whole school. Mr. McNally, completely surprised, accepted the gifts very graciously, saying that the Sunday School of St. George's Church was really a part of his life, and that, while he had to ease the burden placed upon his time, the school would never lack his interest.

The blessing and the National Anthem concluded a very pleasant evening's entertainment, for which Mr. McNally thanked the W.A. and the Daughters most sincerely, on behalf of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robson and Marion of Guelph were visitors with Mrs. Robson's mother, Mrs. Norton, on Sunday.

ASHGROVE

On Tuesday evening, January 26th Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ruddell opened their home to a reception in honour of Mr. Austin Brownridge of Brandon, Manitoba, who was visiting around Ashgrove, while on a business trip from the West. A host of friends and relatives renewed acquaintances with Mr. Brownridge while enjoying progressive euchre and crokinole; also a real old-time sing-song and speeches brought back old memories. Lovely prizes were given to Miss Zeta Graham and Mr. Clayton Dick for euchre; Miss Elsie Nell and Mr. O. Brownridge for crokinole. Tasty refreshments were served.

The young people's union met for their first devotional meeting of the year on Sunday evening with Miss Zeta Graham presiding, and an encouraging attendance of twenty-five present. The topic for the meeting "Anticipation in the New Year," was thoughtfully prepared and given by Mrs. Frank Ruddell. Frances Wrigglesworth favored with a pleasing solo while Joy Ruddell accompanied her.

BALLINAFAD

The January meeting of the W.M.S. was held Wednesday afternoon in the church. The meeting was well attended and the roll call was answered with a missionary verse of scripture. After the devotional exercises, several items of business were discussed. The Supply Secretary gave our allocation for the bale and mite boxes were given out to be used for the "love gift." It was decided to have a temperance scrap book again as one way to keep this subject before the Auxiliary. The scripture study on the life of the Apostle Peter was given by Mrs. B. Hills, and the topic from the new study book by Mrs. A. Foreman in their usual capable manner. The meeting closed with singing and prayer. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Wiley.

The Mission Band held their regular meeting on Saturday afternoon. There was a splendid attendance and Mrs. R. Shortill, the superintendent, was in charge. The topic was given by Mrs. A. Kentner, assistant.

LIONS' FAREWELL TO K. L. WILSON

The regular dinner of the Lions Club was held on Monday evening in the McGibbon Hotel, Chief Wm. Long in the chair. Guests present were Messrs. K. L. Wilson, Joseph Beaumont, J. H. Smith, and Eddie Luman, of Georgetown, and Messrs. Gilroy and Hately of Milton.

After routine business had been disposed of, Lion G. W. McLintock, spoke of the coming departure of Mr. Wilson, regretting his loss to the town, but wishing him well in his new position and place of residence. Lion W. V. Grant then addressed Mr. Wilson, and presented him with a pipe from the Club. Lion W. G. O. Thompson followed with a gift of flowers for Mrs. Wilson. Mr. Wilson responded very graciously and feelingly, saying that Georgetown was home to Mrs. Wilson and himself, and he did not feel that "good-bye" was the word he wished to say, but "au revoir." He thanked the Lions for the fine pipe, and for the flowers for Mrs. Wilson.

Brief speeches were made by Messrs. Luman, J. Beaumont, J. H. Smith, and Mr. Hately.

The speaker of the evening, Mr. F. H. Gilroy, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Milton, was then introduced by Lion G. W. McLintock. Mr. Gilroy's address on "The Parade of Life," was a mixture of "grave and gay," delivered in a quiet, "pleading manner. The resolution of thanks tendered by Lions Kennedy and McClure, expressed the sincere appreciation of the Club, and the strong desire to have Mr. Gilroy back again.

Mr. Eddie Luman, manager for the Lions Club of the Maple Leaf Midgets, in speaking of the team, mentioned the need of some hockey sticks. Before the Club could move to provide them, Lion Croy Kennedy asked the manager to procure the sticks, and charge them to him, a generous action greeted with warm applause.

The Club adjourned with the singing of "The Maple Leaf."

PRESBYTERIAL EXECUTIVE

The Halton Presbyterial Executive meeting was held in Milton United Church on Wednesday, January 27th with two sessions, 10 o'clock and 1.30. Mrs. H. Inglehart of Palermo, president, presided, with almost a full attendance, just three members absent. Important business and helpful discussions filled the first session, also some special announcements were given. After a delicious dinner supplied by the Milton Ladies, the annual reports were received from each department, which were indeed gratifying and showed much careful thought in compiling them. Some very encouraging features are worthy of mentioning—Six new societies have been formed; more reports were received on time and our finances are slightly increased.

Those attending this meeting from these parts were: Mrs. Geo. I. Stephenson, Limehouse; Mrs. P. W. Shortill, Ballinafad; Mrs. Arthur Speight, Georgetown, and Mrs. Karl Wilson, R. R. 2 Georgetown.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, February 3—The constitution has occupied the centre of the political stage in the past few days. It is not a subject which can ever expect to have a wide box-office appeal. You can write a fairly bright column about the abolition of hanging, or a new Canadian flag, or even Canada's defence policy; but what can you do with the legal and constitutional arguments, the lengthy historical reviews, the division of jurisdiction, and all the rest of it, in a review written for others than lawyers and politicians? Yet you can't ignore it. Once upon a time I taught Canadian history, and I confess I found the constitutional part of it pretty heavy sledding. Just the same, there is no choice. I shall have to devote some space to the subject now.

The matter was thrust into the centre of things by Mr. Bennett, who made, in the course of a conservative and eliminating speech, the suggestion that a constitutional convention of the several parties, provincial and federal, be called to discuss amending the B.N.A. act. He apparently had in mind some such historic meeting as those at Quebec and Charlottetown at which the foundations of the present Dominion were laid. He took it for granted that the constitution needed refitting. Most people, who have been in a position to see how the present Act stands in the way of reform, will agree with him. But how is it to be done? There must be reasonable unanimity of the nine provinces, and the Dominion. Can it be attained? An effort was made last year, but what, with the attitude of the Senate and the objections raised by several provinces, even that minor change could not be proceeded with. What hope would there be of an overhauling, aimed at bringing the constitution of 1867 into mesh with the conditions of 1937?

A Round Table Talk

Mr. Bennett, advocating a convention of parts and parties, thought that a round table meeting of this sort would start the revision hopefully on its way.

The Mackenzie King government, accepting Mr. Bennett's suggestion in the constructive way in which it was offered, still did not think that such a convention was necessarily the best way about it. Mr. Mackenzie King, putting his finger on what he thought was the place where the shoe pinches most at the moment, namely the taxing powers and the social obligations of province and Dominion, seemed to favor a royal commission or series of commissions, not perhaps, to go into the whole question immediately, but to bear down on these immediate matters which demanded adjustment, and for which, indeed, some temporary relief might be needed even before a commission could report.

Before the week was out, news from London added emphasis to the need of discussion between provinces and Dominion on this subject. It is now clear that, as the B.N.A. act stands, the Dominion government has no administrative rights in the field of social legislation. It cannot enforce an unemployment insurance scheme, nor minimum wages, nor limitation of hours of labor, nor even old age pensions. These are, as the constitution is written, provincial measures.

Questions Being Asked?

Should they be left provincial measures? If so, then we must give up all our ideas about national social legislation along the lines listed above. Any province that wishes can put these measures into force; others need not. One sees what that means, and what problems of competition in industry, of migration to provinces where social laws are better, or to provinces where production is cheaper, what problems in the fair division of federal monies, are involved.

Should the federal government be given power to administer social legislation by a re-writing of the constitution? Shall there be the same minimum wage laws in P.E.I. as in B.C. or in Quebec as in Alberta? Is it desirable to have uniformity in such a diverse country? One sees the problems, here, too.

Now it seems more imperative than ever to make a determined effort to discuss the constitution. Canadians now know how the present constitution divides the powers and responsibilities. If the provinces are to set up unemployment insurance, minimum wage, old age pension schemes, etc, then obviously they will need to have their sources of revenue enlarged. If these social measures are to be made national other sections of the B.N.A. act will have to be re-written. But either way, the constitution must be changed.

Midget Hockey Continues to Thrill Large Crowds

The Midgets continued their consistent hockey of thrills and spills for the approval of over six hundred fans last Thursday and when the smoke of battle cleared the teams, in point of standing, were no farther advanced than when they had begun hostilities.

The first game saw the highlight of the current season when the Maple Leafs and the Canadiens hooked up in a close-checking, smooth-passing, thrill-packed struggle. The Canadiens were stronger on their rushes but the Leafs held an advantage in checking. The two teams played through ten minutes of overtime and failed to register a counter. These two teams were particularly impressive to Joe Primeau, the referee, who stated that either team could hold any Toronto Midget team. The goalies, Broda and Cude, were impregnable and their defence was very strong. The lighter forward line of Apps, Drillon and Jackson, kept the high-scoring line of Gagnon, Joliat and Morenz in check throughout the evening.

The second game also produced sparkling hockey and it too went overtime to a 4 all score. Chapman and Carr were the bright lights for the Americans, and Northcott, Conacher and Carson went well for the Maroons.

These two games will be played off at a later date.

* * *

Last Saturday the teams of Canadiens, Maple Leafs, Maroons and Americans played exhibitions games in Acton and it is reported that Horner and Thoms were besieged by autograph hunters.

* * *

On Saturday evening twelve players were the guests of the Executive at the Maroon-Leaf game in Toronto, and were thrilled by the hockey as played by the "Big Fellows." Every Saturday twelve boys will be taken to see the pro games and learn how the game is played in the big time.

We understand that a certain member of the Executive had a lot of fun signing autographs for the fans after the Maroon game.

The Maroons were very much impressed with the idea of Midget hockey as played in Georgetown, but the pay-off came when Lionel Conacher enquired the whereabouts of Georgetown, and the reply came back from Northcott "It's near Acton." (Acton paper please copy). After the games the boys were taken into the dressing rooms of the pro teams and discussed with them the hockey league of Georgetown.

* * *

On Monday evening the Boston Bruins showed a great deal of improvement in their playing and held the strong marauding Maroons to a one all score in ten minutes overtime. Art Ross has a good goalie in Thompson and his front line of Beattie, Weiland and Clapper, show a sparkling brand of offensive hockey. Eddie Shore scored for the Bruins while Lionel Conacher counted for the strong Maroons.

The second game was very fast and exciting and it too went overtime, before Carr slipped through for the Americans and scored two nice goals which gave his team the edge over the Chicago Black Hawks. These Americs are coming fast and the Leafs and Canadiens will have to look to their laurels in the play-offs or the Stanley Cup will be going down under. Chabot scored his second shutout.

* * *

Games this Thursday will see the Leafs playing the Bruins and the second game which will bring over the entire Glen, will bring together the Amreks and their old rivals the Canadiens. One of the Maple Leaf players will be on hand to officiate.

Games next Tuesday will be the tie-breaking of the two games held last Thursday. First game Americans vs. Maroons; second game Maple Leafs vs. Canadiens. Come out and watch these great teams in action. Tuesday is lucky ticket night. Ten valuable prizes given away free. Write your name and address on the back of the orange tickets. Winners in Monday night's draw were: Sarah Blick, Shirley Dillon, A. Christenson, Mary Watson, Winnie Willett, Willis Schenk, Stanley Logan, H. C. Wheeler, P. Castle, C. Laws.
