I'll Keep my Dreams

Give me contact of birds and flowers,
The hills and babbling streams;
A thrush's song, the wind in the trees,
And I will keep my dreams.

For life is good, and come what may,
A heritage is mine,
And this little life, though incomplete,
Is part of a vast design.

34th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED BY ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH

Celebrating the 34th anniversary of the opening of St. Alban's Church for worship, special services were held last Thursday evening, June 24th, with Rev. F. H. Wade, Guelph, at one time rector of St. George's Church of England, Georgetown, as special preacher.

The services were conducted by Rev. W. O. O. Thompson, rector incumbent, who recently observed the silver jubilee of his ordination in the priesthood of the Church of England.

St. Alban's Church, one of the architectural gems of Halton County, was built to accommodate an increasing congregation of worshippers in Glen Williams. Previous to its erection, services had been held for a short time in what is now the parish hall and, prior to that time, adherents of the Anglican faith had trudged from Glen Williams to Georgetown. St. Alban's has been associated with St. George's Church since its organization and receives the joint ministry of the Georgetown rectors.

On Friday evening a lawn social was given on the church grounds, when supper was served by the St. Alban's Women's Guild and a programme headed by Georgetown Band was enjoyed by the large number present.

PRESENTATION TO MR. JOE HARRIS

On Tuesday afternoon, June 29th, the pupils of S. S. No. 3 Chinguacousy, bid farewell to their teacher, Mr. Joe Harris, who has accepted the position of principal of the Norval Public School. Mr. Harris has been the teacher at S.S. No. 3 for the past two years.

There was a fine program presented by the following talent: piano solo, Ethel Leslie; solo, Ross Petch; piano duet, Frances Rutledge and Nora Lyons. There was also the presentation of prizes to the pupils. Ethel Leslie acted as chairlady.

The following address was then read by Frances Rutledge and Herbert Dobson presented Mr. Harris with a beautiful fountain pen:

Dear Mr. Harris:

It is with deepest regret that we the pupils of S. S. No. 3, have met here today to bid farewell to you as our teacher. The two years you have been with us will long be a pleasant memory. You entered whole-heartedly into your school work and took such an interest in everything you undertook to do. We are sure that your motto must have been "What is worth doing, is worth doing well." In our sports you joined us with such keen pleasure and gave us an interest in clean, wholesome games. We will always remember you as a "good scout" on the playgrounds. Your high standard of ethics and morals will have a permanent impression in the school. Although our relation as teacher and pupils is severed we sincerely hope it will still continue in the active life of our church and Sunday School. As a slight token of our love and appreciation we would ask you to accept this little gift which will help to remind you of your first pupils.

Mr. Harris then made a fitting and touching reply and expressed his thanks for the kinds words of appreciation and the gift, and his regret upon leaving them.

LLOYD D. DINGLE HALTON'S CANDIDATE

Mr. Dingle and Cecil O. Frost, new local Conservative organizer, addressed the gathering and stressed a conservative benefit with the affairs of the Province.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. E. H. MACKENZIE

Mr. W. D. Rudell's lovely home was the scene last Friday, and an informal enjoyable tribute to the retiring of the Local Council of Women. The event took the form of a tea and presentation especially arranged in honour of Mrs. J. H. Mackenzie who for the past two years has been the outstanding and universally popular President of the Georgetown Local Council of Women. When all the members had assembled Mrs. Hayes, the present President of the Council, addressed Mrs. Mackenzie as follows:

Mr. Mackenzie:

The members of the Local Council of Women of Georgetown have come together, amid these beautiful surroundings, on this lovely June day, for one specific purpose. They desire to express to you perhaps a little belatedly but none the less wholeheartedly, their deep and sincere appreciation of the service which you rendered to the Council, as the President, for all too many years. We feel that we cannot speak too warmly in praise of that service. We realize it must often have meant the small sacrifice of time and energy to meet the demands of office, but as one of our executive has expressed it, Mrs. Mackenzie always found time to do what had to be done cheerfully, willingly and well."

From the meetings presided over by you the members carried away many happy memories memories of a gracious presiding officer, ably gifted to meet and cope with every exigency of organizational life, and one who by the sheer force of her own personality was able to transform what might otherwise have been dull and colourless meetings into occasions long to be remembered.

Hence it has seemed fitting to give some tangible expression of the thought in our minds, we are going to ask you to accept a slight token of our esteem, a gift which, though small in itself, is symbolic of something else that is very large, our regard, gratitude and sincere appreciation. We beg you to accept it with our best wishes for a continuance, through future years, of the happy relationship that has always existed between you and the Georgetown Local Council of Women.

Mrs. Nodwell, who is herself a Past President of the Council, then presented to Mrs. Mackenzie a glass hors-d'oeuvre dish set in a silver tray. Mrs. Mackenzie then expressed to the Council her appreciation of, and thanks for, this gift and for the thoughts expressed by Mrs. Hayes in appreciation of her work, expressing at the same time the pleasure which the Local Council work had always afforded her.

High tea was then served at tables laid in the roomy porch of this lovely house, after which Mrs. Vannatter moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Nodwell for her hospitality and to the tea committee, headed by Miss Mary Lawson as convener, for the delicious refreshments served.
