

IN BRIEF

LED streetlight conversion program brightens community

Residents will soon notice a more natural white light illuminating their neighbourhoods and roadways as the Town of Halton Hills begins converting streetlights from traditional yellow-orange coloured lights to Light Emitting Diode (LED).

The Mayor's Community Energy Plan's main objective is to reduce energy use and the associated greenhouse gas emissions within Town facilities, as well as, across the community. Converting the Town's streetlights to LED technology will make a significant contribution to meeting this objective and reaching the Town's targets.

The conversion project is expected to start in September, taking approximately nine (9) months to complete. The Town currently has approximately 3,880 Cobra Style and 570 decorative High Pressure Sodium luminaires that would be converted to LED luminaires.
