Museum, Parliament in Student Travel Tour

Every year senior grades of Georgetown's public schools board buses and head out for various points of interest in this part of the province to "learn first hand." Chapel Street's grade eight was the first to stage their annual spring sabbatical. Below, a pupil, Valerie Kitchen, relates the progressive steps of their Toronto jaunt.

• • •

Early last Friday morning saw the eighth grade of Chapel Street School eagerly awaiting the bus that would take them to the interesting places in Toronto. I said eager, but some thought that there was nothing new and exciting to see in Toronto.

Our guide at the Royal Ontario Museum described the life history and other points about many animals, fish and reptiles. Everyone seemed to listen attentively and they looked interested. However, when we came to the snakes, a few girls didn't look so enthusiastic. In our free time we seemed to travel to such distant lands as China, Greece, Egypt and Rome by looking at the exhibits from these countries.

Our next port of call was Riverdale Zoo, where many pictures were taken of the animals displaying their antics. In a quiet park adjoining the zoo, the hungry travellers devoured their lunch. Enroute to the Parliament Buildings, we viewed three of Toronto's hospitals: Toronto General, Sick Children's and Mt. Sinai.

At the Parliament Buildings, three of the boys were delighted to sit in the Speaker's, the Clerk's and the Serjeant at Arms' chairs. The remaining pupils sat at other desks belonging to respective Members of Parliament. While we were in the room known as the Legislative Assembly, we learned much of Canada's history as well as the history of the building. From here we travelled to the Toronto Daily Star Building at 80 King Street West. After taking a tour of the main part of seven floors we realized how involved publishing a newspaper really was. Here we noticed a great contrast between the quiet offices of reporters and the noisy, inky presses.

Because it was after closing time we could not tour the Casa Loma, but we lingered to take pictures of the great structure. We were amused when, on top of this old-fashioned building, we viewed a television aerial.

Our bus trip home was more quiet than the one down, because we were so weary, but filled with fond memories. I think the ones who said that there was nothing new to see in Toronto changed their minds by the time our trip was over.

Main Work Begins on Downtown Renovating

Georgetown's Main St. will look like the site of the next - world subway for about the next two months.

Work on a sanitary sewer and a culvert (something an underground river at the west end of the downtown business section will be finished this week, and new sidewalks constructed on the south side of Mill St. should be completed around the same time. But this week-end will also see the beginning of a major building project which will rip down from Main right up the middle, from end to end.

This week will be for the installation of new storm sewers and will launch a construction program that will last for some two months. Light standards will be moved to the centre of the street and new pavement and sidewalks will be installed during this period.

Service from the water main will also be re-done, a project which will include replacing the old galvanized water service lines with copper ones.

Meanwhile every threat of the pick axe will be bringing Main St. a little closer to "the progressive look" reflected by the artist's drawings of the finished product.

Heart Attack at Game Baseball Manager Dies

A keen baseball competitor and fan, Charles D. "Chic" Jewell died Saturday playing his game.

Chic had taken on the management of the new Georgetown Intermediate A ball club and was guiding them in their first game of the season in Acton park when he succumbed to a heart attack.

He watched his club drop behind by three runs in the early innings of the tight fought contest and then rally with an outbreak of hits to tie the game in the eighth inning and increase the tempo. Action had begun to pull away again with a pair of runs when he left the bench to walk around behind his players. It was there he complained of feeling faint and suffered the attack.

An Acton physician was called and one of the Acton ball players who are also Acton firemen administered oxygen, but he was dead within twenty minutes. His youngest son, Fred, had accompanied him to the game.

Chic came to town some years ago to operate a Western Tire Store on Main St. and was at the time a member of the local Lions club.

He is survived by his wife, Elaine (Lillian Jewell), sons Charles Lawrence, and Fred William, and a daughter Cheryl Elaine, parents Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Jewell of St. Williams, and brother Kenneth of St. Williams, and sisters Phyllis of Simcoe and Sheila of Amherstburg. The Jewell home is at 22 Acacia St.

The funeral service was held Tuesday at St. Williams and interment was in St. Williams Cemetery.

Seek Backing For Boys Baseball Loop

Unions, businesses, stores, clubs or individuals seeking out an organization that needs and deserves a financial boost need look no further.

Georgetown's Minor Baseball group and Midget All-Stars are now ready to plunge into their 1961 season, the first one for the county honoring Midgets, and with a hundred and twenty boys in the organization, backing is a necessity.

The twelve Minor League teams require approximately $25 each, while the Midgets could use up about $100 without acquiring any luxuries. Anybody interested in lending a hand can call Bill Richmond at TR. 7-6228 or Bill Smith at TR. 7-3043.

A plea to the Ontario Athletic Commission through the Hon. Charles Daly, Minister of Labour has brought some results. The Commissioner, Mr. Mackenzie, offered catcher's equipment, 12 balls and 12 bats.

Deputy Reeves in Used Carriage Business For County Museum

The mayor of motor city may have competition when Deputy-Reeve H. Merry of Oakville and Deputy Reeve F. Near of Trafalgar go into the used carriage business. They have been delegated to report on the possible acquisition of carriages for the proposed County Museum. The museum will be in a barn on the Kelso Dam project of the Sixteen Mile Creek Authority.

COUNTY COUNCIL

Burlington Reeve Queries County Building Parking

"Who authorized a "No Parking" sign outside the County Building in Milton?" was the question raised by Reeve L. Ryckman of Burlington at County Council last week. "I maintain it was placed there for a member of the bench," Mr. Ryckman contended, "however, "no parking" means "no parking" even to members of the bench."

"This road is owned by the County," he continued, "if the sign was placed there by the town of Milton, it's beyond their jurisdiction, if placed there by the County, who authorized it?"

The resolution moved by the Reeve of Burlington, asked the clerk to investigate. "If there's a ticket on my car, you'll hear a lot more about this," the Burlington reeve added, amid the general laughter. A signal from the deputy-clerk revealed no ticket on the car.

• • •

Again the question of representation by population was raised at County Council by the Reeve of Oakville. "Serious consideration should be given to asking the Provincial Government for legislation to change the present system," he advocated.

Reeve Ryckman asked council members to make their views known to enable his Committee (Legislation) to come up with an acceptable proposal.

Clerk Garfield Brown sent out a questionnaire be given to each County Council member. Reeve Doug Sargent added dryly: "Better send one to each municipality in addition to County Council members, since at least in my case, the views won't be the same."
