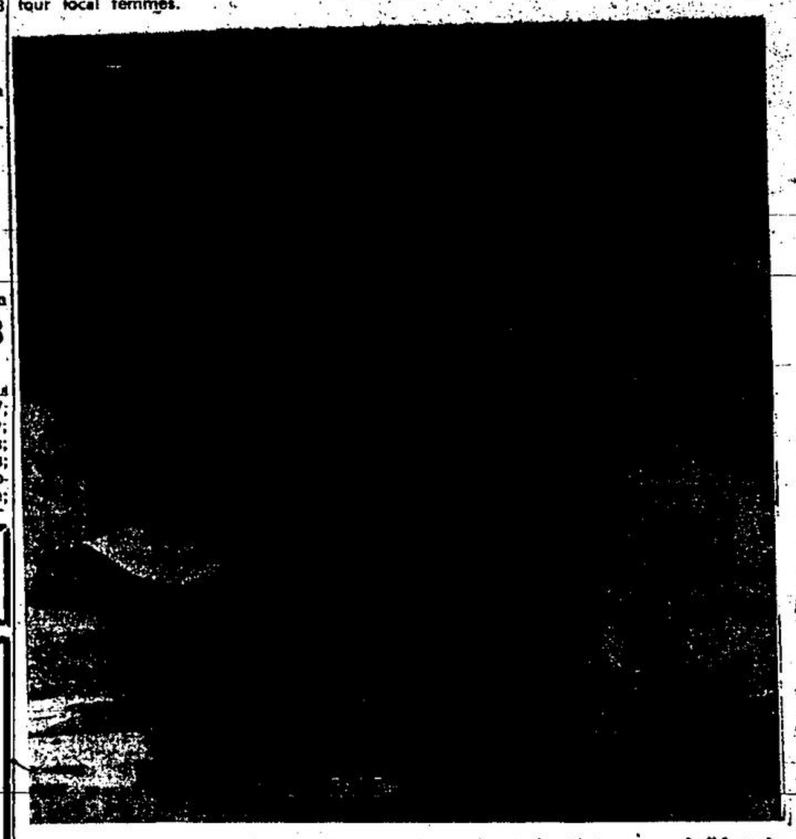
Summer Jobs

GAL STUDENTS FIND HOW TO FORGET THE BOOKS (AND UP THE BANK BALANCE)

STUDENTS ARE MUCH IN DEMAND as summertime help this year says the district branch of the National Employment Service. Hundreds of Georgetown students took advantage of the situation to find for themselves between-term jobs—including these four local femmes.



One high schooler who didn't get far from the books during the summer holidays is Lyn Hewson who is working at the Georgetown Public Library through the summer months.

A pair of Co-eds fashioning the fancy sun dass at the Dairy Queen while school's out are Jan Kitchen and Julie Parsons.

Another high schooler enjoying the recess from studies is Pat Bowman who is working at Cotton Brothers Clothing.
