Conservation in the Home

One quarter of Ontario's annual energy budget of $11-billion is spent on energy for the home, principally for heating oil, natural gas, and electricity.

Yet, homeowners, through energy conscious consumption and buying habits, can save money and help to ensure a better quality of life now and for future generations.

Heating is the most expensive item in your home energy budget. Here are some tips to help you conserve energy and save money:

Hot Water Heating

- If you have a natural gas water heater, set the thermostat at 140°F (60°C), and if you don't have a dishwasher, try setting it at 120°F (50°C)...
- Insulate pipes to save energy and reduce "sweating" problems in summer; at least one metre of both cold and hot water pipes to/from your hot water tank should be insulated . . .
- Add a 90 mm (3-1/2 in.) batt of insulation around your hot water tank. This can reduce heat loss by up to 70 per cent — however, make sure that controls, junction boxes, air inlets and tank tops on natural gas heaters are not affected by the insulation . . .
- Take a shower instead of a bath — better still, put a flow restrictor in the shower head — you save hot water and you can still enjoy a skin-tingling shower . . .
- Have your leaky faucets fixed.

Space Heating

- Have your oil furnace serviced every year. Better still, consider converting your home heating to electricity or to natural gas . . .
- Keep furnace filters clean and replace as necessary . . .
- Keep electric baseboard heater fins clean by vacuuming . . .

Energy Ontario

but it is important to do the work correctly and carefully. In an older house with little insulation, a thorough re-insulation job can halve your heating bill. The cost of insulating accessible areas such as the attic is usually recovered in five years or less, through lower annual heating costs.

Nowadays, insulation is sold, not by thickness, but by "resistance value" ("R" value) — a precise measurement of the insulation's resistance to heat transfer. The higher the "R" value, the less heat will escape through the insulating material.

As much as 25 per cent of your heat can be lost through and around windows and doors — so, it is wise to install storm windows, use thermal drapes, and have caulking or weather-stripping applied to prevent heat from escaping through cracks.

Keep light bulbs clean. Install fluorescent lighting wherever possible — it's more than five times as efficient as incandescent lights. And, when buying fluorescent tubes, buy the warm coloured kind, such as "warm white", because they give the room a warmer feeling.
