Halton traffic complaints can now be reported online

Area residents angered by people running a specific stop sign or speeding along their neighbourhood streets can now make their complaints using the Halton Regional Police Service website.

Halton police say they field numerous traffic complaints throughout the region and the district response teams in each municipality make every effort to follow up on these complaints and deal with the problems.

In an effort to create greater efficiency police announced Tuesday traffic complaints could now be reported online.

Police say a traffic complaint submitted online should be a concern that is reoccurring at a specific location within the Halton Region.

Required information includes what the traffic infraction is, the time of day it occurs, how often it occurs and any observations made of the driving behavior.

Officers note reporting a traffic complaint is different from reporting a driving complaint.

A complaint about one driver's behaviour is vehicle specific and can be reported to the online ROADWATCH program at www.haltonpolice.ca/PRC/Pages/ROADWATCH.aspx.

Traffic complaints, which can be reported online providing there is a reoccurring location, include:

- Stop sign or red light violations
- Speeding
- Aggressive Driving
- Unsafe passing
- Careless/Dangerous driving
- Failing to yield to pedestrians
- Failing to yield to a school crossing guard

- Community safety zone violations
- School bus violations

To submit an online traffic complaint, visit www.haltonpolice.ca/PRC/Pages/TrafficComplaints.aspx.
