MILTON, DECEMBER 12, 1867.

Municipal News.

The Conservative ticket in Trafalgar is W. C. Beaty Esq., for Deputy Reeve, and Messrs. Ralph Breckon, Kennedy, and C. C. Gibson for Councillors. They have no candidate for Reeve In Nelson, Robert Miller, Esq., who has been Reeve of Nelson, we suppose, ever since it was Nelson, has retired from Municipal honors, and has accepted the office of Township Clark, in place of A. G. MacGay, who has removed to Bronte. Simcoe Kerr, Esq., will probably be unopposed for Reeve, but the Deputy Reeveship will be contested. Messrs. Foster, McLaren, and Thomas are spoken of for Reeve. In Esquesing, Messrs. Clay, McNaughton, and Lindsay are spoken of as candidates. We trust that there will be but two candidates, so that there may be a square fight, instead of a triangular duel. The name of R. S. Hall is mentioned for deputy. We have heard that Mr. McEnery will retire, and Mr. Leslie will be a candidate for his ward. There was a meeting on Friday night at Ligny, and Mr. Joseph Kirby was nominated for a seat in the Council. Mr. Kirby has not yet accepted. Councillor Hume is resolved to run again for Councillor, and this he says will be his last year. He goes in in the interest of economy, and to attend to several old matters which require looking after. He will explain his course at the hustings. In Milton, the present efficient Mayor, George Smith, Esq., has resolved to retire from municipal honors, although he could be re-elected by acclamation. His course, during his term of office has given universal satisfaction. W. D. Lyon, Esq., has been solicited to accept the position and is likely to be unopposed, although the name of Dr. Freeman is mentioned in connection with the mayoralty, Mr. Center will retire from the Council, and Mr. Hatton is spoken of as his successor in the East Ward. Mr. Taylor will probably be unopposed in the North Ward, and R. Matheson is again a candidate in the South Ward. John Dewar, jr, Esq., has been solicited by his friends to become a candidate for the Reeveship, and he has accepted the invitation. We suppose that Mr. McGuffin will again contest it with him.

County Court and Quarter Sessions.

These Courts were opened on Tuesday the 10th inst., his Honor Judge Thomas Miller, presiding. On the Bench with his Honor were Levi Willson, H. M. Switzer and Archibald Campbell, Esqs. The following Barristers were present:—Messrs. Bastedo, Matheson, Laidlaw and Dixon of Milton; Livingston of Georgetown, and Appelbe of Oakville. On the Grand Jurors being called the following gentlemen answered to their names and were sworn:

James Hollinrake, Foreman,
Henry Albertson, Wm. Caldwell,
George Alton, Andrew Elliott,
Jos. Brownridge, Richard Harrison,
G. Brownridge, Robert Howes,
Frederick Bray, Joshua Long,
Thomas Lane, Arch. McPhail,
D. McCallum, M. McPherson,
George McKay, Sam. F. Taylor,
John Whaley, John K. Appelbe.

We were glad to observe that Mr. Van Allen had sufficiently recovered from his recent illness, to be able to perform his duty as Crier.

His Honor then delivered his charge to the Grand Jury, in which he congratulated them on the lightness of the calender, and defined clearly the crimes of larceny and assault.

In the County Court there were only two records entered the first that was tried was which was brought on two promissory notes. Mr. Appelbe for the Plaintiff. No defence. Verdict for Plaintiff and $263.36. Mr. Appelbe asked for a certificate for immediate execution which was granted.

GIBSON VS. FREEMAN,

The Grand Jury brought in the following presentment, the Queen vs. Robert Blair, Sheepstealing. No Bill.

Court adjourned at 3 P. M.

CITY MISSIONARY WANTED.—The Young Men's Christian Association of Hamilton, Ontario, have authorised a Committee of their number to take the necessary steps to obtain a thoroughly qualified missionary to labour in the Home Mission work of the city. To an earnest Christian man, of Catholic spirit, and possessing a thorough adaptation to the work, there is presented a wide field of effort and enterprise. The members of the Association will heartily cooperate with him in his work, and a liberal salary will be given. Applications or letters of inquiry addressed to the Secretary, Mr. Geo. Black, Box 236, will meet with immediate attention.

The election of Mayor of New York has terminated in the success of Mr. Hoffman (62,911 votes) against Mr. Fernando Wood (22,832 votes) and Mr. Darling (18,465 votes) Hoffman and Wood are both Democrats, and Mr. Darling was the nominee of the Republican party. The Democrat party vote was thus nearly four times as great as that of the Republicans. Mr. Hoffman is spoken of as a highly respectable man, while Mr. Wood's short comings are notorious.

Winter Management of Farm Stock.

The following Essay by Mr. Joseph Kirby, was read before the Esquesing Farmers' Club, at its first meeting.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN.—This being the first meeting of the Esquesing Farmers' Club, the subject to be brought forward for our discussion is one that we all as farmers have a common interest in. The duty devolves on me to open the subject. I have thought proper to confine myself to cattle and sheep, as most of you are aware that my experience has been entirely among this class of stock. I shall therefor take you through the cattle yard first, and while I am endeavoring to draw your attention to the subject, if I fail to show you anything of interest, I hope you will bear with me a few moments in my short-comings. As the major part of you all very well know that I have not been schooled to stand up before an audience, and lay bare my thoughts and expressions, and the very short time I have had at my disposal, I feel as though I cannot do justice to the subject, and that it ought to have fallen into abler and better hands than myself.—With regard to the winter management of Stock, there are so many different modes of treatment, that it is a very difficult matter to say which, or if any one is superior to the other. In the first we have gentleman A., who rushes into print with great assurance telling us the advantages of using the steam boiler, cutting and steaming food for all his Stock, but seldom if ever saying anything about the expense and outlay. I make no doubt but that Stock will thrive better with a little steam food, but at the same time I am not sure if the balance sheet would show anything in the favor of this mode of treatment. Secondly, Farmer B. gives us a statement that he uses the chaff cutter, cuts up everything and feeds in a cut state, and finds by so doing that his food goes a great deal further and his Stock thrives much better. In the third place another one says that I never use a chaff cutter or steamer, and that my Stock is wintered with less expense and looks equally as well, as either of those other two expensive modes of wintering Stock. Fourthly, we have another who says that root growing is the only sure and cheap way, even going so far as to say that Stock cannot be kept without roots; and the fifth one steps in and says root growing is a perfect humbug. Now gentlemen, in the face of all these theories it becomes a very difficult question to answer, and as for my part I feel disposed to say, let each one pursue his own course. In this Northern climate of ours where the time required for feeding animals on dry food is never less than five months, and often extends to six, it is a matter of great importance to use this dry food in the most economical manner possible, and as far as my own individual experience is concerned, I would say the one that comes within the reach of all, giving the greatest amount of profit with the least expense and outlay, is the one for the Canadian farmer to pursue; and if I may state my own observations and practice, I should go in favor of the chaff cutter, for I am well satisfied that one-third less feed will carry the same amount of stock through winter with better results. Good clean bright straw, either wheat or oat straw mixed with hay and cut up together, or mixed afterwards is a great improvement on the score of economy, and is more easily masticated than when fed in the long, raw state. At the present time when there is every probability of feed being very scarce, it becomes every feeder of stock to give special attention to this subject, and use all the means at his command, by providing warm comfortable stables and feeding racks. One fruitful source of loss is the exposure of animals, particularly of sheep and cattle, in open yards or fields, with nothing but the lee side of a rail fence for shelter, where one third more food is consumed solely for the purpose of keeping up animal heat. Another large portion is wasted by being trodden under foot for want of suitable racks and feeding boxes; and a third source of waste is in giving the food to the animals in a form or condition in which they cannot eat it readily, and this brings me to the suggestion of bringing the chaff cutter more into daily use. Now, Mr. Chairman, with you permission we will take a walk through the cattle yard. The first that comes to our notice is the milk cows, and some of them rather low in condition. This I suppose is accounted for by the very dry season, and the shortness of pasture. These cows appear to be early in calf; they require a little extra attention. The remedy I will prescribe for them is that they have a good warm stable, well ventilated, and a well littered bed of straw, sawdust, or some other material, and given through the winter one quart of meal each morning and night, with one bushel of cut feed and half a bushel of roots, with the run of the yard during the day and plenty of water. Follow this course during the winter, and they will come out in the spring, profitable either as dairy cows, or raising calves. We will turn and look at the two year olds. Here is some fine strong heifers in calf, they have come into their winter quarters. In order they don't calf until June, we won't give them any meal I think a good warm stable with plenty of cut feed and a few roots daily, will bring those out in the spring in prime condition.—The yearlings will come under the same treatment. By having a good comfortable stable one half the feed will do more good, and bring stock out in the spring in far better condition. We will look at the other side of the yard. Here is a loose box with half a dozen calves, very small and puny; they are not thriving very well. I suppose their being raised in the neighborhood of a cheese factory accounts for their small growth. Mr. Chairman, public opinion has run of late very strong in favour of the factory system, but those calves do not say much in its favour, and I think in the course of a few years, raising such like calves as those will lower the standard of our milk cows, however well it may pay at present.

PARLIAMENTARY

WEDNESDAY, 4TH.

Mr. McDougall moved his resolutions on the subject of incorporating the North West Territory with Canada, and in doing so spoke at length and made out a good case. After some debate, the discussion was adjourned. The resolutions on the Intercolonial Railway were reported and the Bill on the same was introduced. The Commercial Bank Bill was read a third time and passed.

THURSDAY, 5TH.

The debate on North West was resumed. Mr. Thompson urged delay.

Mr Magill spoke warmly in favour of the project. He said the people of Ontario had for many years given attention to the subject, and he considered the present the most suitable time to take action. Dr. Parker, Mr. Connel, and Mr. Joly, spoke at some length, against the measure. Mr. Harrison, in an able speech, urged the adoption of the Government policy on the North-West question. After pointing out the extent and agricultural capabilities of the country, he showed how the United States attracted immigration by means of its fertile prairie lands, and that the possession of the North-West would enable us to compete on fair terms in that matter. At present we have but forest lands, which deter the poorer class of immigrants. The moral power we would acquire by possessing a country half the size of Russia would be very great, and delay would be dangerous, as the Americans were eager to get hold of that country—aye, and no doubt, willing to pay well for what we were to get for very little. Mr. Langevin said expenditures incurred in such enterprises were repaid indirectly, and Lower Canada was not now opposed to Western extension. Messrs. McKenzie and Morris spoke strongly in favour of the measure. The speech of the former was a patriotic and statesmanlike utterance, aad was deservedly cheered.

FRIDAY, 6TH.

The consideration in committee of the Resolutions in reference to the North West Territory was resumed, and the first three resolutions were adopted without discussion, but the fourth gave rise to a lengthy discussion on the general merits of the question. Mr. Mills took exceptions to resolutions 4, 5, and 6, which seemed to admit that Canada had no right to this territory, as formerly claimed. Mr. Blake held that the resolutions were sprung upon the House, and then proceeded to argue on general grounds against them Mr. McDougall replied in a vigorous and effective speech. He said M. Blake's views were not those of the people of Upper Canada, or any considerable portion of them, and he was surprised at such views being expressed by a member of the Liberal party of Ontario. He denied that the Government was prepaired to admit the right of the Company to demand a large sum of money from the people of this country. On the contrary, the Government denied the legal claims of the Company to that portion of the Territory fit for setlement. He argued, moreover, that the true policy was not to leave any portion of that country under the sway of the Monopoly. He dreaded the effect of delay; and, as to expense, he held that the incorporation would prove to be a profitable thing for Canada. After some further debate the remaining resolutions were passed.
