CAITHNESS-SHIRE.

The shoals of whales at present off the Wick coast are larger than have been seen there for many years.

A young man, Mr. William S. Southerland, son of Mr. Donald Southerland, Wick, was drowned while bathing near the shore.

DUMFRIESSHIRE.

A man named Clenachan, and his wife, recently died at Kelton, on the same day, almost within an hour of each other, the former at the age of 92, and the latter 94 years, having been 67 years married. They were buried in the same grave.

The Dumfries Burghs are being contested at present by Mr. Jardine, of Castlemilk, Dumfriesshire, and Mr. Nole, a son of the late Rev. Baptist Nole, The former on being asked once whether he had not an opinion of his own in reference to the disposal that should be made of the revenues of the Irish Church, in the event of its disestablishment, replied "At the present moment I cannot say."

FIFESHIRE.

A Kirkcaldy sawyer, named William Young, committed suicide by hanging himself from the couplings of a coal cellar, with a piece of clothes rope; he had been drinking some time previously.

A public meeting for the purpose of originating a memorial to Alexander III., King of Scotland, was held in the Town Hall, Burntisland, on Monday—Roger Sinclair Aytoun, Esq., M. P., in the chair. Mr. George Seaton, advocate, Edinburgh, moved the first resolution, viz;—That a tablet, Celtic cross, or a cairn be erected to the memory of Alexander III., on the 'King's Rock,' at the spot to which the King's body and horse are believed to have rolled after falling over the cliffs above. Mr. Seton, referring to the genealogical connection of the present Royal family with Alexander III., said he believed that the Queen could not but feel a great interest in the movement and might become a subscriber to "the memorial." The resolution was carried unanimously. A large and influential committee of management was appointed. Mr. Robertson and Sheriff-Clerk Barclay of Cupar were appointed joint-secretaries, and Mr. Kidd, banker, treasurer. A design has been prepared by Mr. Stewart M'Glashan, sculptor in a form of a Celtic cross. A small sum has already been privately collected, and it is proposed to accept contributions from one shilling upwards. It is proposed that on one side of the cross there should be inscribed the lamentation for King Alexander's death, found in "Wynton's Cronikell," and on the other the tradition respecting the manner in which his death occurred.

RENFREWSHIRE.

It is a curious fact that while not forty persons in Glasgow have voluntarily paid their poor rates so as to entitle them to a vote, no fewer than 360 working men in the neighboring, and much smaller town of Greenock, have paid their rates, although they had not been assessed. This is accounted for by the eager determination shown by the working men of the latter town to elect Mr. Christie as member of Parliament.

A number of lads from Paisley were strolling about the property of Mr. William Fulton, at Gleniffer braes, when one of them fell over Craigie Linn, a distance of 30 or 40 feet, and was killed.

ENGLISH NEWS.

The trial of Madame Rachel was opened at the Central Criminal Court, London, on the 20th ult. Mrs. Borrodaile, the plaintiff, while giving her evidence, declined to state her age, considering the request to do so impertinent. The jury failed to agree. Eleven were for conviction, but the remaining one, who is said to be personally related to Madame Rachel, was for acquittal. The case was remanded for a month.

The annual meeting of the British Association for the advancement of Science, was opened on Thursday, at Norwich. This is the thirty eighth meeting of the Association, and is under the Presidency of Dr. Hooker, the eminent botanist. The chief subject of the President's inaugural address had reference to Botany, but in the course of it he showed that he is a convert to the theory of the origin of species propounded by Dr. Darwin, and he at the same time boldly averred that scientific men were now generally of that opinion.

A colonial society or club, representing the different British colonies, has been formed in London.

A meeting in his interest was held on Saturday, at which about 7000 were present. The proceedings, were, however, interrupted by a mob of Irish Catholics who charged the platform and dispersed the speakers.
