Fall of 1872. MAMMOTH HOUSE, GEORGETOWN. Fall of 1872.

McLEOD, ANDERSON & CO.,

Have $100,000 worth of the Cheapest, Choicest, Best Assorted, Heaviest, Best Wearing, and Most Satisfactory Stock of

Dry-Goods, Clothing, Millinery, Mantles, Carpets, and Boots and Shoes,

THAT EVER WAS PILED TOGETHER IN ONE HOUSE IN CANADA.

The above we assert, and can convince the most sceptical if they give us one call, and see the immense piles of Goods and extreme lowness of prices. We have been anticipating the great advance in prices; so we made large contracts early for this Fall's Goods, thereby saving 25 per cent, and now we can offer Staple Goods in all Departments at the lowest prices they ever were in Canada. We beg to call special attention to a few of our leading Departments in our Establishment; it has been superintended with energy, taste and great discrimination, hence its immense popularity. Any lady can safely leave her orders and they will be promptly and cheaply attended to. An immense Stock of Shawls in this Department OUR CLOTHING DEPARTMENT is under the able management of MR. ISAAC CLARK, just admitted a partner into this Establishment. Everything in the shape of Gents' Furnishings, such as Neck Ties, Shirts, Collars, Hats, Caps, Ready-Made Clothing, and stacks upon stacks of West of England Broad Cloth, Doeskins, Canadian Tweeds, and the choicest novelties in Cherbrook and Patent Manufacturing Company's Trowserings. Further, our Cutter, for Ordered Clothing, is the champion of the Dominion for style and graceful fitting garments. Suffice it to say that this is one of the most complete Clothing Departments to be found anywhere, and all parties can safely trust us with their orders. SPECIAL.—We import a large lot of our Ready-Made Clothing, among which we have Boy's Tweed Suits, Knickerbocker, Sailor, &c. The above goods are considerably cheaper than we can make them in this country. There are a great many other lines of goods we should like to particularize, but where there are so many cheap goods a few must suffice. Flannels at old prices, Blankets not advanced, Dress Goods—the nicest and choicest ever shown. Black and colored Silks at less than wholesale prices, Carpets at same prices as when wool was 30 cents per pound, Prints, Cottons, Tickings and Linens at extremely low prices. We return our most sincere thanks to the public for the immense patronage bestowed upon us for the last year and a half. Our motto is cheap goods and no second price. The Mammoth never had such a large, cheap, nicely assorted and varied stock of Dry Goods, and was never in a better position to please and suit their ever increasing customers, being convinced that it would be a great advantage to the public, we most respectfully solicit a large share of their patronage this fall.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY.

SECOND GRAND GIFT CONCERT.

Day of the Drawing Fixed.

No Postponement from September 28.

To the Public.

The Trustees of the Public Library of Kentucky being satisfied from the large sale of tickets already made, and the daily increasing demand for them, that there will be no occasion for postponing the second drawing in the Gift Concert in aid of the Public Library of Kentucky, have instructed me, as their agent and manager of the Gift Concert, to say to the public and ticket-holders that the drawing will positively take place on September 28th prox., and will not be postponed. An active demand for tickets comes from every State and Territory of the United States, and from the Canadas, giving assurance to the Trustees that no circumstances can prevent a drawing at the appointed time.

A sufficient clerical force is engaged to keep up with the orders for tickets, and in order that this office may be relieved of the immense pressure incident to the business for the week or two immediately preceding the drawing, agents especially, and those desirous of procuring tickets, are requested to send in their orders immediately, as sales will have to be closed in time to make the necessary preparations for the drawing. It is the wish of the management to fill every order for a ticket, as well as to sell all the tickets, but those who apply first must first be supplied; and, if those who put off buying until sales are closed, have their money returned, instead of the tickets ordered, as in the first Gift Concert in December last, when thousands of dollars that came too late were sent back, they will have none to blame but themselves.

The First Election under the Ballot.

The first election under the ballot took place at Pontefract, when Mr. Childers was returned by a majority of 80 over Lord Pollington. The Telegraph remarks:—Victory has declared itself for the Liberals in the first election held under the ballot. Mr. Childers is seated, and we accept the fact as of the happiest augury. Meantime, from the earliest hour of the poll yesterday at Pontefract, it was made clear that whoever won or lost, the cause of order at least was being triumphantly vindicated by the ballot. The news from the scene of contest became amusingly monotonous. "All is quiet"—"The town is tranquil—it may even be called dull"—"There is no more turmoil or gathering there than would be caused in London by the falling of a cab-horse." Such were the messages which reached us, in place of those familiar and contradictory figures which from hour to hour were wont to show how the fight progressed. Pontefract was not the place to have passed a dry and dull day, with a contested election to engage and embroil it; but then how can people get up demonstrations without facts to go upon? and where is the use of smashing windows, and "rallying to the poll," when all is as secret and dubious as the events of to-morrow? The issue of the contest is important enough, but what strikes us with the greatest satisfaction is to see how plainly—during the time of voting—the ballot does lead to the "tranquility" hoped for in Her Majesty's prorogation speech. This welcome change will bring many and many a timid voter to future polls, and we shall obtain with ever-increasing certainty at each general election the true opinion of the country.—Meantime, the attempts made to anticipate the result, and the evident uneasiness of local "roughs" at the unwonted calm, are proofs of impotence which enhance our satisfaction at the change. Of the political issue we shall speak when the facts are all reported: the election itself was a victory of sobriety over disorder, and we may be confident that the more the ballot is applied the better it will work.

THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS.

The Bridge of Sighs connects the palace with the public prison. The latter was erected in 1589, and the bridge in 1591. A single arch supports the structure, which connects the second story of the palace with the second story of the prison. It is simply a corridor divided by a partition into two narrow halls, through one of which political prisoners were conducted to imprisonment, while the common criminals passed through the other. Externally the Bridge of Sighs has no particular architectural merit.—It has acquired a gloomy notoriety from its name, and from the prevailing impression that the man who traversed it from the palace to the dungeon never returned. This is in part romantic, but for the significant reason that this palace, unrivaled in its elegance, contained gloomier dungeons within its glittering walls than the other prison could parallel. The dungeons for political and criminal prisoners awaiting execution—for this distinction is represented in the very architecture of the palace—were quite near the entrance to the Bridge of Sighs. There are two tiers of these dungeons, one above the other, consisting of ten each, with a floor between constructed of heavy stone masonry. Those for criminals were above, and those for political offenders were below. They are arranged in blocks of five, side and side, the blocks being end to end. A narrow unlighted hall passes around three sides, the dungeons being entered through a low arched opening from the two halls opposite each other. After passing through this opening with a torch to light the chamber, the visitor finds himself in a room inclosed by massive stone walls, twelve feet long, eight feet wide, and some eight or nine feet high, with an arched ceiling.—The floors are of cement hardened into stone, and bare of all furniture save a stone pillow set in the floor.—Every dungeon repeats this cool inhuman mockery of a pretended regard for the necessities of the prisoner. A common paving-stone, two feet long, fifteen inches wide, and rising about four inches above the floor, was the pillow offered by the state, in the dark days of the Venetian aristocracy, to political as well as criminal offenders. Two doges, at least—Marino Faliori, in his eightieth year, and Antonio Foscari—were brought to the bitter experience both of the dungeon and of the stone pillow. At the side of each door there is a small round opening through the wall for the introduction of food. The only light was through this opening, and from a small exterior window at the end of another short and narrow hall, which intersected those around the dungeons at one angle. The darkness was substantially total. In this short hall the prisoners were executed at midnight—the political by beheading, and the criminal by strangulation.

On the left, and in front of the Bridge of Sighs, is the water portal of the palace. A double doorway, each barred with bronze doors, gives admission to a broad hall, which passes through to the palace court. It was at this gate that the doge embarked in the Bucantaur, when he went forth in state to the annual ceremony of wedding, with a ring, the Adriatic.—From "The City of the Sea," by L. H. MORGAN, in Harper's Magazine for September.

Hop Circular.

Thursday Evening August 29, 1872

With this issue of our Hop Circular the Tenth Volume is complete, and it is a pleasant duty to congratulate Hop Growers in general upon the success they have met with the past season in obtaining such remunerative prices, particularly as the past few years the majority of growers have not realized enough from their Hop crop to pay them even the first cost of production.

The price of the crop which is about being harvested we at present are not disposed to predict, but in our next, when picking will have become general and a reasonable idea of the extent of the crop can be obtained, we will give our readers an unbiassed opinion of the value of their product.

In relation to the crop in this country, judging by the information we gather, the yield cannot exceed that of last year, as our advices are to the effect that we will evidently produce a top crop, which naturally will not bring forth an abundant harvest, although the quality promises to be fine.

Our market is without change, no noticeable feature having taken place since our last writing, what few 1871's are on the market are of English production, a number of pockets of which have gone into consumption the past week, and in case we have no further imports there is no doubt but that the few remaining will be sold at good values. All quotations for older growths must be considered nominal, as the transactions in them the past week have been very limited. Up to this date there has been received in this market about 25 bales of the new crop, which have met with ready sale at prices ranging from 55 to 75 cents.

Messrs. Schlesinger and Steinkampf, Hop Merchants of this City, were the recipients this day of the first two bales Hops, of the new growth of California, which sold readily at 70 cents.

Our London letter failed to reach us this week.
