THE PARNELL INQUIRY.

Two Exciting Incidents—The Irish Leader's Shorthand Book.

New York, May 13.—George W. Smalley cables to The Tribune:—There were two exciting incidents in the Parnell Commission yesterday in both of which The Times case was profited to a small extent by the voluntary was unnecessary disclosures of Mr. Parnell. The first episode arose through Mr. Parnell's saying he could get certain letters he had written by referring to his shorthand book in the possession of his Secretary, Campbell. The Attorney-General instantly demanded the production of the book, and the President remarked that it was the first intimation that the Court had received that any letter book of Mr. Parnell's was in existence. He ordered the production of the book, to which Mr. Parnell agreed freely, saying there was not the slightest objection to their Lordships seeing every letter he had ever written or ever received. The second incident took place this afternoon. The Attorney-General rose, with the book of cheque stubs which Mr. Parnell furnished yesterday, and read off among a few others, the names of Caffrey and Burke, two Invincibles executed eight months after the Phœnix Park murders for complicity in the crime. Mr. Parnell asked leave to explain. Sir Charles warmly endorsed the request and a hot passage followed between him and the President, in which the latter said they were not there to listen to the private opinions of Sir Charles Russell, and that Mr. Parnell's desires cut no figure in the matter. Nevertheless, the question was permitted to be put, and Mr. Parnell explained that the men were merely taken out of the large number of suspects who were at that time imprisoned throughout Ireland and who were receiving aid. They were not charged with any crime at the time the aid was extended to them, and were in the same position, as far as he was concerned, as a large number of others who were afterwards released. The incident created a storm. Sir Charles Russell left the court room immediately with every sign of extreme anger.

CRAZED BY ILLNESS.

HE SOUGHT RELIEF FROM PAIN IN DEATH.

The Story of the Sudden Death of the Late Assistant Secretary Douglas of the Interior Department.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The cause of the sudden death of Mr. P. B. Douglas, late Assistant Secretary of the Interior Department, has transpired. Owing to the earnest entreaties of the friends and relations of the deceased the facts have been suppressed, but the publication in The Journal to-night of an account of Mr. Douglas' last hours renders further silence futile.

Mr. Douglas was taken ill with a cold a week before his death and was attended by his father-in-law, Dr. Hill. He was also suffering from an inflamed leg, which became serious. A consultation was held and the doctors decided to amputate the limb. Mr. Douglas on the fatal morning had asked the nurse several times to go to bed and showed a strong desire to be left alone in his room. Finally he asked for a glass of water, saying his tongue was very dry and desiring that the water be allowed to run long enough to get good and cold.

When the nurse returned she found Mr. Douglas lying on his right side with what she supposed was an old coat or some covering thrown over his shoulders. She approached him with the water but he did not move. She was surprised and uneasy and went back quickly for a lamp. Returning to the room she saw at once that the bed clothes were dyed with blood. Dr. Hill was immediately summoned. He removed the body with the help of the nurse and servants and partially stripped it, when the wound that had caused death was plainly visible—a deep gash in the throat.

The blood was carefully sponged from the wound, the features and throat washed and composed and properly arranged for placing in the casket. The throat was sewn and the sewing covered with adhesive plaster; over the whole a bandage was placed so that no sign of the death wound could be detected. A razor was found in the bed by the side of the deceased. It was, like the bed itself, covered with blood. After cautioning the servants not to give any information regarding the death. Dr. Hill summoned the undertaker, but he was not allowed to coffin the body. It was coffined by Dr. Hill, the servant, the nurse and a relative of the family. None of the city coroners were informed of the nature of the death.

LATEST TORONTO NEWS.

The Charlton Abortion Case—Escape From Central Prison.

TORONTO, May 13.—Interest in what is known as the Lily Charlton abortion case has been revived by the arrest of Druggist John O. Wood. It will be remembered that it was at Wood's drugstore on King Street beneath the Norman shadows of St. Andrew's church that the alleged crime was committed last December, the story being to the effect that the girl Charlton went there by the advice of a young man named Wilkinson, who acted under the instructions of Dr. Valentine. The girl did not long survive her visit to the drugstore her death being attributed to abortion. Valentine and Wilkinson were arrested; Wood skipped the town. The prisoners were indicted at the Assizes but the Grand Jury returned "no bill" and the case against them dropped. But all the while the arm of the law was stretched out for the druggist, and he was finally captured in Buffalo on Thursday. He had been in Mexico a while and at the time of his arrest was running a drug business in the Bison City. Wood waived all extradition proceedings and is now in Toronto. By an arrangement with the Crown he is out on bail, awaiting his trial on a charge of murder at the Sumner Assize. It will take more evidence than the prosecution had against Wilkinson and Valentine to convict him.

Torontonians—that is to say those who are property holders—are worrying themselves over the by-law authorizing an additional grant of $600,000 for the proposed municipal and county buildings. Already $1,000, 000 has been voted, but the plans and specifications call for the expenditure of half as much more and there is where the trouble comes in. The Mayor and Council are favorable to making a "good job of it" at the increased expenditure but some would be economic papers and persons wish to put a locker on the civic purse, and give no more. However it all rests with the property holders and they will vote on the by-law Saturday next.

There is a good deal of talk over the arrest of Edward J. Dunning, commission merchant, whose residence in 187 Jarvis street. The charge against him is embezzlement, the complainant being John A. McKenzie, who alleges that Dunning appropriated the proceeds of two notes amounting to $350. When arrested he had in his pocketbook, together with a few good bills, a number of "Army and Navy $10 notes," which are used as advertisements, rolled up in such a manner that only the figure "20" could be seen. Dunning awaits his preliminary trial, the prosecution not being ready to go on with the case Saturday.

Carroll Richmond, a convict sent to the Central prison from owen Sound last February for larceny to serve a twelve months' term, escaped from the prison on Friday owing to a mistake made by one of the guards in counting the men. Richmond formed one of a gang of convicts at work at lime kiln, and when work was stopped the guard overlooked Richmond in counting the men. The mistake was discovered when locking-up time arrived, but the bird had flown. He dropped his prison garb and left it on the railway track, and when last seen was circulating through the country in his underwear.

When James young was called in the Police court, charged with bigamy, he appeared rather sad looking and pleaded guilty. The magistrate asked the prisoner if it could be possible for him to have two wives, to which he replied that it was his luck and said, "I didn't marry the second wife; she married me." The case was remanded for a week. Young is the husband of Martha Young, who frequently figures in the Police Court. It is charged that he married a woman named Lydia Turner in Little Boulton, Lancashire, on December 23rd, 1865, that he deserted her, came to Canada and on September 10th, 1885, married Martha Patten, who has been living with him in St. John's Ward when out of goal. Ex-Mayor Howland was a witness of the second marriage and it is said had a hand in bringing it about.

Canada's Railways Lead.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The United States Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce met yesterday. President Smith of the Chamber of Commerce was the first witness. He stated that last year one firm shipped 82,000,000 worth of cotton to the Orient by way of the Canadian Pacific road and by English steamers. Of this Oriental trade he thought the Canadian road carried last year about 90 per cent. Mr. Smith thought that some consideration was given by the road to secure this trade. The Canadian roads, he said, are constantly increasing the amount of their traffic between New England and Chicago to the detriment of American roads. The foreign roads he held should be put on an equal footing with our own. Then we can fairly compete with the Canadian lines.

J. H. Heinck, chairman of the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the New York Produce Exchange, said that during certain months of the year the Eric Canal acts as a regulator in the railroads. If it were not for the Canadian roads it would do the regulating. If the Canadian roads were shut out of the country it would bring a great additional amount of trade to New York and Philadelphia but the rest of the country would suffer. But the Canadian roads should be under the same conditions as the American roads.

John J. Kirnan said the remedy against Canadian competition is not in pooling. Our local traffic is so much better than that of the Canadians that our roads can live where a foreign road would starve. The Canadian roads make up losses on through traffic by high local rates.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

A Sermon on the Evils of Party Politics—Rev. Mr. Wood's Complaint.

OTTAWA, May 13.—The Supreme Court met to-day at 2 o'clock and took up the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway v. St. Theresa. This is a case in regard to the expropriation of land for a gravel pit under the Railway Act in the village of St. Theresa, Que. The amount involved is $4000.

Rev. Mr. Wood of the Congregational Church preached a sermon last evening on the evils of party politics. He also complained that the Governor-General paid much more attention to visiting Catholic institutions in the city than Protestant.

Mr. Chapleau, it is now, to be Promoted to the Portfolio of Railways and Canals.

MONTREAL, May 13.—A gentleman closely connected with the Dominion Cabinet, whose position enables him to know exactly what is going on, said to-day that Hon. J. A. Chapleau in a few days will be transferred from his present portfolio of Secretary of State to that of Railways and Canals, vice the late Hon. J. H. Pope, and that Mr. Charles Carroll Colby, M.P. for Stanstead, will be sworn in as Secretary of State.

"There is no doubt but that this is correct," he added. "Mr. Chapleau is certainly entitled to promotion and would have obtained it long since had his health not been so bad. The position taken by Mr. Colby in the Jesuit debate, his long connection with the party and the fact that he represents the district of the late Mr. Pope are reasons given for his promotion. The Government also selects Mr. Colby so as to give him an opportunity of proving the allegation made by him that the stand taken by the Government on the Jesuit question is approved of by the Protestants of Stanstead and the townships generally.

It is understood that the Government expects to prove by the result of the bye-elections of Compton and then of Stanstead that their policy is approved of by the Protestants of Quebec.

Mr. Chapleau will not need to stand for re-election.

Buried Under a Fallen Wall.

NEW YORK, May 13.—While seven laborers and a foreman were tearing down a building at 151 Spring-street this morning, a remnant of the wall, twelve feet high and eight inches thick, suddenly caved in upon them. A German laborer known by the name of Joseph was frightfully cut about the head and shoulders. George Thomas, foreman, was facing the wall when it fell. Eye witnesses say that he stood as though paralyzed. He did not move from the spot and the wall as it fell struck him full in the face, head and neck. The left side of his face was carried away. His nose was torn off and his eyes were literally torn from their sockets. As soon as the dust had settled and the work of clearing away the bricks began a call was sent out for three ambulances. Before the ambulances reached the spot the man Joseph had been discovered and carried into the street, where he died almost immediately. The foreman was taken to the hospital. At first it was thought the wall had buried a number of other men, but no more bodies have been found.
