The Montreal Herald charges the Dominion Government with having put up Minister Foster to announce a reduction of the tariff a few months ago for the deliberate purpose of securing a lever by which they could coerce manufacturers into making fat contributions to campaign funds. Duties were, it says, reduced in order to enable the Government to squeeze boodle from beneficiaries of the protective system as the price of the restoration of the full measure of protection formerly enjoyed.

W. G. Rose, wood dealer, of Elora, left home on Monday evening to drive to John Maitland's, at Ponsonby, to pay off a mortgage of $1,614.75, which Maitland held. He had that amount on his person. Opposite a piece of bush a highwayman held him up with a revolver and another bound a cloth over his head. The two then took his money, lifted him into a democrat wagon and drove for about two hours, when they lifted Rose off and left him in a bush. Some time afterwards he wandered into Tavistock, where he hired a livery rig and drove home. The robbers told Rose when they left him that he would find his horse and buggy where he was held up, but so far they have not been found there or anywhere else.

On Monday morning at 11 o'clock saw the last of the well-known Sharon poisoning case. Mrs. Evans and Geo. Osman appeared for sentence, and Mr. Justice Robertson sentenced Mrs. Evans to imprisonment for ten years and Osman to imprisonment for two years, Kingston Penitentiary being in each case the place of detention. The Judge was exceedingly severe upon Mrs. Evans, delivering a ten-minutes resume of the case, and describing her conduct in coolly and deliberately plotting her husband's murder as doubly despicable. Had the offender been a man, the Judge stated, he would have inflicted a life sentence, but in consideration of her sex he would make the sentence ten years. Mrs. Evans protested her innocence, and W. G. Murdock demanded a new trial. Mr. Justice Robertson refused the application and the matter rests with the Attorney-General. Osman also protested that if the poison had been administered it had been without his knowledge. N. W. Rowell, Osman's counsel, also applied for a new trial, and was refused. The Judge's remarks upon Osman's conduct were likewise very severe.
