WHEAT SHIPPING [illegible] the price of Manitoba wh[illegible] in New York and Liv[illegible] by being mixed with [illegible] at Port Arthur by steamers [illegible] and that the reputation of the Canadian North-west as a wheat-growing country is injured in consequence. Not is this all. Millions of bushels are smutty wheat is [illegible] and unfit for milling. [illegible] the scouring it receives at Port Arthur before being mixed with the better wheat does not remedy this. The mixing of the wheat should be stopped.

A P. P. A. BOMBSHELL.

Toronto Mail.

With a view of ascertaining the exact facts regarding the recent developments in the order generally known as the P. P. A., and setting at rest certain rumors touching discord in the internal economy, a Mail reporter called upon Mr. E. J. MacRobert, of London, Ont., insurance agent, and a gentleman who current report said was prominently connected with the order in an official capacity. Mr. MacRobert very courteously received the representative, and kindly consented to be interviewed.

"Mr. MacRobert," said the reporter, "you are said to be Grand Treasurer of the Protestant Protective Association of Canada. Is that correct?"

"No," replied Mr. MacRobert, readily. "I am not now treasurer. I was, but tendered my resignation on the 2nd March last, and am now totally unconnected with the association." Continuing, he said: "I desired to be freed of my duties in March, but the executive wished me to continue in office until after the Ontario elections in June, and, finally insisting, my resignation was accepted in July last."

"I presume you did not see eye to eye, Mr. MacRobert, with the powers that be?" continued the reporter.

"I did not," declared Mr. MacRobert emphatically. "Their methods did not commend themselves to me."

"You differed on the matter of policy, then?" pursued the reporter.

"Well, I thought the objects of the association were too narrow, and I could not accept the platform laid down by Madill at Stratford on August 18th. After reading that speech I decided I could never again belong to the association. It contained a spirit of animosity against our Roman Catholic fellow-citizens that I could not endorse. I never could subscribe to such doctrines. Furthermore, at the meeting in Hamilton last January action was taken compelling the members of the order to vote for the nominees of the divisional councils, by which action ten or twelve men control the votes of three or four thousand. That was something that, as an independent man, I could not endorse."

"Then the platform of the order must have been getting narrower and more sectional since you became a member of it?"

"Exactly," replied Mr. MacRobert. "When I joined it contained none of the repulsive doctrines of to-day or I never would have become a member. I understood to be purely a political organization, but it has turned out to be an association formed to ostracise and bycott all men who are Roman Catholics, purely and simply on account of their religion. That is something else I could not agree with, and there are a thousand more who think as I do. These offensive doctrines have been introduced by a clique, of which Mr. Madill is the head."

"Then there is a possibility of dissension being created?" queried the reporter.

"There is," replied Mr. MacRobert. "Matters are by no means harmonious, and are tending towards disruption unless a big change is made in the administration."

"How are the funds of the order, Mr. MacRobert?"

"Well, the order owes me $290, and I have $259 of their money," said Mr. MacRobert, laughing.

The Final Sleep.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—The entombment of the remains of the late Czar Alexander III. took place to-day in the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul. A thick fog enveloped the city, but the populace was astir at the earliest possible hour, and at the same time the troops detailed to take part in the funeral ceremonies commenced moving towards the positions assigned to them. The cathedral was packed with distinguished persons, including representatives of all the Imperial and Royal families of Europe. The funeral service was conducted by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg and by the the Metropolitan of Moscow. The former conducted the Czarina to her place near the coffin, which reposed in state in the centre of the cathedral. The Czar and the Grand Dukes and the members of the Royal families present took up positions on the right of the coffin, and the many military officers in attendance were grouped behind the bier. On the left were the foreign Ambassadors and Ministers and their staffs, while grouped around in different parts of the cathedral were countless delegations from Russian cities and elsewhere, including the numerous delegations from France. The funeral service began at 10.30 a.m. and lasted until about 4 o'clock. More than thirty members of the Royal families of Europe, attended by glittering suites, were present. After the long service, the Czarina, the Czar, and others present took a last farewell of the remains of Alexander III. The Czar then laid the Imperial mantle over the body, and the coffin was carried by the Czar and certain of the Princes to its tomb.

The Czar's Marriage.

London, Nov. 19.—A despatch to The Daily News from St. Petersburg says: It is expected that the wedding of Emperor Nicholas and Princess Alix will take place on Nov. 26, because Advent begins at 2 p.m. on that day. The bride will be conveyed by a grand cortege in State coaches from the palace of Grand Duke Sergius to the winter palace, in the chapel of which the marriage will be solemnized in the presence of only the relatives of the bride and bridegroom. It is not expected that the diplomatic body will be invited. After a short stay in the winter palace the pair will go to Krasnoeselo, where they will reside for some time.

The various Ministers are extremely busy preparing lists of criminals to be pardoned on the occasion of the Czar's marriage. A manifesto proclaiming Imperial clemency will probably be issued on the day after the marriage.

J. R. Sovereign has been re-elected general master workman of the Knights of Labor.

The Situation in the Infantry.

Enquiry was made to-day with reference to the cablegram from London stating that recently an offer was sent to the Home Government placing the Royal Canadian regiment of Infantry at the service of the British Government in the event of complications arising in the far east. Evidently Sir Charles Tupper has not been correctly reported. The nature of the offer was that in the event of the Imperial troops at present stationed at Halifax being required for service abroad, the Canadian infantry regiment would be available to garrison the fort at Halifax. There was no offer to send the regiment out of the country.—Empire.

A Synod for Algoma.

The Algoma Missionary News says: The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the recent meeting of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Algoma:—"That the matter of most vital importance to the well-being and effective working of the Diocese of Algoma is her incorporation, with a synod having all the privileges and powers belonging to the synods of sister dioceses in this Province, relieving thereby the Bishop of the financial burdens of the diocese, and, at the same time, securing to the laity their rights and privileges of sympathy and more hearty co-operation in the work of the church in Algoma."

A Contrast.

Toronto News.

In his London speech on Saturday the Hon. Mr. Hardy told the people of London that, whether they return Essery or Hobbs, their city will still continue to receive justice from the Government. The Globe has said the same thing. The position of the Commissioner of Crown Lands and the leading Liberal organ is exceedingly creditable to both. It affords a marked contrast to the sort of appeal lately made by Federal Ministers to the people of the Maritime Provinces.

Burglars at Mono Mills.

Mono Mills, Nov. 20—Yesterday evening John Harkies went to Orangeville to bring his wife home. They returned some time in the night. Mrs. Harkies entered the house. Her husband, after putting his horse away, found the house door fastened. Forcing in a panel he endeavored to unfasten the door, when he was shot in the arm by someone in the house. The occupants of the house at the time were, besides Mrs. Harkies, Harkies' father and his mother-in-law.

Snow Storm at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Nov. 20—The Ranney was lightered off the Kaministiquia cut last night. This morning she got broadside across the channel and the Empire was aground for some hours trying to pass. A heavy easterly gale, accompanied by a blinding snowstorm, raged all morning. At noon the weather is improving some.

SPORTS.

It seems tolerably certain that Toronto will be taken into the Eastern Baseball League next year. If so, either Charlie Maddock, the Guelph Maple Leaf veteran, or J. C. Chapman, ex-manager of the Buffalo team, will manage that of the Queen City.

Ottawa College defeated Queen's of Kingston, last Saturday in the final match for the Canadian football championship, Rugby game. The score was 7—8.

While giving a sparring exhibition on Friday night, Bob Fitzsimmons knocked out his partner, Con Riordan, so effectually that he never came to time again and died in a few hours. Bob is out on bail. He may never get a chance to meet Corbett.

Toronto Curlers opened the season on Monday evening. They had good ice and a lively game.

The Milton Curling rink is undergoing repairs and will be supplied henceforth with corporation water, from a pipe that is now being put in. Milton Curlers hope for a good season's sport.

Geo. McKerlie and Dan. McLaren, of Nelson, and Archie McGibbon, of Kelso, got home last Saturday evening from Oakley township, Muskoka, bringing with them four fine deer.

It is thought likely that the game laws with regard to deer hunting will be amended during the coming session, either by the prohibition of the killing of deer for a term of years, or that of the use of dogs. The latter change should be sufficient. It would knock out a lot of alleged hunters who would never see a deer if they had to hunt them up for themselves, and who could not do that as they would be afraid of being lost in the bush if they left the roads and trails. It would put an end to the use of buckshot, which is used only by duffers who can't hit a deer with a rifle, and its use results in the wounding of many deer that get away and die in the woods. It would also stop the killing of deer in the water from canoes, which is regarded by many sportsmen as taking an unfair advantage of the animals.

BRONTE.

Geo. Carpenter of this place took a trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y., to see his son William, and while returning met a man on the train who pretended to be a very sociable and honest being, Mr. Carpenter thought so anyhow and told him his name. While this gent and Mr. C. sat talking, another man came in and asked the first man if he could give him a $10 bill for ten $1 bills. He answered, "No, I cannot, but perhaps Mr. Carpenter can change it for you." Mr. C. said he could and produced a roll of bills which he had pinned in his vest pocket, amounting to $75, and made change for him, then put the money back in his vest pocket. The second man, seeing Mr. C. had difficulty in pinning the money in, asked him to let him pin it for him, which he did, and thought it was all right. The two men left Mr. C. then and he did not see them after. This occurred on Saturday last, and on Sunday morning Mr. C. looked in his pocket for the money and found only twenty $1 bills. Therefore he was swindled out of $55 by these two land sharks. No trace of the men is known, but they worked their game O.K. that time, and a man only needs one such an experience in a lifetime to put him on the look-out for the next one that tries his sharp game.

THE WESTWOOD MURDER.

On Tuesday the Toronto police arrested Clara Ford, a mulatto informer, on suspicion in connection with the shooting of Frank Westwood at the door of his father's residence on October 6th. The prisoner is a tall, fine looking woman, and though she gave her age as 32, does not look to be over 25. A search of her room resulted in the finding of a 38 cal. revolver and a suit of man's clothes, consisting of a grey tweed coat, dark cloth vest and pants and black Fedora hat. The evidence upon which the young mulatto was arrested is briefly as follows: The girl lived for a long time in the immediate vicinity of the Westwood place, and was consequently familiar with the locality. She is known to have been acquainted with Frank Westwood; two witnesses swear to having seen her upon more than one occasion prowling in Jameson avenue in male attire, and her landlady says she was in the habit of going on the streets dressed in men's clothes; a 38-calibre revolver, the same sized weapon with which Frank Westwood was killed, was found in her room with two chambers discharged, and it is known that she carried this with her when she went out, as she said, "to protect herself."

The theory of the detectives is that the girl deliberately killed young Westwood for revenge. That it is the old story, but with a difficult ending. They were working on the hypothesis that when Clara Ford lived in Mrs. McKay's cottage, which was only a few yards distant from the Westwood house, she and Frank were intimate. Then the girl disappeared, and according to the story told to Mrs. Dorsay she had been in Manitoba until she arrived at the York street boarding house eight months ago. Since then, they believe, she has been plotting the crime which was carried into effect on October 6. She has short curly hair, and, dressed in men's clothes, would readily pass for a young man, as she has a masculine walk and carriage. Her presence in the vicinity of the Westwood house thus attired would indicate that she was watching for a favorable opportunity to carry her design into effect, and finally hit upon the expedient of calling the young man to the door, having first watched the family retire upstairs. Her escape is easily accounted for. Familiar with the locality, she could readily have run from the front door across the Westwood lawn to Hawthorne street, a fence a foot high alone dividing the street from the grounds. She would emerge just about the spot where Mrs Mackay's cottage stood, and could cut across the vacant land to Victoria crescent and easily escape. Whether or not Frank Westwood knew who it was who shot him, and went to the grave with the secret locked in his breast is of course unknown. If he did, and Clara Ford shot him, this may explain his remarks in his ante-mortem statement that "Mum's the word," and "You can't pump me."

Letter of Thanks.

Toronto, Nov. 16th, 1894.

Misses L. Porter and L. Elliott.

Dear Friends,—The ladies' committee of the "Hospital for Sick Children" beg to acknowledge, with sincere and hearty thanks, the most acceptable and generous gift of 160 jars of fruit from so many friends in Milton. We deeply appreciate the interest which you must take in our work to prompt you to take so much in hand as to collect so many jars of fruit for our little suffering children. We know the Lord will reward you, for hath He not said: "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethern, ye have done it unto me." We have just visited the store-room to see your grand donation; one of our men has been busy most of the morning unpacking it, and found, I think, only one jar broken. I have spoken to the housekeeper and she will have all your jars kept separate, and when empty, how would it do for us to send them to Mr. J. D. Irwin, Canadian Express Co., and have him forward to you at Milton? Will you kindly let us know if you think that will be the best way? To day we have 93 sick children in our wards and about 40 nurses, &c., so you see we have a very large family to provide for. The housekeeper told me to-day that it takes 10 quarts of fruit to serve the whole household for one tea, or about seven quarts for the children alone, therefore this gift from Milton is just exactly what we need. We do wish you would convey our grateful thanks to each kind friend who so generously gave from their winter store of fruit to the little sick ones, and with sincere thanks to yourselves personally for the great trouble you have taken in our behalf. Believe me

Very truly yours,

(Mrs.) Jean Harvie Donald,
Sec'y A.S.C.

Letters received from Tien-Tsin by the Rev. Mr. McKay, secretary of the Presbyterian Foreign Mission Board, report that the British consul there advise all missionaries that if they travel inland they do so at their own risk, as he cannot promise protection. At Tien-Tsin the British have five gunboats and a company of soldiers that ensure the safety of the foreign residents.

A curious fact is mentioned by Byron A. Brooks in an article in the November Arena. It is this: The Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States divided into two sections, North and South, on the question of slavery, over fifty years ago; and today, although a great war forever settled the slave question thirty years since, the division in the church still exists.

An insurance fraud case has come up at Philadelphia, which in some respects resembles the famous Meyers case in New York, and bids fair to remain before the courts as long. H. H. Holmes, alias Herman Mudget, Jephia D. Howe, and Mrs. Carrie A. Pitzel has been indicted. Pitzel, the woman's husband, is alleged to have been "removed" in order to secure his $10,000 of life insurance.

The biggest fire in a quarter of a century at Nottingham has destroyed an extensive block of buildings in the lace market district. The flames broke out on the premises occupied by Brown & Company, who had large consignments of lace ready for shipment to the American market, all of which was burned. The damage is estimated at $750,000. Hundreds of people have been thrown out of work by the fire.

The manner in which a deputation from Swaziland, who came to England to ask the British Government to annex their country, have been treated, is greatly commented upon. The Queen received them kindly, but when they obtained an interview with the Marquis of Ripon, the Colonial Secretary, he ordered them to return at once to Africa, threatening them with the anger of the great Queen if they did not comply.

Rev. Dean Hole in his lecture at Toronto expressed himself as in favor of making Sunday a day of recreation as well as a day of worship. He says: "I am also in favor of having the art galleries, the museums and the public libraries open on Sunday. There is much talk of the continental Sabbath, but while I have seen people indulging in amusements in Europe on Sundays, I have also seen hundreds of thousands of them going to church at 5 o'clock in the morning, a state of affairs that does not exist here."

Later despatches to the London papers would indicate that official confirmation of the Armenian atrocities will not be withheld. After the effort made at Constantinople to hush up the horrible story, Turkey must be prepared to face a heavy reckoning. The utmost caution has been exercised in London about receiving the first accounts at their face value; but this only shows the tone of British opinion, accustomed as it is to face serious business without haste. The whole truth must now come out, and if it is even half as bad as the unofficial statements Turkey will have cause to regret her fanaticism.

Rev. Dr. Mackay, a leading Montreal divine, made the statement at a conference of Presbyterian clergymen last Monday night that there is more destitution this winter among honest working people of Montreal than has ever been known before. The meeting was held for the purpose of organizing to relieve the distressed. The Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks, of Point St. Charles, one of the districts most seriously affected, said the present deplorable state of affairs was due to the depression in trade. Many of the big rolling mills and factories in that section are running on reduced staffs, while the men at work have been compelled to submit to reduction in wages.

The result of the bye-election in London, Ont., on Tuesday was a surprise to both parties on account of the large majority of the successful candidate. The vote was:—Hobbs, Liberal, 3,818; Essery, Conservative, 3,017. Mr. Meredith's majority of 187 last June at the general elections was yesterday converted into a minority of 800 for the Conservative candidate. One cause of Essery's disastrous defeat was his declaration that he was a prohibitionist. The result was the bolting of the brewers and cigar makers, and the loss of 150 votes. in to-day's parade. He bought it because he said he saw one just like it where he used to trade, and they wanted six fifty for it. He imagined it would be cold to-day, as he wears a sort of mother or father hubbard, and he wanted an overcoat that would be "out of sight" under his costume, and still be out of sight as an overcoat, and no house in the could fix him up quite so well as we could. He pretty near had a fit when he first learned the price, and when he found his size he had a perfect one. Do you need a fall overcoat? We've got a silk and wool mixed one that'll fit you. It's just $6.50. Look at it.
