THE CHAMPION

MILTON, FEB. 21, 1895.

THE Government is doing everything possible to hasten the completion of the printing of the voters' lists, and is sending many of them to outside job offices with that object. However, it is not considered likely that they will be ready before the end of March. It may be taken for granted that the election will come on within the following month.

GEN. BOOTH, the head of the Salvation Army, wants the Ontario Government to grant that organization a tract of land for a Salvationist colony. There are several objections to this, either of which should be sufficient to cause the general's modest request to be refused. In the first place there is too much sectarian strife in Canada as it is and a sectarian colony, for that reason, is not desirable. Secondly, Canada has imported too many English paupers and criminals already and wants no more. Thirdly, Gen. Booth holds the titles in his own name of all the real estate normally owned by the Salvation Army. When he dies it must go to his heirs, and however safe it may be while in his hands, it is possible that it may not be equally so when they get hold of it.

Shot Wife, Niece and Self.

Tottenham, Ont., Feb. 16.—Robert Newbury, a retired farmer, this morning shot his wife and her niece and then blew out his own brains. The wife is dead, but the niece will recover. Newbury was a man of 75. The murdered woman was his second wife, and his junior by 30 years. For some time past he has been in ill-health, and at times melancholy. This morning he seemed absorbed and depressed, and followed his wife around as she went about her household duties. Mrs Newbury was arranging clothes in a bedroom bureau when Newbury entered the room and took deliberate aim and shot her. The ball entered the back of the head, plowed through the brain, passed out of the forehead and embedded itself in the wall. The woman must have dropped to the floor dead instantly. His niece, alarmed at the shot, went to see what was the matter. Newbury met her, and, seeing the revolver in his hand, the girl ran into the garden. Newbury followed; the girl turned and piteously pleaded with the now thoroughly crazed man not to kill her. Tears and plaintive entreaties had no effect, and the wife murderer put a ball into his niece's body. The shot took effect in the hip, embedding itself against the jaw bone. Turning rapidly on his heel, Newbury re-entered the house, closed the door, then placing the revolver to his temple, blew out his brains. He was found a minute later by neighbors, who had heard the shooting; he was then alive, but expired within half an hour. The tragedy was evidently premeditated, for on Friday evening Newbury had given his watch to a friend, with instructions to keep it until he would call for it. The murder would have been committed at an earlier hour had not a neighbor called Mrs. Newbury after breakfast, and remained until a few minutes prior to the shooting. Newbury came to a farm near Penville, Tecumseth Township, County of Simcoe, from Kentucky, about 20 years ago. It was a 50-acre farm, and, having been engaged in growing tobacco in Kentucky, Newbury set apart a small part of the farm for that purpose. Newbury was the first man to start tobacco cultivation in the neighborhood, his venture occasioned quite an interest and he in consequence became well known. His wife died about 15 years ago and he married a Miss Martin, a member of a family of large connection in that vicinity. He had no family by either wife. About nine or ten years ago he sold his farm and took up his residence in Tottenham, where he bought a comfortable home, and has since lived a retired life. The young woman referred to as his niece is a niece of his wife, and has resided with Newbury for several years. About three years ago Newbury had a protracted illness, and has been rather under the weather since, and has been living a sedentary life. It is supposed that brooding over his illness rendered him temporarily insane, as he had always been regarded by his neighbors as a good living and church going man. Deceased was between 65 and 70 years of age, stoutly built, and of a rather retiring disposition. He was, however, a very determined man. Newbury was an attendant at the Presbyterian church. He is believed to have been worth $8,000 or $10,000. His wife was 45 or 50 years of age.

Rev. F. L. Osler Dead.

Rev. Fatherstone Lake Osler, one of the most eminent of the Anglican clergymen of the past generation, died at his residence, 83 Wellesley street, Toronto, on Saturday afternoon, in his ninetieth year. For the last fifteen years Canon Osler has been a resident of Toronto, having retired from the active work of the ministry in 1882. He had been an invalid for several years, and death resulted from the decay attendant upon old age. To the last his mind remained clear, however, and it was in calm and peace, surrounded by the members of his family, that he crossed the bar. Canon Osler was born in the year 1805 at Falmouth, England. He entered the Royal Navy when a lad and served for thirteen years, leaving the service with the rank of lieutenant in 1830. He entered Cambridge University and graduating took the degree of M.A. He was ordained deacon of the Church of England by the Bishop of London, and in company with his brother, the Rev. Canon Osler, of St. John's Church, York Mills, came to Canada the following year. Rev. Featherstone Osler was ordained priest by the Bishop of Quebec on landing in Canada, and the two brothers proceeded to Upper Canada as missionaries. For a short time the deceased took up his residence at Newmarket, but upon the completion of the parsonage at Tecumseth he entered upon the work there, and labored in his charge for 20 years. It was during a time of trouble and uncertainty that Canon Osler began his ministry, and the old military instinct led him during the rebellion of '37 to drill the irregular troops raised at that time. When the excitement of the rising died away Canon Osler took up the duties of his parish, which at that time embraced what is now South Simcoe and a portion of North Simcoe. He was rural dean of the district for many years, and canon of the Cathedral of Niagara Diocese. During his residence at Tecumseth Mr. Osler did much toward church extension, and many of the churches throughout the Simcoes were the direct result of his labors. In 1857 he was appointed rector of Ancaster and Dundas and labored there till failing strength forced him to retire in 1882. Canon Osler leaves a widow and six sons and two daughters. There are no more distinguished Canadians, so far as native merit confers distinction, than Mr. Osler's sons. They are Mr. Justice Osler, B. B. Osler, Q.C., E. B. Osler, Dr. Wm. Osler, the eminent professor of Johns Hopkins, whose services were recently sought as President of McGill; F. L. Osler, of Qu'Appelle, and E. Osler, of Winnipeg. Mrs. A. E. Williams, of Toronto, the daughter with whom Canon Osler lived, is president of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England in Canada. The other is Mrs. C. A. Gwyn, of Dundas. There are 23 grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Canon Osler resident in all parts of the Dominion. —Globe.

A Huge Army

(Chicago Canadian-American).

There are 9,750,000 men available for military service in this country. Of these 116,889 belong to the national guard. There is not a country in civilization outside of the United States that can furnish such an army with the single exception of Russia. This was what Gladstone thought of when some ten years ago he wrote predicting the power the United States would attain in future.

The Toronto World says that the students are making a stupid blunder if they imagine the public is in any way dependent upon their securing a college education. As a matter of fact over-education appears to be more of a detriment to Canada than otherwise. As for the Government and University authorities, they have quite made up their minds to close up the college, if necessary, to give the professors a holiday, to hold no examinations, and wait till the young men come to their senses.

A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday at Ottawa. No decision was arrived at with regard to the question of the dissolution of Parliament. Another Cabinet Council will be held to-day.

Sir William VanHorne was probably right when in sizing up the industrial situation he said: "People haven't money to spend; the price of every staple of trade is down and railway earnings have naturally fallen off. In the Manitoba Legislature on Monday night Attorney-General Sifton discussed the school question, taking the ground that the Dominion Government has no more right to interfere with the Manitoba schools than with the Manitoba railway policy. He contended that the schools were purely non-sectarian, and pointed out that if the semblance of religious exercises now adopted were abolished it would give the Roman Catholics a real cry against the system as being godless.

In the manslaughter charge arising out of the recent G. T. R. accident at Agincourt, which was heard before Magistrates Wingfield and J. C. Clark (Unionville) on Tuesday afternoon, Albert Weighill, station-agent at Unionville, was committed for trial at the May Assizes, bail being granted, himself in $4,000 and two sureties of $2,000 each as before. Evidence was given by Richard Boundy, conductor of the express; Rob. J. Stripe, train despatcher, Lindsay, who swore that the block system has been in operation on the G.T.R. in reference to snow ploughs for eight or ten years; George Mimms, driver; Phillip McCabe, fireman, and James Topley, brakeman. Mr. Robinette is watching the case on behalf of Weighill.

Chief Justice Armour has given judgment in an insurance case, holding that a man cannot by his will deprive his wife of the benefit of an insurance policy made to wife and children, and transfer it to his children, but that he can by an instrument in writing, other than a will attached to or indorsed, or indentifying the policy by its number, transfer the benefit from the wife alone to the children alone or vice versa, or vary the apportionment the wife and children are to receive. But he also held that where a policy is made payable to the wife alone the husband cannot by will vary its terms. The distinction between "a will" and "an instrument in writing" is one of the subtleties of language cognizable only to the legal mind, and which prove such mines of wealth to lawyers.

The petition in the Haldimand election trial was tried yesterday at Osgoode Hall before the Chancellor and Mr. Justice MacMahon. Col. Clarke, the Clerk of the House, and Geo. E. Lumsden, Assistant Secretary, were examined as to the election having been held and the appointment in 1890 of John Senn as issuer of marriage licenses. His resignation subsequent to the election was also put in. Andrew Williamson, of York postoffice, Oneida, was called to identify the signature of Mr. Senn to the various documents put in relating to his resignation. On hearing the evidence on this point and Mr. Senn's disclaimer, and the petitioner not offering any evidence on the other charges, the court unseated Mr. Senn and declared the riding open for a bye-election. As the matter went off on technical grounds, counsel for the petitioner did not ask for costs. E.F.B. Johnston, Q. C., appeared for the petitioner. Wm. Laidlaw, Q. C., for Mr. Senn, did not oppose the proceedings. The report of the judges will probably be made at once and the writ for a new election issued.

SUDDEN FUNERAL.—A most unexpected death happened last Friday. The wife of Mrs. Nelson, of Garafraxa, was buried for that afternoon, and funeral collected, notwithstanding the weather. The hearse could not be in place, so the body was put in a vault and a start made. When it came across the fields to the Beltline nearly all present were more or less wet, and the procession took the body back, where it lay till Sunday, when it was buried in the Elora cemetery. We remember of such a case before. The roads and weather both dreadful and Christmas was respected by early settlers of Garafraxa.—Mercury.
