The Alaskan boundary award is additional proof of the fact that Great Britain has more desire to cultivate the good opinion of the United States than to stand up for the rights of her greatest colony. Though British connection may not be endangered Canadians may well ask themselves what they get for it. The only nation with which Canada would be in any danger of having trouble if she were an independent nation would be the United States. She could avoid threatened trouble by granting all Yankee demands, and as it is Great Britain does this for her. She might as well do it herself.

The Mail and Empire says that the surtax upon the German goods imposed by the Canadian Government is a failure. It says:

"The added impost which was laid on as a retaliatory measure against Germany is not taken from the Germans, but is added to the price Canadian consumers have to pay for certain German articles."

The consumers always have to pay the duty, though this is a fact which protectionists do not like to admit. The admission of the Mail and Empire, which has so long argued the other way, should settle this point.

The Acton Free Press speaks sarcastically of Milton's new pavements and the delay in their construction. It says: "As usual, Milton is slow." It is true that it would have been better if the pavement contract had been closed earlier in the season, but the town is not responsible for the delay in the completion of the work. The walk will compare favorably with any in Acton. If payments as wide as our new one were laid on Acton's narrow main street the roadway would be too contracted to allow four-wheeled vehicles to pass each other. The trail that would be left, however, would do very well for equestrians or for freight-carrying in wheelbarrows and push-carts or on pack animals. The village might get along very nicely with it.

Our Rights Sacrificed.

London, Oct. 20.—In consequence of the attitude maintained by the Canadian commissioners Lord Chief Justice Alverstone decided this morning not to hold the proposed public meeting of the Alaskan boundary commission, but to hand its decision to Messrs. Foster and Sifton, respective agents of the American and Canadian governments. The Canadian commissioners not only declined to sign the award, but said they would publicly withdraw from the commission. They, as well as all the Canadians connected with the case, are very bitter. Telegrams from Premier Laurier and other prominent persons in Canada show that this sentiment is shared generally throughout the Dominion.

The engrossed copy of Alaska award was signed at 2 p.m. The Canadians declined to sign the award.

The Alaskan award gives Lessard island, the Portland canal gives the United States Pearse islands, Kannaguna island in Portland canal, commanding the entrance of the Portland channel and the ocean passage to Port Simpson, and destroying the strategic value of Wales and Pearse islands, which are given to Canada. The mountain line adopted as the boundary lies so far from the coast as to give the United States substantially all the territory in dispute. The line completely clears all the bays and inlets and means of access to the sea, giving the United States a complete land barrier between Canada and the sea, from the Portland canal to Mount St. Elias.

Around the head of the Lynn canal the line follows the watershed, somewhat in accordance with the present provisional boundary.

Messrs. Jette and Aylesworth, the Canadian commissioners, made a statement regarding the award as follows:

"The decision of the Alaska boundary has been given, and it is very much as I anticipated it would be. The character of the judgment, critical as some explanation from us will enable you to comprehend fully the matter, and their interests have been kept warm. We take up the points of the award in chronological order, which they are presented by the treaty under which the tribunal was constituted.

"First, the Portland canal. There are two channels parallel with each other, with four islands between them. The Canadian contention was that the eastern channel should be adopted. The United States contended for the southern channel. On the question of this decision depend the possession of the four islands, Kannaguna, Sumner, Wales and Pearse. When the tribunal met after the argument and considered this question the view of the British commissioners was that the Canadian contention was absolutely unanswerable. A memorandum was prepared and read to the commissioners embodying our views and from it it will be beyond dispute that the Canadian contention in this branch of the case should prevail and that the boundary should be run to the northward of the four islands named, thus giving them to Canada. Notwithstanding these facts, the members of the tribunal, other than ourselves, have now signed, giving two of the islands, Kannaguna and Sumner, to the United States. These two islands are the outermost of the group. They command the entrance to the Portland channel and the ocean passage to Port Simpson. Their loss wholly destroys the strategic value to Canada of the Wales and Pearse islands. There is, in our opinion, no process of reasoning whereby the line thus decided upon by the tribunal can be sustained. It was never suggested by counsel in the course of argument that such a line was possible. Either the four islands belong to Canada or belong to the United States. In the award Lord Alverstone agrees with the United States commissioners, that the islands should be divided, giving the two which possess strategic value to the United States.

"Second, the line northward from Portland channel. Substantially the Canadian contention regarding this line was that there are mountains parallel with the coast, within the meaning of the treaty of 1825, and that the tops of such mountains should be declared the boundary, the mountains nearest the sea being taken. The United States contention was that there are no mountains parallel with the coast, within the meaning the treaty, and that the boundary must therefore be fixed under the provision of the original treaty relating to ten leagues, and so be run a distance of three miles from the shore, including in the term "shore" the heads of all inlets, bays, etc. The tribunal finds that the Canadian contention is correct as to the existence of the mountains within the terms of the treaty; but, the fruits of victory have been taken from Canada by fixing as a mountain line a row of mountains so far from the coast as to give the United States substantially all the territory in dispute. Around the head of the Lynn canal the line follows the water shed, somewhat in accordance with the present provisional boundary.

"We are of the opinion that the mountain line, traced by King, the Dominion astronomer, along the coast, should have been adopted at least so far as the shore of the Lynn canal. If effect were given to the contention that Great Britain had been acquiesent to adverse occupation, deprived herself of her right to claim the head of the Lynn canal, we would have regarded such conclusion as perhaps an open and reasonable justification. No such position can, however, be taken regarding the lines lower down the coast. King's line, running along the coast to the Lynn canal, and the line thence around the head of the Lynn canal, following the water shed, would have given Canada the heads of two inlets, with at least one fine harbor, from which easy access to the interior of the Atlin and Yukon country could have been had. It would not, so far as we have been made aware, have taken any territory ever actually occupied by the United States citizens. It would have given the United States the whole of the Lynn canal, including Skagway, Dyea and Pyramid Harbors, and it would have been, we think, reasonably satisfactory to Canada. Instead of taking the coast line of mountains, a line of mountains has been chosen far back from the coast, clearing completely all the bays, inlets, etc. The mountain line, adopted as the boundary, lies so far from the coast as to give the United States substantially all the territory in dispute. The line completely clears all the bays and inlets and means of access to the sea, giving the United States a complete land barrier between Canada and the sea, from the Portland canal to Mount St. Elias.

"We have not been able to derive any understanding from our colleagues on the commission as to the principle on which they selected the line of mountains, and our discussions on this line have led us to the conclusion that instead of resting on an intelligible principle, the choice of this line has been a compromise between opposing and entirely irreconcilable views of the true meaning of the original treaty. The result of this compromise has, we think, been a distinct sacrifice of the interests of Canada. When it was shown that there were mountains parallel with the coast within the meaning of the treaty, the only logical course, in our judgment, was to adopt as a boundary the mountains in the immediate vicinity of the coast.

"Third. Regarding the general question of inlets, the tribunal finds against the contention of Canada. We are both strongly of the opinion that this decision is wrong, and we have put upon record the reasons for our view in this respect.

"Finally, if the six members of the tribunal had each given an individual, judicial decision on each of the questions submitted we would have conceived it to be our duty under the treaty of 1903, however much we might have differed with our colleagues, to have joined in signing the document which constituted the official record of answers.

"We do not consider the finding of the tribunal as to the islands at the entrance of Portland channel or as to the mountains one a judicial one. We have, therefore, declined to be parties to the award.

"Our position during the conferences of the tribunal has been an unfortunate one. We have been in entire accord between ourselves and have severally and jointly urged our views as strongly as we were able; but, we have been compelled to witness the sacrifice of the interests of Canada. We were powerless to prevent it, though satisfied that the course which the majority was determined to pursue in respect to the matters above specially referred to sacrificed the just rights of Canada."

The Canadians almost openly accuse Lord Alverstone of partisanship. When the article presented them to King Edward at Buckingham palace yesterday his majesty endeavored vainly to induce Mr. Jette and Mr. Aylesworth to say they were satisfied, or that they accepted the situation. But the two Canadians declined to in any way acquiesce with this view. They simply shook hands formally and bowed.

He Learned a Great Truth.

It is said of John Wesley that he once said to Mistress Wesley: "Why do you do that, Kate, the same thing over and again?" "John Wesley, because once telling is not enough." It is for this same reason that you are told again and again that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cures colds and grip, that it counteracts any tendency of these diseases to result in pneumonia, and that it is pleasant and safe to take. London Press Comment.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, Oct. 20. The Daily Graphic says: "It is satisfactory to know that a long-standing dispute threatening the germs of much future trouble has been got rid of, but it is impertinent to pretend that in British eyes complete justice has been done Canada and the empire by the deplorable decision which comes at a time when Imperial sympathies bid fair to work out a great work welding the component parts of the empire closer together."

The Express, in large type, calls the award of the Alaska Boundary Commission The Great Surrender. Canadian Interests Surrendered.

The Mail says: "The award is nothing short of showing to our senior colony a son which the mother country has resented with small pleasure. If Lord Alverstone reflects he will see that he is the innocent means of dealing the heaviest blow to the ties between ourselves and sin beyond the seas suffered by the empire in many years. The commission had better have been postponed until at least one Canadian commissioner had been brought to see the expediency of the policy advocated by Lord Alverstone."

The News says: "The most important thing for the British government to realize at the present moment is the immense gravity of the question to Canada from the danger that the Canadian preference may be swept away by the torrent of wrath against the British. The government should enquire if there is any diplomatic exit from the situation." The News thinks that Canadian feeling could be soothed by negotiation with the United States for a renewal of the regulations admitting goods to pass through this district and secure an outlet at Port Simpson for the new Pacific railway.

The Times, while sympathizing with the Canadian contention, regrets the bitterness with which the decision has been received by the Canadian commissioners. The Times cannot see why the possession of the inlets by the Americans destroys the strategic value of Pearse and Wales Islands, and is glad to have the hotly debated question removed.

Halton Assizes.

The Assize Court opened here on Monday, Oct. 19th, The Hon. Sir W. R. Meredith, C. J. of C. P., presiding, C. L. Dunbar, of Guelph, Crown Counsel.

The docket consisted of two criminal cases, two civil jury cases and four non-jury cases. The court opened at 1 p.m. The grand jury was called and sworn. Two jurors being absent on account of sickness, Messrs. John Stewart and R. J. Campbell were called to fill their places, and His Lordship directed a summons to be issued to compel C. P. Chisholm, of Oakville, to appear at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, 20th inst., to show cause why he did not answer the summons to act as grand juror. He appeared on Tuesday, gave reasons satisfactory to His Lordship and was discharged.

The first case was Bear vs. Thompson. His Lordship struck out the jury. The plaintiff claimed certain chattels sold by defendant under chattel mortgage. Judgment for $40 for plaintiff for damages and allowing defendant $40 costs against plaintiff. J. W. Elliott for plff; G. S. Goodwillie for deft.

Oakville vs. Andrew—Adjourned until next court on account of sickness of a material witness. D. O. Cameron for plffs; Miller & Ferguson for deft.

Elliott vs. Carrique—An action to set aside deed of defendant's (Henry Carrique's) farm to his son, Columbus Carrique. The plff. alleged that the father, against whom the plff obtained obtained judgment some time ago, had transferred his property to his son in order to evade payment of the judgment. Judgment for plff., setting deed aside. J. W. Elliott for plff.; R. S. Appelbe for deft. Henry Carrique and D. O. Cameron for deft. Columbus Carrique.

Bowman, et al vs. Winn, et al.—An action to set aside a deed from deft George Winn to deft. Arthur Winn. Judgment reserved. Masten, Starr & Spence for plff; J. W. Elliott and Wm. Laidlaw, K.C., for deft.

Moore vs. Jackson—An action for specific performance. Venue changed to Toronto by consent. J. W. Elliott for plff; — Weresf for deft.

The grand jury found no bill against Henry Hilson on a charge of rape, alleged to have been committed on a young woman named Stewart, and a true bill against George Forbes on a similar charge. On his trial before the judge and pettit jury Forbes was found not guilty and was discharged. The evidence showed that he had been guilty of immoral conduct, but the charge of rape was not established. It appeared that the young woman in the case, a sister of the one in the Hilson case, did not at first resent the prisoner's conduct and afterward laid the charge with the idea that it would strengthen her sister's case.

Thanksgiving Time.

In this country, and at this time of the year, some of us could not find much excuse for being in a thankless mood. The signs of plenty are all about us, and in the field, orchard and market place the kindly fruits of the earth are displayed in abundance. In the bracing air, in the beauty of the sky, in the dying glories of the maple and the sumach and the sassafras, there is a subtle suggestion that some power is working for us, something quiet, gracious, beneficent, like the kindness of the family circle. This, the true source of the thanksgiving spirit, not the number of bushels of wheat, not the stock market, nor yet the comparison of our condition with that of people in less happy circumstances. The poor and the oppressed of all nations have as good a right to happiness as we, and the contrast should arouse in us only sadness and wonder and desire to do something to lighten the world's burden of sorrow. Whatever is given to us above and beyond the common lot of men is given in trust, that we may follow the example of affectionate care that is shown toward ourselves. Our thanks are due, not so much for food and drink and shelter, as for the divine affection of which they are the evidence.

Oh yet we trust that somehow good
Will be the final goal of ill,
To pangs of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt and taints of blood;
That nothing walks with aimless feet;
That not one life shall be destroyed,
Or cast as rubbish to the void,
When God hath made the pile complete.

Charles Pell, of Oakville, Killed.

Brantford, Oct. 21. A smash occurred at the Grand Trunk yards this morning at 5.30, resulting in the death of one man and the serious damage of a workmen's living car. The man killed was Charles Pell, of Oakville. The train pulled in from Paris this morning with the dining car at the end. It contained some thirty Italians, who were being brought to work on the main line changes between here and Paris. The train pulled into the yards about 5.30, dropping this car at the western end. After taking on several more freights, the train backed out, colliding with the car, which had, through some mistake, continued on down the yard. Several cars were thrown off the track by the force of the collision, and the living car was badly smashed. Pell, who was cook, was engaged in getting the breakfast for the men at the end of the car where the collision took place. He was badly crushed by the falling timbers and instantly killed. His head was literally crushed to a pulp. The rest of the men were sleeping at the other end of the car and escaped uninjured. Pell was an elderly man and has a wife and family living at Oakville. He had a gold watch and $34.20 on his person at the time of his death.

A Remarkable Record.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Higginbotham & Field.

Presentation Party.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Miss Agnes Turnbull on Monday, Oct. 19th, by a large number of friends from the Mountain Sunday School. About one hundred persons gathered, and all received a cordial welcome. After a pleasant time spent in social chat, music, etc., Miss Turnbull was presented with a beautiful clock and the following

ADDRESS:

Miss Agnes Turnbull,

Dear Friend,—As you are about to remove from our immediate neighborhood, from the place that has always been home to you, we find that this is a fitting occasion on which to express our regret at your departure from our midst.

In losing you from our neighborhood we lose one who was always interested in Christian work, and who cheerfully took part in every plan that had for its object the enjoyment of others.

As a member of our Union Sunday School you have ever tried to keep it, what it originally intended to be, a Union school in every sense of the term; and as a teacher you have always faithfully performed your duty, being always deeply interested in the welfare of your class and in the working of the school generally.

We now ask you in behalf of Bell's Mountain Union S. S. to accept this clock, not as a reward, but as a slight token of our regard for you, a memento that may sometimes turn your thoughts to the many friends who hereby wish you much true enjoyment in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the School,

These lines are exceptional values, because we bought them early in the spring before the big advance in prices.

Sometimes it is hard to get large sizes for stout ladies. We have them.

Underwear FOR MEN AND BOYS

We have always had the lion's share of the Men's Underwear business. This season we are going to increase our trade more than ever. Our stock is to hand, with big values.

Men's heavy wool fleeced, 50 to 65c ea
" " cotton " 40 to 50c ea
Men's unshrinkable, wool, extra heavy.....49c each

Outside Skirts

It is so much better to buy a ready made Skirt when you can get one to fit you just as well and save about one-third your money.

None of the tedious process of fitting. None of the uncertainty of planning for your own skirt.

Here you find it in its finished stage just ready for the street. Every idea of fashion's latest productions.

Fine Furs

There is no better value in Fine Furs than you can get at our store.

We sell Black Astrachan Caperines for $4.50 each. It will pay you well to look at these.
