Last chance to see Paradiso at Williams Mills

Bright blue skies, brilliant sun on white sand beaches and frothy surf crashing on rocks. These are the dramatic paintings of the Caribbean from Georgetown artist Antonina Gladkova—the perfect antidote to our damp fall weather.

BRIGHT LIGHT, OIL

Executed in bold, confident brush strokes on large canvases, Gladkova captures the essence of the scene and infuses each painting with energy and movement in her new exhibition at Williams Mills Art Gallery in Glen Williams.

“Having faced the complex task of packing brushes, paints and canvases, and leaving an icy Toronto far behind me, it was bliss to encounter such an extreme difference in nature, colour, and light. I was captivated by the intense deep blue skies and wispy clouds, along with the ever changing pattern of waves on the bright white sand beaches. I hope every viewer can feel the warmth of the sun and taste the salt of the gentle sea breeze as they view this show,” said Gladkova.

Starting with watercolours she soon progressed to oil painting under the guidance of the late George Perdue. Enjoying nature since she was a child, Gladkova works en plein air (outdoors, in front of the subject) and focuses on colour and light. Her work is found in private collections across Ontario.

The show continues to Oct. 25 with Gallery hours, Wednesday to Sunday, 12-5 p.m.

Public meetings set to discuss English and French Immersion elementary programs

Parents/guardians are invited to attend public meetings to learn about the challenges the Halton District School Board currently faces in providing viable programming in English and French programs in some of its elementary schools.

At the meeting staff will present information concerning English and French Immersion program enrolment, the preliminary recommendations of the Program Viability Committee, as well as the process and timelines to gather public input.

All meetings will begin at 7 p.m.:

- | | | |
|----------------|---------------|---|
| • Burlington | Mon. Oct. 26 | Nelson High School (4181 New St.) |
| • Oakville | Tues. Oct. 27 | White Oaks Secondary School (South Campus 1330 Montclair Dr.) |
| • Milton | Mon. Nov. 2 | Milton District High School (396 Williams Ave) |
| • Halton Hills | Tues. Nov. 3 | Georgetown District High School (70 Guelph St) |

For those unable to attend any of these sessions, the presentation and related information will be posted on the board website (www.hdsb.ca) following the meetings.
