The Canadian Champion
MILTON, Nov. 26, 1914.

Major General Sam Hughes announced at London, Ont., last night that if the war is not over by next spring he will take the field himself. The war must then end immediately. The Germans will know it is all up with them and act accordingly.

The war has passed out of its first stage and may be nearing its end. The German plan of entering Paris and overrunning France before the mobilization of the French troops, then turning to the east and defeating a slow-moving Russia, while her navy was to surprise and destroy British commerce, has failed. Germany is now on the defensive and the Kaiser calls on his soldiers to take up "the task of protecting our hearths." Germany is reported to be seeking for peace, knowing that her case is hopeless and that the longer the war lasts the worse it will be for her. She is working for intervention by neutral nations. They can do little for her. She must accept such terms as the allies are willing to give her or fight on and suffer. To secure peace she must get out of Belgium and France, indemnify the allies, pay a huge sum to Belgium, give up Alsace and Lorraine, Schleswig-Holstein and the Kiel canal, and accept exclusion from China. Further conditions touching the German navy and Krupp works may be imposed to end the German menace. Austria and Turkey will have to pay, too. Austria must settle with Russia and Servia. Turkey may be kicked out of Europe.

THE WAR.

Despatches received late last night indicate that the Germans have been decisively defeated in Poland, and have lost not only many thousands of prisoners but enormous quantities of stores and much artillery. One of the trophies secured by the Russians in the southeastern area was Emperor William's carriage, containing his Imperial Majesty's famous fine overcoat. The Kaiser, therefore, came to be spanking for the frontier with his soldiers sans impedimenta. It was not known that he was on the eastern battle front. The Petrograd correspondents of London papers all speak of the capture of many prisoners. One goes so far as to assert that the bulk of two army corps, which were driven south after their repulse at Lowicz, have been surrounded to a man. If this is true, the Russians will bag something like 50,000 men, less the proportion killed. That very considerable numbers have already been taken is indicated by orders issued at Warsaw for forty eight trains to bring in people and wounded. There is no longer doubt that the battle at Lowicz was a German disaster of the first magnitude.

Everywhere the news is at the most cheering kind. The Allies not only hold their own, but in Lorraine and in Belgium advances have been made. French artillery has forced a possible retreatment Arras. The French have which was occupied during the 12 German rush, and has been held ever since.

From Petrograd again come unconfirmed reports that the bombardment of Cracow has been begun. Such reports may as yet be merely intelligent anticipation but the capture of Cracow will not be the least a day larger than necessary. A strange story comes from Leoberg to the effect that the Germans and Austrians in Przemysl have quarrelled over the question of surrender, and are shooting at one another instead of the common enemy. It is added that the garrison is now an ended the question for the time. Przemysl is the Russian name for Prasmysl, a town in Austrian Galicia.

Mrs. David Henderson Killed.

An accident of a most distressing character occurred at Acton on Friday afternoon at the residence of David Henderson, M. P. Based as it does, by which Mr. Henderson lost his life. She was on the balcony leading to one where her boy injured out to walk fallen snow, and in leaning over the railing is the presumed to have made the fatal error of about fifteen feet. The impact caused a fracture of the skull, and death was instantaneous.

Mrs. Henderson, though in her seventy third year, was enjoying excellent health. She returned only a few days ago from a trip to Winnipeg and companied Mr. Henderson. She had been a resident of Acton for forty years. For years she had accompanied Mr. Henderson to Ottawa, and remained with him there during the sessions, and she made many warm friends at the capital. In the Red Cross work he was most active. She was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Henderson was a sister of D. D. Chalmers, of London, and her husband lived in Milton for 70 years. When Mr. Henderson was Deputy Registrar, Henderson lived in Milton. Two sons and two daughters survive, namely, Dr. Henderson, of Winnipeg; Charles and D. M. A. of Toronto; Mrs. Beamsville and Mrs. M. Kennedy, Winnipeg. The funeral took place on Monday, Dec. 2nd, at 2 o'clock, from the residence, all parties attended the service at the house of the deceased, and interment was made in Milton. A very large number of people lost W. F. Jones, K. C., J. P. Sproule, M. Clendenan, D. S. Kennedy, M. Cannell, Dr. Anderson, J. E. Lamb, Dr. J. Henderson, W. Scott, J. Gibson, M. Cannell, Dr. H. Stanley Anderson.

Still Working for the Soldiers

At a recent meeting of the Hornby branch W.M.S. a last and a second shipment for the relief was packed, consisting of 35 pairs sock, 12 pairs wristlets, 6 handkerchiefs, and one scarf. An appeal in aid of the Belgians came to the same willing workers, who promptly responded by sending ten dollars in cash and three large bales of new and second hand clothing, mostly pyjamas, small, consisting of quilts, pillows, women's shoes, men's and women's underwear, shoes and stocking, mittens, caps and other things, too numerous to name.

The next meeting is to be held on Dec. 9th at the home of Mrs. Geo. M. Milan. Every women in the neighborhood is asked to come and help to relieve the sufferings of those in need. Such is womanly work.

WHITE AS A GHOST.

Pale or Sallow Cheeks One of the First Signs of Anaemia.

Pale and sallow cheeks, with blanched lips and gums, and dark circles under the eyes, are the first signs that anaemia has begun its deadly progress. This first warning is followed by great weariness and breathlessness after any exertion. You grow melancholy, have frequent headaches, awake in the morning feeling tired. You become morbid and nervous, starting at the slightest noise, and your heart palpitates violently even on going upstairs. Most girls from fourteen to twenty suffer from anaemia. Neglect to supply new blood to the languishing, bloodless body, means a life of misery—indeed it is an open invitation that most hopeless of all diseases, consumption.

The new, rich blood that cures anaemia and gives new health and strength is readily created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. That is why these pills have cured more cases of bloodlessness and blood disorders than any other medicine. They have made thousands of girls and women strong, well and rosy, with bright eyes and new energy, just because they nourish the body with the new, rich, red blood of health. Here is a typical instance. Miss Laura Dempsey, Auburn, N.Y., says: "For several months I was in a very bad state of health, with many of the symptoms that accompany anaemia. I was pale and bloodless, had terrible headaches, would be breathless at the least exertion. Having tried a number of medicines without relief I naturally became discouraged and began to fear that I was doomed to continued illness. At this stage a friend who had herself been benefitted by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills urged me to try them. I did so and thanks to the pills I am now enjoying the best of health, and feel that I cannot recommend this splendid medicine too highly."

Other weak and ailing girls can also obtain new health and strength through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by mail post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Galt's Fine New Fire Team.

Major and Earl are the names of Galt's handsome new steel grey fire horses, brought to town last evening by Driver George Lohr, of the fire department, and Abl James Daniels. The new fire team is the finest pair of horses in their class in Ontario, and has yet to be beaten in the show ring. They are not new to Galtonians, having been seen here at the Horse show this summer, when they took the red ribbons in the classes in which they were exhibited, and captured one of the cups. The team was owned by the well known Milton horseman, W. N. Scott, and this year was shown by him at all the big horse shows and fairs throughout the province winning no less than 16 first prizes. Among the show at which they were victorious were the Toronto, Hamilton and Galt horse shows and the Toronto National Exhibition. Daily Reporter.

What is a Heifer?

The question is sometimes asked as to the exact age of condition necessary to transform a heifer into a cow. It is really rather a hard question to answer with finality but in a prize list from the agricultural society at Johannesburg South Africa we find a definition. The prize list says the society's definition of a heifer for its show purposes is as follows: An animal (female bovine) shall remain a heifer until she attains the age of three years or has a calf, which ever event first happens.

Ground Fence Wires

Grounding fence wires affords considerable protection from lightning and is a worthwhile investment for farmers.

Hundreds of valuable animals are struck by lightning every summer, many of the casualties being directly due to currents carried along pasture fences.

To secure the best results ground wires ought to be placed about 100 feet apart and closely stapled to the post so as to form a contact with every one of the fence wires. The ground wires should also extend sight ly above the fence post and like a lightning rod, should penetrate the soil far enough to reach moist earth. Number eight or nine wire is most satisfactory for this purpose.

Punishing the Singer

A Freak of the Wireless

Wireless telegraphy works better in the Pacific than on the Atlantic and experts are trying to find an adequate explanation for the fact.

Origin of Old Expression

When William Rufus second of the Norman kings ruled in England he made a law that gave freedom to a man condemned to die, providing the convict proved he could read.

The first verse of the 51st Psalm in Latin was the test. If it was read correctly the magistrate announced that the condemned man "read like a clerk" and he was liberated. He was given the benefit of learning or the benefit of clergy, which in that day meant learning.

THE CHINESE VIEW OF CHRISTIANITY

People Eager to Avail Themselves of Educational Advantages—Change of Faith Said to be Doubtful

To counteract to some extent the attitude of bigotry and prejudice exhibited in the West against everything Chinese, a new Review has been founded in London. It is the "Chinese Review," which is edited by two Chinamen.

Writing of the Chinaman and Christianity, J. Wong Quincey, one of the publishers, says:

There probably has never been any antagonism in China against Christianity itself. Missionaries have occasionally suffered not for their religion, but rather from a misunderstanding of their real purpose and mission, and from acts of indiscretion committed by the missionaries themselves. Although there is no indigenous faith in China that could offer any opposition to the Christian appeal, the Chinese temperament and outlook upon life constitute a serious obstacle to the vital and rapid spread of Christianity.

It can serve no honest purpose to minimize the excellent work achieved by missionary endeavor. The result so far obtained can call forth nothing but admiration. Statistics of church membership, however, are obviously misleading in that they do not offer any guide as to the inward intensity of belief in the case of professed converts. There is no question of sincerity; but it is open to doubt whether the Chinese nature lends itself easily to that mystical abandon and absolute resignation to the supernatural which is the "sine qua non" of a living faith in Christ.

The average Chinese is too wide awake, too tantalizingly calm and self-controlled, too easily satisfied with small mercies, and with the pursuit of the concrete good to be emotionally led away from the steady paths of "terra firma" to soar with uncertain wings.

Of Chinese admiration for the moral tenets and practice of Christianity there is no lack, but it is only a tribute to "what is excellent and lovely, to what is good." To the Chinese mind the supernatural appeal is not so much unconvincing as unnecessary, and the restless attitude of spirit involved in the Christian injunction to "watch and pray" is somewhat irksome and foreign to the easy-going Chinese temperament. All this being granted, the Chinese are exceptionally alert to anything which is calculated to help in the building up of sound character.

Parents and guardians who cannot be suspected of personal leaning towards Christianity are most anxious to send their young charges to educational institutions which are avowedly and aggressively Christian. This openness of the Chinese mind has profoundly influenced the policy of Christian missions during the last few decades. Incalculable good has been, and is being, done by these institutions in the matter of spreading among the educated ranks of China Western ideals which have been inspired directly or otherwise by the Christian religion. It is questionable, however, whether these efforts have been successful in making many real and permanent converts to Christianity.

FOULTRY KILLING KNIFE

Best Instrument For the Purpose Made From Old File

For killing poultry a special knife may be made according to the following directions by a government expert:

The knives in common use in bleeding and breaking poultry are not suited to their purpose. The blades are too broad and too long, and the edge at the point should be on the back instead of on the cutting edge. The handle is so large that the kill is awkward. It is not too much to say that the cut to bleed without a sort touch of the sharp point is directed to a vital spot is needed at the blood vessel. The knives are also unsanitary in that dirt collects at the junction of the blade and handle.

The knife which is to be used to kill and bleed poultry should be small. The fowl is not stiff so that it does not bend of the best steel so that it can be kept sharp and is not a hard wood used in making the handle, and blade should be in one piece. Such a knife, with the aid of one emery wheel or grindstone and oilstone can be made from a worn out file.

To make this knife the handle of the file should first be ground off. Then the blade should be shaped from the shank end of the file. It should be 2 inches long, one-fourth inch wide and one-eighth inch thick at the back. The curve to make the point should slope from the back downward. A blade of this shape renders the blood vessels to be cut more surely than does a blade on which the point curves upward. After the blade is made the edges on the side should be ground down leaving just enough roughness to prevent the knife slipping in the hand of the killer. The length of the knife over all should be 7 inches.

Many women with disfigured complexions never seem to think that they need an occasional cleansing inside as well as outside. Yet neglect of this internal bathing shows itself in spotty, and sallow complexions—as well as in dreadful headaches and biliousness. It's because the liver becomes sluggish, and waste matter accumulates which Nature cannot remove without assistance. The best remedy is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which stimulate the liver to healthy activity, remove fermentation, gently cleanse the stomach and bowels and tone the whole digestive system. Sure, safe and reliable. Take one at night and you feel bright and sunny in the morning. Get Chamberlain's today—druggists 25c., or by mail from Chamberlain Medicine Company, Toronto.
