Nelson Township Religious Education Convention.

The annual convention of the Nelson township Religious Education Council was held in the Methodist Church, Zimmerman, on Wednesday, May 23rd, the president, John Sheppard, in the chair. Afternoon session opened with devotional exercises led by Rev. Mr. Hendershot, Carlisle, followed by an address on the Bible, by Rev. Mr. Cavers, Lowville. He said, "no nation will ever cease to live or be progressive who put their trust in the Bible, for it is the greatest factor which we have in the national life." Zimmerman Sunday School then favored us with some music. The president then gave a report of the year's work and the secretary's report was read and adopted. This was followed by a very interesting address by Rev. J. R. Harris, Provincial Representative. He said, "The great need of Sunday School work to-day is true consecrated leaders. We must have leaders who are willing to see the thing through." B. W. King, of Port Nelson, led in the investigation. Although our township was not a banner one, we were encouraged by the reports sent in from the different schools. We were then favored with a duet from Nelson Methodist Sunday School. After the business committees were appointed Rev. Mr. Hendershot gave a splendid address on "Tuxis Work," explaining the different phases of the work that is being carried on in that department. After the Round Table Conference, led by Rev. Mr. Harris, it was moved by Rev. Mr. Cranston, seconded by Mr. Hume, that a resolution of sympathy be sent from our convention to Rev. Mr. Hamiltan, expressing our heartfelt sympathy in his recent bereavement. The congregation rose and Rev. Mr. Tebbs led in prayer on Mr. Hamilton's behalf. After music and closing the meeting adjourned for picnic lunch.

The evening session opened with a song service and devotional exercises, led by Rev. Mr. Oranston. In the roll call all schools were represented except four. The new president elect for the coming year was then introduced. Then followed an excellent address by Rev. Mr. Tebbs, of Burlington, on "Teachers and Officers of the Sunday School." He said, "the purpose of all Sunday School teachers is to give light and save lives, as a lighthouse. They must also live their teaching and religion. Sunday School teachers are teaching not for time, but for eternity." Miss Bennett, of Zimmerman, then sang a solo very acceptably. Rev. Mr. Harris gave another address, in which he asked, "Are we giving the right instruction to the scholars as they come into our Sunday School?" It's tremendously important that we know the boys and girls whom we are trying to teach. A trio by the Watson Bros. was very much enjoyed by all. A. Bennett, of Zimmerman, then gave a very interesting address on "Temperance Work," which was much appreciated. After singing a hymn together we separated feeling that this was one of the best conventions we ever attended.—Com.

OBITUARIES.

WM. SWACKHAMMER.

Wm. Swackhammer died last Saturday at his home at Palermo, after a paralytic stroke. He was 79 years of age, one of the oldest, best known and respected residents of the neighborhood. Up to a few years ago he was often seen in Milton. He is survived by his widow, three sons, Edgar and Elgin, Hamilton, and William, Toronto and one daughter, Mrs. Tillman, of Hamilton. The funeral was very largely attended.

MRS. W. J. CLEMENTS.

Lucinda Coyne, wife of W. J. Clements, died on Monday at her home on Martin Street. She had suffered for a long time from heart disease, which was the cause of her death. Mrs. Clements was in her 65th year. She was a daughter of the late George Coyne, of Trafalgar, where she was married. For a number of years she had been a resident of Milton. She was a member of the Methodist Church and her death is mourned by a great many friends. She is survived by her husband, two sons, Matthew, of Wilkie, Sask., and George, of Montana, a daughter, Miss Bertha, at home, and a sister, Mrs. R. Graham, of Esquesing. The funeral will take place today at 2 p.m., interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

MRS. ALEX. WILSON.

The death occurred at the home of Mrs. J. J. McIntosh, Milton, on May 29th, 1923, of Margaret A., beloved wife of Alexander Wilson, in her 71st year. She was born in Ireland, coming to Canada in 1870, and was married on May 25th, 1873. Having spent most of her life in Esquesing she came to reside in Milton thirteen years ago. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church, which she attended until ill-health prevented. She was a devoted wife and loving mother, and was held in the highest esteem by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, three daughters and six sons—Mrs. J. E. Hanna, Cedar Springs, Mich.; Mrs. W. M. Blain, Calgary, Alta.; Mrs. J. J. McIntosh, Milton; George, of Calgary, Alta.; James, of Esquesing; John, Robert, Alex. and David, of Milton; twenty-seven grandchildren, one sister, Mrs. A. A. Rockwell, Chicago, Ill., and three brothers, George and William Hanna, of Cedar Springs, Mich., and David Hanna, of Iron Mountain, Ill. The funeral took place from her late residence, Mary St., on May 22nd, and was largely attended. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery. It was her wish to have her six sons as pallbearers, but owing to her eldest son being unable to attend, her son-in-law, J. E. Hanna, acted instead. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. A happy event was looked forward to. Had the deceased lived until May 25th she and her husband would have celebrated their golden wedding.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST HEALER

BASEBALL.

The Milton nine went to Acton last Saturday and lost a Halton League game there through inability to hit the offerings of an alleged ringer, a port side pitcher, whose name was given as Harrington, probably an alias. The game did not begin until about 4 p.m., when Harrington arrived from it is hard to say where. For Milton, Telfer pitched well too, and would have won had not the game been thrown away at least twice by blunders. It went to eleven innings. There was no fault to be found with the umpires, McComb for Acton and J. J. Peacock for Milton.

At Bronte last year's champions defeated Campbellville 1 to 0 in 12 innings. Batteries—Bronte, Pollock, Cotter and Thomas; Campbellville, Early and Lamb.

The Halton League series opened in Milton yesterday afternoon, with a match with Bronte, after an address by Judge Elliot to the players on clean sportsmanship. His Honor had no reason to think that it had not been taken to heart, for a cleaner game was never seen and the best of good feeling prevailed. At the close Mr. Joyce, of Bronte, President of the League, congratulated W. Chisholm, the local manager, on this fact, on the splendid condition of the diamond and the good handling of the large crowd of spectators. Telfer's great pitching won for the locals. He held the visitors down to four hits and issued only two passes. Pollock pitched well too, but the shortage of hits behind him "queered his pitch." Allan led at the bat, with three singles, Chisholm handled Telfer's pitching faultlessly and the pair pulled off two smart stunts when they caught two Bronte baserunners between third base and the plate, by crossing the squeeze play signal. Pollock was one of the victims when he was first man up and made a triple. Had he not been caught he would have scored on a wild pitch, the only one with which Telfer was charged. Pollock batted in Bronte's run. Farlow scored on a single by Allan, Buck on another by McMullen and Stewart on Chisholm's double. Both umpires gave general satisfaction. The Bronte boys are good losers as well as fast players.

Animals in Storms.

I have heard a story of a young artist who, after painting a picture of a horse feeling a storm, was not satisfied with it, and, feeling that something was wrong, asked Landseer to look at it. Instantly the great artist said to him, "Turn the horse around."

The cow turns her head to the storm, the horse turns his tail. Why this difference? Because each adopts the plan best suited to its needs and its anatomy. How much better suited is the broad, square head of the cow, with its heavy coating of hair and it ridge of bone that supports its horns, to face the storm than is the smooth, more nervous and sensitive head of the horse? What a contrast between their noses and their mode of grazing!

The cow has no upper front teeth; she reaps the grass with the scythe of her tongue, while the horse bites it off and loves to bite the turf with it. The lip of the horse is mobile and sensitive. Then the bovine animals fight with their heads, and the equine with their heels.

The horse is a hard and high kicker, the cow a feeble one in comparison. The horse will kick with both hind feet, the cow with only one. In fact, there is not much "kick" in her kind. The tail of the cow is less protection to her than is that of the horse to him. Her great need of it is to fight flies, and, if attacked in the rear, it furnishes a good hold for her enemies. Then her bony stern, with its ridges and depressions and thin flanks, is less fit in any encounter with storm or with beast than is her head.

On the other hand, the round, smooth, solid buttocks of the horse, with their huge masses of muscles, his smooth flanks, and his tail—an apron of long, straight, black hair—are well designed to resist storm and cold. What animal is it in Job whose neck is clothed with thunder? With the horse, it is the hips that are clothed. His tremendous drive is in his hips.

WANTS RESIGNATION.

To Editor of the Champion:

E. H. Cleaver, K.C., has declared in the Toronto Globe that he has not resigned from the executive of the Halton Liberal Association and has explained why he has betrayed that organization by refusing to support its candidate for the Ontario Legislature, Mr. Le Roy Dale.

Mr. Cleaver says "certain Liberals have insisted upon placing in the field as a candidate one whose views and course have not been in accord with such laws," meaning prohibitory laws. He knows well that should the election result in a Liberal government taking charge of the affairs of the province the Ontario Temperance Act will be in no danger. It will not be amended or repealed without a demand from the people. So we must understand that he is acting merely on the principle that he cannot support any but a declared prohibitionist. If so, how did it come that when he was the Liberal candidate in the election of 1919 he followed the leadership of Hartley Dewart? He did not let his high and dry principles interfere with his ambition then, nor did he object to the support of Mr. Dale, who was one of the hardest workers for his election. He wanted and got the united support of the party which he now betrays, asking no awkward questions about the views of any Liberal. He figures now as a horrible example of inconsistency and ingratitude. We can only guess at his motive, but perhaps he hopes that in the event of the Drury government being sustained it will be as kind to him as it has been to other repegade Liberal lawyers.

In saying that "certain Liberals" put Mr. Dale into the field Mr. Cleaver seems to intend to give the false impression that Mr. Dale is the nominee of a small group. The fact is that there were more than thirty prominent Liberals at the meeting at which it was decided to put a candidate in the field and there was no opposition except by Messrs. Cleaver and Fisher.

Since Mr. Cleaver has not had the decency to resign from the Liberal executive his resignation should be demanded. The party will be better and will feel cleaner without him.

DISGUSTED ELECTOR.

FISH LANDED THEMSELVES.

Rush Ashore and Are Caught by Fishermen.

During the great northwesterly gale which ushered in the month of March in Great Britain large shoals of herrings drove into Loch Buy, on the west coast of Scotland, and also into Loch Keal. Next day, when the tide went out, the fish lay in masses among the weed-clad rocks in both estuaries.

Any old fisherman will tell you of similar instances, and herrings are by no means the only fish that come ashore in this odd fashion.

In times of heavy frost many a longshoreman makes a point of walking along the rocks at low tide, with an eye open for cod or conger eels stranded in the rock pools.

Some years ago a wildfowler from Yarmouth, noticing a commotion in a hole near the water's edge, found a huge cod struggling in vain to regain the sea. He took the fish home, and found that it weighed 22 lbs.

At Snettisham, near Hunstanton, on the Norfolk coast, a longshoreman caught in similar fashion a conger which must be almost a record for its species. It was eight feet eight inches in length, and weighed 148 lbs.

Another curious discovery made near Maryport, on the Cumberland coast, was an angel fish, a hideous brute seven feet long, which had stranded itself on the beach.

Whales often drive ashore. In July, 1911, a shoal of pilot whales come into Mount's Bay, Cornwall, and between 50 and 60 of these great creatures stranded themselves on the beach. Some were over 20 feet in length.

There is a record that in the year 1845 a herd of no fewer than 1,540 of these whales came ashore in Quendale Bay, South Shetland, and were all slaughtered. Their value was about 70s apiece.

I have myself seen salmon, spawning in a small pool near the head of the Dart, fling themselves right up on a sand bank when frightened. On one occasion, of seven fish in a pool two got right over into a little backwater and had to be helped back.

In tropic seas, where these fish swarm in myriads, mullet will often jump right into a boat at night if it has a light aboard. Red snapper will do the same thing.

Even in English waters grey mullet sometimes catch themselves. Some years ago a shoal of these fish invaded the Great Western Dock at Millbay, Plymouth. The dock was closed and emptied, and 10,000 mullet, weighing four and a half tons, were caught and packed for the French market.

A Coreless Appie.

Apples without cores or seeds are promised by a discovery announced at Abbotsford, Canada, the particulars of which have just been received by the U. S. Department of Commerce from Consul-General Halstead. According to the announcement, a seedless and coreless variety of Fameuse apple has been developed, which differs but slightly in shape from an ordinary Fameuse by being longer and flatter at the ends, but with the typical coloring and flavor. Except for a slight marking on the flesh which outlines the situation of the core in an ordinary apple, there are neither core nor seeds. The apples were developed in an orchard at Abbotsford, and the discovery that they were out of the ordinary was an accident. They had come from a new block of Fameuse, about eight years old, bearing for the first time in market quantities. The discovery was made while grading for market, but unfortunately no record was kept of the tree or trees producing the new fruit, and it will not be before another harvest that steps can be taken for its commercial develnopmet.

Maritime Union.

Le Canada proposes that as the population of Prince Edward Island keeps declining it ought to be amalgamated with New Brunswick or Nova Scotia. This might revive the proposal for a union of the three provinces, which was under discussion shortly before Confederation and was merged in the later project.

Maritime union would give a province of 51,597 square miles, with a population of a little over a million. Though small in area, it would be the third province in population and representation. It is possible that the united province would gain in influence in the Parliament of Canada, but there would be strong local sentiments against a change which would do away with two provincial capitals.

Rogers escaped into the bush and got away in a stolen boat. In the afternoon he was shot and killed about eight miles from Nipissing. He was taken by surprise as he was washing his hands in edge of the lake and given no time to shoot.

One of The Big Reasons For Closed Car Popularity

ONE of the biggest reasons for the recent great popularity of the closed automobile among all classes of motorists is this Chevrolet Superior Sedan. Its low price and economy of operation have put it within the reach of all and have made it an ideal second car for the man with a large, high-priced car of expensive upkeep.

The tremendous sale of the New Superior Models has made them the fastest-selling, completely-equipped, quality cars in the world. This has meant that production costs have been lowered to such an extent that they are now the lowest-priced quality car in the world.

When it is also remembered that Chevrolet costs less to operate than any other car in the world, its phenomenal popularity is easily understood.

See Chevrolet first.

Premier of Victoria.

From Australia Mr. H. S. W. Lawson, the Premier of the State of Victoria, has arrived in London on his first visit to Great Britain. Ordinarily Australian politicians are of two types. In the anti-Labor parties they are generally men who do not enter politics until middle life, when they have become successful men or farmers. On the other side, most Labor men begin life as artisans and graduate for politics through trade union secretaryships. But "Harry" Lawson does not belong to either of these classes. Like Mr. Bonar Law, he is a son of the manse. His father was a Presbyterian minister at Dunolly (Victoria), and young Lawson set out upon a legal career in a state school. From there he went to the Scots College in Melbourne and later to the university. He is now in his forty-eight year and he has sat continuously in the Victorian Parliament for one constituency since he was twenty-four years of age.

Standing fully six feet in height, clean-shaven, and with clear-cut features, Mr. Lawson still has the build of a rugby forward. At the university he won his "blue" for both cricket and football. Since then all his energies have been devoted to politics—state and municipal—and to the building up of his legal practice at Castlemaire. He is a genial, attractive fellow and speaks clearly and forcefully.

Mr. Lawson's first Ministerial office was as Minister for Lands in Sir Alexander Peacock's Ministry in 1913. Two years later he became Solicitor-General and Minister of Education. He became Premier early in 1918, and has retained that office ever since.

The present Lawson Ministry can best be described in the language of a former member of it. I asked him what Mr. Lawson's new team was like.

"Well," he said, "it is a good Presbyterian Ministry."

How Lord Kelvin Proposed.

A romantic story is told concerning Lord Kelvin's marriage. When the famous scientist was on his schooner yatch, Laila Rookh, in West Indian waters, he got up a system of simplifying the methods of signals at sea. He asked Miss Crum, whom he greatly admired, and who was the daughter of his host, if she understood his code. She said she did. "If I sent a signal," he asked, "from my yatch, do you think you could read it and could answer?" "Well, I could try," she responded. The signal was sent, and she did succeed in making it out and in transmitting the reply. The question was, "Will you marry me?" and the answer was "Yes."
