MEMORIAL WINDOW UNVEILED.

On Friday, last, March 27th, a pleasing ceremony took place in St. Stephen's Church, Hornby, when a beautiful stained glassed window was unveiled in the chancel of this old church, one of Halton county's landmarks. The window was produced by the Lyster Press Company, of Toronto, and was presented to the church by Mrs. Theodore Braun, a lifelong parishioner of St. Stephen's.

The subject pictured is the Ascension of Our Blessed Lord. In the foreground the eleven disciples, together with the Virgin Mother, are gathered. On the other side is the hill called Calvary, with its three empty crosses, on the other the tomb in which the Saviour's body had been placed after His crucifixion and death. The Saviour is seen at the act of ascending from the earth and from the apostles. The whole subject is carefully drawn and [illegible] with colors selected with [illegible] good taste. There is much [illegible] in the events here portrayed, and the window will doubtless lead many to the contemplation of many a [illegible] in this church, that [illegible] years will [illegible] service in this [illegible]. The window was dedicated [illegible] and received [illegible] Rev. Canon Greene, of St. Stephen's. There was present the members of the Cowan family, the Braun family, the Bissell family, the Cullingham family, the Cunninghams, and many others who a hundred years ago came to this county to carve out for themselves homes in the wilderness. It was early remembered to erect a place in which to worship the God of their fathers as they had learned to do in their old home land.

The service on Friday afternoon was conducted by the rector of the parish, Rev. Dr. Kaye, assisted by Rev. P. J. Moyer, of Georgetown, Rev. H. O. Hemming, J. Munro, sang the first hymn in this parish from 1861-1866, and Rev. Canon Bland, of Toronto, Rev. Mr. Tremayne delivered the address, fitting reference to the early settlers and their loyalty and devotion to the Church of England. A large congregation followed with close attention the proceedings, and many were present who remembered the late John Braun, for many years warden of this church, Mary Bedson, grandfather of Mrs. Cowan, who gave the land for a cemetery to build the church upon, W. J. Braun, Toronto, H. J. Nelson, of Buffalo, and others.
