LOS ANGELES, CA: Not to be outdone by their Asian and European counterparts, domestic automakers made quite a splash as new vehicles were unveiled at press days for the 2015 Los Angeles Auto Show.

Cadillac took the wraps off its eagerly awaited 2017 XT5 midsize luxury SUV, a replacement for the popular SRX model.

The XT5 will be the cornerstone in a new series of crossovers in the brand's ongoing expansion. The crossovers will wear the "XT" designation in Cadillac's new naming system.

This is a completely new vehicle, built on a unique chassis and structure and should be Cadillac's best-selling model as midsize luxury SUV sales take off in North
