CONCENTRATED LYE.
CAUTION TO THE PUBLIC.

The remarkable success which has attended the introduction of the celebrated Concentrated Lye into Canadian market, by the subscriber, has excited the cupidity of an unprincipled firm in town (which has already been convicted of borrowing other people's brains) by a spurious imitation called Saponifier. To avoid disappointment, purchasers should be careful to ask for Harte's Concentrated Lye, which is sold by all respectable Druggists and Grocers in town and country. 783y

The only object of the advertiser in sending the Prescription is to benefit the afflicted, and spread information which he conceives to be invaluable, and he hopes every sufferer will try his remedy, as it will cost them nothing, and may prove a blessing. Mothers Read This!—Holloway's Worm Lozenges are a certain and safe remedy for Worms in Children and Adults.—As it is a well-known and melancholy fact that one great cause of death among children is from Worms alone, it cannot be too deeply impressed upon the minds parents the necessity of closely watching their children. By so doing; and understanding the symptoms and true cause of the disease, thousands of children might be saved from early graves. SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.—The following are a few of the very numerous symptoms and diseases which are caused by Worms: deranged appetite, emaciated extremities, offensive breath frequent picking at the nose, grinding of the teeth during sleep, hardness of the belly, with frequent slimy stools, and sometimes convulsive fits; itching of the arms, pain in the head and stomach, unquiet sleep, faintings, tremblings, coughs, indigestion low spirits, frightful dreams, and a gradual wasting away of flesh.

They are palatable and self-administered to the child—drive out the worms thoroughly without pain and completely cleanse the stomach—thereby doing away with the necessity of administering Castor Oil or other unpleasant cathartics—as in the use of other Worms.

Each box contains the fac-simile signature of NORTHROP & LYMAN, Newcastle, C.W., who are the sole proprietors.

N.B. Ask for Holloway's Worm Lozenges and take no other. Sold by all the druggists in Ottawa, and medicine dealers every where 578y

Errors of Youth.—A Gentleman who suffered for years from Nervous Debility, Premature Decay and all the effects of youthful indiscretion will, for the sake of suffering humanity, send free to all who need it the recipe and directions for making the simple remedy by which he was cured. Sufferers wishing to profit by the advertisers' experience can do so by addressing in perfect confidence,
JOHN B. OGDEN, 43 Cedar Street New York

TWO QUESTIONS EASILY ANSWERED.—Why should men wear beards? Because they are a great protection to the throat and lungs, and add much to their personal appearance. Why should we use "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers?" Because when used for coughs, colds, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, &c., they act like a charm. Ministers and lawyers use them, physicians recommend them, and singers and public speakers say they are the very best medicine in existence for the cure of such complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25 cents per box.

A BEAUTIFUL HORSE.—There is nothing that can contribute so much to render the horse beautiful and elegant, to improve his condition and make him all that is desirable, as "Darley's Arabian Heave Remedy and Condition Medicine;" it has been used by many persons who own valuable carriage and other horses with decided success, and so well pleased are they with it that they always keep it on hand in case of emergency; it may be given at all times with perfect safety. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, C.W., proprietors for the Canadas. Sold by all medicine dealers.

BRYAN'S WAFERS, (the great public remedy,) have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a cure, harmless and eminently salutary preparation, and it taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25 cents per box.

A WELCOME TO NAPIER AND HIS ARMY.

Let the heart of old England be vocal with thanks,
Let the joy of old England be uttered in cheers,
That know no distinction of races or ranks,
But of chief and of army, alike own the peers.

Ne'er had captain or soldiers a worthier cause,
Nor themselves of that cause did more worthily bear;
Maintaining, not outraging chivalry's laws,
Till they tracked the hyena to Magdala's lair.

In all the strange hardships through which they have passed
Foes or friends had the due that to either belonged;
In march, halt, or fight—from the first to the last,
Not a woman was outraged, a peasant was wronged.

From the salt of the sea, and the land of the shore,
Through the wall of the mountain a doorway they clove;
Up the torrent-bed slowly but surely they bore,
Over Alp upon Alp steadily strove.

If the loads were too heavy for scaling the track,
If the followers shrank from such marches, dismayed,
Let loads be abandoned; and followers turn back—
The track must be scaled and the march must be made.

On and on, up and up, ever higher and higher,
But forwards, still forwards they held on their way;
Till the basalt of Magdala gave back their fire,
And the tyrant stood faced in his fastness, at bay.

Small renown such a foe to his conquerors can bring—
With the realm, not the chief, was the battle they won:
But from holier cause never warfare did spring,
Nor give retrospect fairer when fighting was done.

Twas in no doubtful quarrel, for no sordid end,
Not to humble a rival, or win land or fee;
But to prove England counts not what treasure she spends,
If the wronged she lent rights, and the captive sets free.

ADVANCED GUARDS OR PATROLS.

These terms may be considered synonomous, for an advanced guard is only a patrol preceding a column in march, but a patrol may have an independent duty to perform in searching for the enemy and endeavouring to gain information as to his strength, concentration, or movements. The principles upon which all advanced guards are formed are all that can be laid down, for the distribution of the force must depend upon their strength; the following will show the order of march for a patrol of forty horses:

A—Two men.
B—A Corporal.
C—A Sergeant and six men.
D—Officer and main party.
E—A Corporal and two men.

The advanced files at A, when it shall come in sight of an enemy, must halt and not show themselves, if possible to avoid it, but report to the Corporal at B, who will communicate to the Sergeant's party at C and go on to the Officer's party at D to apprize him: the object of the Sergeant's party at C is to furnish occasional scouts to the flanks to explore suspicious places, or to get a look out from eminences, and in case of a sudden surprise to offer some resistance as skirmishers, whilst the officer is forming his main body—the object of the Corporal and file of men at E is to provide against a patrol being surprised from the rear; for on their notice the Officer may have time to put fours or half-sections about and cut his way back before the enemy can have time to bar the road and cut him off from home. In day light, and in open countries, 200 yards between each part of this "procession" is not too great an interval, but at night, and in crooked roads or woodlands, the intervals should be reduced to 100 yards, or less according to circumstances.

Two adverse patrols, having met, and neither party willing to retire until it shall have reconnoitred the strength of the other, a cavalry skirmish becomes necessary. For this purpose, as an invariable rule, not exceeding one half the force should be extended with carbines; the other half should remain with swords drawn and formed as a support about 200 yards from the intended skirmishing line.

The line of skirmishers should form one rank (and if acting in double rank), the rear rank men form on the left of their respective front rank men with an interval of 10 or 15 yards between them. When the line is halted and not firing the men may stand still, but when under fire they should circle their horses to the right on their own ground to avoid presenting a steady mark to the aim of an enemy—this line may advance, retire, take ground to a flank or wheel, in all which they have only to keep their intervals, and a tolerable line, so as not to get into each other's way or line of firing—they will preserve one rank in all cases, except in retiring when, to avoid a precipitate retreat, the front rank men will go off first and, after retiring 50 yards, halt and front; the rear rank men will then retire through the line of front rank men, passing bridle-hand to bridle-hand of their respective front rank men, halt and front 50 paces to the rear.

It may here be observed that the safest and best formation for Volunteer Cavalry is decidedly in single rank, in that case odd numbers would represent front rank men; and even numbers the rear rank men.

The mounted skirmishers must not all fire at once, but leisurely, and one by one, and no man should fire until he can cover his enemy and with a reasonable prospect of hitting him or his horse.

RELIEVING SKIRMISHERS.

When the ammunition of the men of the skirmishing line is expended, or that they are getting into confusion, or that in retiring they are too hard pressed, it is desirable to relieve them with the support: the support should return swords, draw carbines and load (if not so before), extend from their centre on the command "from the centre extend," this should be done by the centre man standing fast and the rest filing outwards, so that when the line is formed they shall not have gained ground to the front.

The relief may take place in two ways according to circumstances, either by the second line passing through the front line, or the front line retiring through the second line to the rear, the line which has been relieved will then close to the centre, be fronted, return carbines, draw swords, and become the support about 200 yards in rear of the skirmishing line. When there is a sufficient force it is desirable there should not only be a skirmishing line and a support, but a reserve posted 200 yards in rear of the support, equal in strength to the skirmishing line and its support, as for instance with two squadrons, one troop should be extended, one should support, and the other whole squadron should be kept in reserve.

DISMOUNTED SERVICE.

It is well known that 20 or 30 men posted at some broken or barricaded bridge, for instance, may stop the progress of a large force for a considerable time, or the first occupation of some stone house or mill may decide the fate of a day. Infantry march only at the rate of three miles an hour with ease—by the dismounted service two thirds of the Cavalry force, transported with expedition to the appointed place, can be dismounted and become (if properly armed) equal for that duty to Infantry of equal numbers, and may maintain a post long enough for the Infantry to come up and relieve them—or in a retreat they may retard the pursuit in the same manner. The rules laid down in the Cavalry Regulations are sufficiently explicit, but for practical utility in this country, considering the nature of the woods, it is recommended that, when this duty is called for, the column should form half sections (most of the woods will admit of this), and, while the odd numbers hold the horses, the even numbers get clear of their horses with ease.

Circumstances must dictate what is to be done when they are dismounted, but with a full squadron of Cavalry the proportion of troopers would nearly be equal to a Volunteer company of Infantry, and the rules for movements and reliefs as given in the case of mounted skirmishers would apply.

—If several squadrons were present, the whole dismounted men, that is two thirds of one squadron, might be engaged, two thirds form a support, and the rest remain mounted ready to act as Cavalry if opportunity should offer. The troops or squadrons of led horses can move as easily as if they were all mounted, and should move and keep out of fire behind some building or sheltered place until wanted.

Beyond the ordinary routine of patroling and letter carrying, this is almost the only service Cavalry could render in winter, when it is impossible for horses to leave the road; but a very important service it might be made if skilfully managed.

U. S. MILITIA PRACTICE.—It will be seen from the subjoined paragraph that our friends across the line are not disposed to allow their militia efficiency to rust in peace time, and a good example is always worth taking, from any quarter:—

BOSTON, July 27.—The Montgomery Light Guard, Capt. Finan, of the Ninth Regiment, accompanied by Gilmore's band, left to-night by the Newport route for New York. The Montgomerys are matched to drill with the Webster Guard, of the Twelfth New York Regiment, on Thursday afternoon, in Tompkins Square, for the champion flag. Several officers who served through the war with the gallant Ninth, including Col. Quincy and Lieut. Mahan, accompany the corps on the occasion.

EXPLOSIVE BULLETS.—In the House of Lords, a few evenings ago, Lord Shaftesbury asked if the Ministers could give any information concerning the reported proposition of the Russian Government for the disuse of explosive bullets. The Earl of Malmesbury replied that Her Majesty's Government were in receipt of a circular from the Government of the Czar making the suggestions that all the Great Powers unite in an agreement to abandon the use of explosive bullets in time of war. He added that his Government had reason to believe that Prussia had given her consent to the proposal, and steps were now being taken for the meeting of an intercolonial military commission, at an early day, at St. Petersburg, to consider the question and settle the details of a definite agreement.

—In the House of Commons on the 27th Mr. Kinglake inquired of Lord Stanley as to the conditions of the diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Mexico. Lord Stanley replied that Mexico broke off her relations with England in consequence of the recognition by the latter of the Empire of which Maximilian was the head. If that Republic should make overtures for a resumption of official intercourse there would be no difficulty about it, but dignity and self respect forbid that England should solicit a renewal.
