LOCAL NEWS.

POSTPONEMENT.—The sale at Captain Glynn's is unavoidably postponed until Monday next. See advertisement.

CHEAP DRESSES.—Garland, Mutchmor & Co. are now showing 74 pieces new French delaines in scarlet, blue, green, rose and maize, all at 1s. 3d. per yard, well worth 1s. 10½d. per yard.

THE MARKET.—The market on Saturday was well supplied, but with little more than the usual vegetables; these were sold at very reasonable prices. There was scarcely any grain; there was a good supply of hay at $8 to $10 per ton. Apples sold at $3.25 to $4 per barrel. Tomatoes, of which there were but few, sold for 15 cts. a pound.

AID FOR THE FREEDMAN.—We understand that a meeting will be held this evening in the Rev. Mr. Moore's Church, Bank-st, for the purpose of procuring material aid for the freedmen of the South. Mr. J. H. Bates, Superintendent of the Charleston Mission, will be present, and state the views and objects of the meeting, and the condition of the people in whose interest aid is sought.

A CHURCH FIGHT.—A row took place on Saturday night in Renaud's tavern, Murray-st, in which a shanty man named Lavigne was so badly beaten by another man named Rousselle, that a medical gentleman had to be sent for, when it was found that the beaten man's head was dangerously bruised and his upper lip cut entirely open. Rousselle was arrested and will appear this morning at the Police Court.

SATIN HATS.—Mr. Peacock, of Rideau-st. announces that he has just received, per SS. St. Andrew, some very fine English satin hats, as well as a number of plain drab cassimere hats, in addition to his previously extensive stock, embracing everything in the line of hats and furs. The English satin hats could not be surpassed for quality of material and exquisite workmanship, and the fashions are exactly correct. This also applies to the other hats. Those who want a first-class dress hat should endeavour to secure one of those immediately.

GOOD THINGS.—Our readers will perceive by a new advertisement that Mr. Thos. Patterson, Rideau street, has imported directly from Oporto ten hogsheads of very fine port wine, eighteen years old. Also from Cognac a quantity of fine old brandy, warranted of the Medal Brand. He has also received a quantity of Guinness & Co.'s XXX Stout, and the celebrated pig brand. Also an extensive variety of Crosse & Blackwell's goods, comprising potted meats, fish, &c., &c., besides family teas, coffee, Reesor's Stilton cheese, together with a very full assortment of all commodities to be found in a first-class grocery.

HARTZ AND MAGIC.—"The great oriental traveller" and student of modern magic will open his Temple of the Black Art to-night in the Skating Rink, where he promises to treat us to an entire new budget of illusions different from anything we have ever witnessed. He will produce, or deceive us into the belief that he produces, the miraculous bower of Flora. The "Tocsin" of the spirits is to explain the entire theory and practice of spiritualism. The "Column and the Glove" is claimed by Mr. Hartz to be known to himself and the Hindoos only. When this great illusionist was last here he created quite a sensation, drew large audiences and gave every satisfaction. We might more properly say astonishment. Indeed there was a general bewilderment among his audiences as to the means used for the accomplishment of wonderful feats. Large numbers of tickets have been sold for both nights.

L. O. A. OF B. N. A.—On Friday night last, at a late hour, the Royal Scarlet Chapter for the District of the City of Ottawa closed its first session under a new dispensation from the Grand Lodge, having completed a large amount of business, and conferred the illustrious degree upon several candidates. On Wednesday evening the election of officers took place, which resulted as follows:

Companion Sir David T. Browne, Most Worshipful in Command.
Companion Sir Jacob Halpenny, Excellent in Command.
Companion Sir Archibald Graham, Treasurer.
Companion Sir Thomas Sproule, Scribe.
Companion Sir T. Armstrong, Chaplain.
Companion Sir Robert Fraser, Sir Herald Knight at Arms.
Companion Sir Samuel Greenfield, Tyler.

POLICE COURT—SATURDAY.—Julia King was brought up on the old complaint of drunkenness. Julia said she supposed she might have been drunk, she had taken a little liquor, but she knew what she was doing, and expressed a hope that his Worship would be indulgent, and not give her more than two or three weeks. She was reminded of the many promises of amendment which she had broken. Julia enquired with some apprehension if there was not a new law? Yes, said his Worship, and I am going to give you the benefit of it. I shall send you to jail for two months at hard labour. Julia was astonished. Three weeks was the longest term in her experience.

The adjourned case of forgery by the two soldiers, Elson and Hull, was then resumed, when William Greenwood was called and proved that he was in Kavanagh's saloon on the afternoon of the 18th inst., and that he saw the two prisoners there, one of whom (Elson) shewed him the name of Lt. Cope endorsed on a cheque, and asked him if it was right, when he (witness) said it was right, but it ought to have been written across the cheque and not sideways; that the two soldiers went out, and after a short time returned with some money in silver and bills, which they counted, and Elson said to Hull, "I have to give you a dollar and a half, and here it is."

The case was further adjourned till next Wednesday.

The prisoner Elson was then charged with stealing a gold ring.

Col.-Sergeant Wilde was called and testified that he searched Elson when he was arrested for forgery, and that he found two gold rings on a finger of his left hand; rings produced. The prosecution went on the supposition that the ring was stolen by the prisoner from the store of Mr. Chalmers, Sparks-st., and had been led to believe that the other prisoner, Hull, would give evidence to bring home the crime to him. With this object in view Detective O'Neill called Hull from the dock to the witness box, but when he got there he lost his memory so completely that he could not repeat what he had told in reference to the ring only a few minutes before the court opened.

Elson put some questions in the hope of clearing himself, but Hull was still oblivious and knew nothing.

The case was then adjourned till Wednesday.

TRAGEDY AT PORT JERVIS.

A Man Shot Dead by a Drunken Peddler—The Murderer Mortally Injured by the Son of His Victim.

PORT JERVIS, Friday, Aug. 6, 1869.—One of the most shocking tragedies ever enacted in this vicinity occurred last night in this village, in which Mr. Alexander Swinton, an old and highly respected citizen of this village, was shot dead in his own store by a drunken peddler named Warren Fellows. The particulars of the murder are as follows: Last night, about 8:30 o'clock, two men, one of whom was this Fellows, committed an indecency nearly in front of Swinton & Sons' hardware store on Front-st. Mr. John D. Swinton, one of the proprietors of the store, remonstrated with them, when Fellows followed him into the store and drew a revolver upon him. John Swinton then went out of the rear store door in search of a policeman to arrest Fellows. Mr. Alexander Swinton, an old man about sixty-four years of age, the senior member of the firm, took hold of Fellows and requested him to leave, whereupon the latter fired his revolver, the contents lodging in the abdomen of Mr. Swinton, who fell back against the counter, exclaiming, "My God, I'm shot!" David Swinton, a son, on seeing that his father was shot, seized a hatchet that was lying on a stove near by and sprang upon the murderer with the ferocity of a tiger. Fellows raised his revolver to shoot him, but with the rapidity of lightning young Swinton wrenched the death-dealing instrument from his hands, and dealt two blows on the assassin's head, crushing in his skull, and felling him like an ox.

Fellows, although stunned, managed to arise, and left the store, reaching his boarding-house at the Fowler House, in an almost unconscious state. In a short time he became wholly insensible. Officers arrived shortly after and he was taken to his room and placed in their custody. Dr. C. M. Lawrence and other physicians were called who administered chloroform and performed an operation, removing a portion of his skull, which had been stove in. Mr. Swinton, on receiving the fatal ball, was conveyed to the house of his son, adjoining the store, where he expired in about twenty-five minutes from the time he was shot.

The excitement of the citizens was intense, and the feeling is general that Fellows did not fully get his just deserts.

Mr. Swinton is a native of Scotland, and emigrated to this country about forty years ago, and has been a resident of this town nineteen years. He was a mild and inoffensive gentleman, was highly respected, and in his business dealings bore a reputation for integrity and honesty.

Warren Fellows, the murderer, was born in the State of Vermont, is aged about 40 years, and also resided in this town fourteen or fifteen years. He was a clever, free-hearted person, when not under the influence of liquor, but when in his drunken frolics he was abusive and quarrelsome, not heeding the advice of friend or foe. He has been in several scrapes, and in a riot in this town some years ago shot two Irishmen. His brother arrives to-day, and in the event of his death, which is looked for, he has made a will devising his property, of which he has considerable, to his child, (his wife being dead,) mother, and brothers and sisters.

The funeral of Swinton will take place on Sunday. Coroner Penney last night convened a jury of inquest, who adjourned and met in the Fowler House to-day, the jury returned a verdict that Alexander Swinton came to his death by a pistol shot fired by Warren Fellows, without any just cause of provocation.—New York Sun.

EXTRAORDINARY AFFAIR IN IRELAND.

The Wexford correspondent of Saunder's Newsletter writes:—An extraordinary scene occurred on the 14th inst., at Fethard, in the south of this county. The Marchioness of Ely and the Marquis of Ely, upon the occasion of their visiting their estate, promoted a horse race and other sports. After the distribution of the prizes, the people gathered round the platform on which the Marchioness of Ely, the young marquis and their friends sat. The marquis called upon the people to give three cheers to Mr. Hare, agent for the estate; but scarcely had he uttered the words, when the Rev. Thomas Doyle, parish priest, Ramsgrange, stepped forward and cried, "No, no; three groans for Hare." He then went up to Mr. Hare, and said he deserved reprobation for his conduct as an agent upon the Ely estate; that the blood and the curses of the people ejected from their dwellings in Killesk lay upon his guilty soul, and instead of a cheer, he would cry, "Down with Hare," "A groan for Hare," &c. The people groaned and hooted in a most excited manner, and surged around the platform in great masses, whilst the noble marchioness, her son, and the friends surrounding them, were mute with astonishment. The hooting continued until a Mr. Powell made some observations that displeased the crowd, which had the effect of turning their attention upon him. He was knocked down, and when he arose was pursued until he took refuge in some neighbouring house. Doling this diversion Mr. Hare rode away, but in the course of a short time he returned, and called upon Mr. Fitzgerald, sub-inspector of constabulary, Arthurston, to interfere, as he apprehended a further breach of the peace. The Rev. Mr. Doyle again came forward, and addressing the multitude, said Mr. Hare had come back in order to dare them, thinking they might commit themselves, in the hope he (Mr. Doyle) might have been lodged in jail. He then cautioned the people to be quiet, and told them not to touch even the bridle of Mr. Hare's horse. He addressed Mr. Hare, and bade him listen to the charges against him, but Mr. Hare rode away. Mr. Doyle again harangued the people, and advised them to send a deputation to the marchioness and her son, to inform them of the sort of agent they had. He further enjoined the people to return quietly home, and soon afterwards they separated.

—Large numbers of Americans are prospecting for minerals in the neighbourhood of the town of Perth.

—Thos. White, of the township of Morrison, plowed up a rudely ornamented piece of Indian pottery on his farm the other day.

—The time for the international boat race between the Harvard and Oxford crew, has been definitely fixed. It will occur on the afternoon of Friday, August 27.

—After a variety of experiments by the authorities of Gothenburg, Sweden, a method has been hit upon which is thought to promise good results. A reformation society of gentlemen has obtained entire control of the traffic in spirits in the city, under an agreement to apply the whole of the profits above expenses for the benefit of the poor. The society has reduced the number of licensed houses to less than forty, one-third of the former number, and has bound the proprietors to sell only at fixed prices, giving a profit of only one and a half per cent., with obligations to keep a supply of all harmless drinks, including beer, at whatever profits they could command, thus making it the interest of the venders to sell these drinks instead of liquors. The effect has been an almost entire cessation of drunkenness.
