Dominion Parliament.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

OTTAWA, April 11, 1870.

The SPEAKER took the Chair at 3 o'clock.

The report of the Committee on Bank and Commerce, with a Bill to amend the Act incorporating the Merchants' Bank of Halifax, was presented.

Hon. Mr. HOWE rose to move the adjournment of the House in consequence of the death of Mr. Chipman, of Kings who had succumbed to his disease on Sunday morning. At the present moment the House was pressed with business and the motion he was about to make might, perhaps, be distasteful to some members who were anxious to get through with the business; but after the decision of the other day he felt the House would hardly care that a solemn compliment like an adjournment should be paid in one case and not in another. He need not say anything of his old friend more than this. He was not much known here, and perhaps from his familiar desire to keep himself reserved, he was not so much esteemed as he would have been had he been longer here, and had become more thoroughly known. But Mr. (Mr. Howe) could assure the House that in the large and fine county which the deceased represented his loss would be much felt. He was a kind father and affectionate husband, an energetic and effective merchant, and a valuable public man. He (Mr. Howe) felt sorry that his loss had come to his family at this distance from home, but it would be some consolation to them to know that his friends, Dr. Tupper and Dr. Forbes, both gentlemen from his native country, and his familiar associates were in constant attendance upon him, ministering to his comfort, and seeing that he was properly cared for during his illness. He made this motion with great reluctance and great sorrow.

Hon. Dr. TUPPER said he would be doing violence to his feelings if he did not pay his tribute of respect for the memory of the departed gentleman, and express that feeling of sorrow which he was satisfied was entertained by every member of the House. It was not his good fortune, as it was that of the honorable mover of this motion, to possess the political confidence of the late Mr. Chipman, but he could with equal sincerity speak of the position he held in his own Province. As one of the most respected of the agricultural class, a highly successful merchant he had the confidence and esteem of the whole community in which he lived. He was a member of one of the most respected families in his Province, at all times for his personal conduct, his high character as a man he obtained the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. It was quite sure that had he been permitted to remain longer with us, it would have been to increase the feeling of regard and esteem with which gentlemen on both sides of the House regarded him. Used in terms so appropriate as this motion had been, he would not have said a word, had he not felt it his duty as one of the friends of Mr. Chipman as the community where he died, to say that he could not, if at home have been surrounded with greater comfort and kindness he experienced here. He was not only surrounded by the sympathies of those who knew him, but from the time he was stricken ill his friend Dr. Forbes who resided with him gave him the closest personal attention. When the disease from which he died developed itself he sent for his (Dr. Tupper) to consult with Dr. Forbes. They obtained accomodation for him, and from that day till the hour of his death he received the care and attention of his medical advisers, Dr. Codd, a most intelligent gentleman who was in constant attendance at the hospital, Dr. Forbes, Dr. Carter and himself, but also the most constant and assiduous care on the part of the nurses and persons in charge of the hospital. He made this statement because he knew it would be gratifying to friends to know that nothing that could contribute in the least degree to his comfort was wanting. A near neighbor, Miss Fleming, was kind enough to send a servant to the door every day to ascertain what could contribute to his comfort, and every assistance that could be rendered by a most assiduous and constant care of his friends was given.

Hon. Mr. DORION said he was one of those who had only known Mr. Chipman for a short time, and in his character as a public man, but from the first he had observed his independence of character and practical good sense, and he felt that they had lost a useful and good representative. From the first time he had heard Mr. Chipman, in his own admirable way of speaking, he felt that he was a man of perfect independence of character, fearless in the advocacy of the rights of his own constituents and Province, and it must be a regret to all them to hear that he departed from them in a manner which must be painful to his family. It was only a proper mark of respect in his memory for the House to adjourn, and he would beg to second the motion.

The House adjourned at 3:35 till 3 o'clock tomorrow.

Meeting at City Hall Square.

The proclamation of His Worship the Mayor answering to a request from a number of citizens, and calling a meeting to be held at the City Hall, to ascertain the feeling of the citizens regarding the execution of Thomas Scott, by order of Riel, attracted some three hundred persons to the square in front of the building. The entire meeting was got through in a little over an hour, and the general tone was that of applauding the actions. The indignation expressed was one that the perpetrator of the murder at Red River, and born throughout a severe rebuke to those who wished to create side and political issues out of the catastrophe. The platform was occupied by His Worship the Mayor, Hon. James Skead, J. M. Currier, M.P., Hon. Mr. Lyon, M.P.P., for the city, Ira Morgan, Warden for the County, accompanied by a large number of members of the Commons, and several prominent citizens.

The Mayor opened the meeting by reading the requisition and response. He then stated that several resolutions were prepared, and would be placed before the meeting for their approval. He did not propose to say much on the matter which called the public together. It should be taken, that, while an indignant reputation of the foul and fearful act had to be pronounced, a proper and dignified course should be maintained throughout the meeting. The object was to obtain an expression of the public sentiment regarding the murder of Thomas Scott. His Worship then proposed Dr. Sweetland as the mover of the first resolution.

Dr. Sweetland had just been requested to become the mover of the resolution, and was prepared to address the assemblage at length. But he would give expression to the feelings of abhorrence which any man possessing the common instincts of humanity would necessarily feel at the commission of such a barbarous and wanton murder as that of Thomas Scott. He felt satisfied that due vengeance would be exacted, and referred to the common feeling among all British subjects which must naturally arise and spread ten-fold on hearing of the outrage. Britain is always ready to protect or avenge her subjects. He then referred to the prompt action of England in the Abyssinian matter.

Robert Lyon, Esq., M.P.P., while in common with others, regretted the cause which brought them together, he could not repress the feelings of horror which he entertained at the act. He would be unworthy to occupy the position of a citizen of Ottawa, and more as a representative of the County in which the city was situate, if he remained silent over the atrocity committed on one of our fellow-countrymen. While mourning over the loss of our brave fellow subject, whose only offence was true loyalty to the flag of his country, it does not become us to raise an untimely and unlawful riot. There is nothing in the resolution to condemn the Government. It would not be wise for the Government to give loud voice to their opinions. The unfortunate act that Scott was murdered was known, but not the attending circumstances. Wherever the British flag waved, the subject was cared for, but it behooved the public to give expression to their outraged feelings on such an occasion as this. He seconded the resolution.

Moved by Dr. Sweetland, seconded by R. Lyon, M. P. P. That in the opinion of this meeting the execution of Thomas Scott, a British loyal subject, resident of the Red River settlement under the pretended sanction of a self-organized and totally illegal tribunal deserves the unqualified condemnation of the world, civilized and this meeting wishing to mark its detestation of the atrocious crime thus committed, would respectfully but firmly demand that the British authorities should adopt immediate and decisive measures whereby the perpetrators of the barbarous murder may be brought to speedy and condign justice, and that punishment in expiation of the heinous crime thus falsely committed may be meted out to them.

The Mayor put the resolution, which was carried.

The second resolution was moved by Joseph M. Currier, Esq., M.P. for the city. Mr. Currier said in moving the resolution, that he had just read it. He urged that prompt and determined action should be taken to maintain British rule in the Nor'West. Could Canada that enjoyed the finest Government on the face of the earth place the iron heel of oppression on any other country. Some people had said the priests had something to do with this revolt. He did not believe it. He counselled the public to be careful before judging in such matters. He said the Government was both willing and ready to take action.

Mr. Pennock said in seconding the resolution he came there to express sympathy and indignation at the fearful act committed in the murder of Scott. There was some purpose in these meetings. The Imperial authorities were around. British traditions show us that no subject was left unprotected or unavenged by the Empire. He seconded the resolution.

The third resolution was moved by E. McGillivray Esq. He said the time had arrived not only to speak, but to act. He expressed his astonishment, and indignation that an insulter such as Riel should not only insult the national emblem, but should steep his hands in blood. He did not think the Roman Catholic clergy had any thing to do with the insurrection, they had sided us materially during the Fenian troubles. We should maintain our honor as Englishmen, Irishmen and Scotchmen—yes and as Canadians—The English and Scotch half-breeds, and the French half-breeds were standing by us (a voice "where are the Irish half-breeds?")

Francis Clemow, Esq., in seconding the resolution felt gratified that all agreed with the spirit of the resolutions. He said the rest condemned the act of Riel.

Moved by E McGillivray, Esq., seconded by Francis Clemow, Esq., that a hearty welcome be extended to Dr. Schultz and party, now in this city, for their manly and patriotic conduct in the North West, and at the same time this meeting desires to express its sympathy with all loyal inhabitants of that country in the present and past difficulties, and trust that upon the restoration of law and order, this class of persons may have at the hands of the legally constituted authorities such consideration and indemnity for losses sustained as their respective cases may proved to have deserved.

Hon. J. Skead had heard about twenty minutes ago, that the meeting was to be held. He came there unprepared to take his share in the responsibilities consequent to such an occasion (hear, hear). It might be well to make reference to those who were really to blame, but now was not the time (speak on). Well then the Government had too long followed up the "do little" plan. The time had come when the people had to speak out. The Government, so far had done their duty. Had the Hon. Mr. McDougall taken possession of the territory there would have been no trouble. Had the fellows received a dose such as Col. Prince gave, this might have been avoided. According to newspaper report—the priests had something to do with it. Some of our men sent up there he believed, forced the priests in, in self-defence. Bishop Tache on his return from Rome, had to say that he arrived there without a political mission. Riel had got beyond the control of the clergy. The people there have been rode by Ministers as well as Priests. That did not deprive them of their rights as British subjects. The Methodist and Presbyterian ministers stopped Major Boulton, and caused his force to dispense leaving the prisoners in Fort Garry. Father Richot had stated that McDougall should never enter the country, except over his dead body. Who is this Father Richot? This work has been going on for nearly a year—Surveying had been forcibly stopped and now we must receive a delegation. The policy of the Government had been to conciliate. Let us treat those delegates well. (Cries "let us send them back.") He had the utmost confidence in the Government—Riel will be taken care of (a voice "He'll get an office.") Had Governor Smith done his duty, Scott would not have been shot. Had he flung the British flag around his shoulders and those of Scott, they would not dare have fired.

The resolution was carried by the meeting.

Moved by J. M. Currier, M. P., seconded by W. Pennock, Esq., That this meeting deems the present an opportune occasion to suggest unity of action between the British and Dominion Governments in the mode best calculated to suppress the present revolt in the Red River Territory and while this meeting deplores the necessity of an appeal to arms, still under the present circumstances the maintenance of British rule in that part of the Empire is of growing importance and ought to be enforced at all hazards.

The Hon. James Skead was followed by Mr. McGill, M. P., of Hamilton, who was cheered throughout a spirit stirring speech, whose effect was that of inspiring an unanimous sentiment of indignation, as regarded the iniquitous and disloyal conduct of Riel, and a firm confidence in the spirit and willingness on the part of the Government to punish the criminals, and suppress the insurrection.

The meeting evinced a high-toned respect for the pilots of our ship of state, whose few opponents retired with sad and fallen countenances. After three cheers for the Queen, the Governor General, and the Mayor, the meeting dispersed.

The absence of Dr Schultz and his co-exiles would lead one to believe that they had had enough of all this, and treated the "indignation" business with some indignity.

L. O. L. No. 126.—The following resolutions were unanimously carried last night at a meeting of the Brethren:

Moved by Brother James Forster Boulton, seconded by Brother James Starmer,

That in the opinion of the L. O. L. No. 126, the killing of Brother Thomas Scott at Fort Garry, Red River settlement, by one Louis Riel and his associates in arms, is a foul, atrocious and cowardly murder.

That nothing but the conviction of the detested assassins, and the carrying out of the usual sentence of death by hanging, awarded to convicted murderers will satisfy outraged public opinion;

That this Lodge trust that there will be no unnecessary delay in affording assistance to the loyal but unarmed majority of the Red River settlement, against the barbarous but armed minority;

That in the opinion of this Lodge the Government of the Dominion of Canada ought not to receive delegates chosen at the armed dictation of the Pirate Riel, two of such delegates not being British subjects, and the third a mere nominee of the Hudson's Bay Company, the said Company being to a great extent responsible for the present troubles in that region.

That in the opinion of this Lodge there are three parties responsible for the Red River troubles, resulting in the cold blooded murder of Brother Thomas Scott, namely, the French Canadian half-breeds, lead by the French priest Father Rochot, the pirate Riel, the Hudson's Bay Company, prejudiced over by Governor McTavish, and the Yankee residents and sympathisers, the latter class being represented by the would be delegate Scott, namesake of the murdered man. Carried unanimously.
