THE GREAT STRUGGLE.

THE FRENCH RHINE FORTIFICATIONS.

Prominent among the French towns on the west bank of the Rhine is Strasbourg, containing 85,000 inhabitants, chiefly of German descent. The fortress has been greatly strengthened, and the numerous works and detached forts, including Kehl, render it a place of great strength. A bridge here crosses the Rhine, which is strongly fortified on the French town lies chiefly upon the river Ill, which is also bridged.

Further up the Ill are Colmar and Mutstadt, both strongly fortified, and controlling important communications.

At Breisach is on the Rhone Canal due west of the Rhine. It has towers, and Fort Mortier, nearer the river, is also a strong fortification.

Metz, on the river Mozelle, is the most important strategic point in the eastern frontier of France, and has a most powerful fortress, which is yet uncompleted. The town contains 60,000 inhabitants, and a garrison of 10,000 men. A strong wall with towers surrounds it, and the fortifications are constructed with a due allowance for the force of modern projectiles. It stands on four commanding sites. The river Seille meets the Moselle at this town, and, in case of a siege, the water of the streams can be raised sufficiently to inundate the low ground to the south and west of the town.

Montmedy, Verdun, and Longwy, on the north, are all strongly fortified; and near the last, on the Moselle, is Thionville, which is a few miles of the Prussian frontier. The river is bridged at this point, and the fortifications are strong. The Moselle furnishes the most direct line of operations between France and Prussia, and a struggle for every probability, take place for several strongholds.

The Weissenburg line is a chain of light forts running from the left bank of the Rhine, fifteen miles along the Lauter, in the neighbourhood of Basle. The line was commenced in 1867, but the works were abandoned.

The Vosges Mountains run parallel with the Rhine, and form an additional barrier to the French frontier. They average 4,000 feet in height, and are 25 miles broad. All their practicable passes are fortified. The most northern of these is the Pass of Bitsch, which in 1793 and 1815 withstood two Prussian attempts. The central passage of the Vosges is by way of Saverne, and is held by the fort at Pfalsbourg, supported by Strasbourg at a short distance. Between Laverne and Belfort there are but two practicable passes, that by way of St. Die and that of Remiremont. These are well guarded by the fortresses of the neighbouring plains and by Belfort. The latter is in the centre of the opening, between the Jura and Vosges mountains, and being in the direct line between Basle and Paris, is an important junction for land communications. It has been much strengthened of late.

THE PRUSSIAN RHINE FORTIFICATIONS.

The principal Prussian fortifications are as follows:

RASTADT

On the right bank of the Rhine, and is very strongly fortified. It is in the territory of Baden-Baden, and formerly held a position for the German Confederation, but since Sadowa its garrison has been Prussian. It is situated some 14 miles south of Carlsruhe, and some 30 from Strasbourg, and will unquestionably be a point of capital importance during the coming struggle. Its fortifications are on the Vauban system, and declared to be the perfection of engineering, but experience has proved that earthworks are tougher than stone walls. There are two large forts on the little river which runs past Rastadt, which have many bastions, ditches, curtains, glacis and lunettes but the chief strength will probably be in the fortified camp which the Prussians are about to form there. Should it be necessary to withdraw its garrison, it could easily be replaced by Baden soldiers, the Grand Duke having shown the most unmistakable sympathy for the Prussian cause.

EHRENBREITSTEIN.

The fortress par excellence of Prussia, and regarded as the Gibraltar of the Rhine. It is on the right bank of the Rhine opposite to Coblentz. It is connected with this town by a bridge of boats. Part of the fortifications lie at the foot of the hill, 468 feet in height, and almost perpendicular, but since it was taken by the French in 1795 and again in 1799, its fortifications have been trebled and quadrupled in strength, and the entire hill has been formed into a fortress. It has been thought unnecessary to scarp the steep rocks, though it is on record that a British officer, accompanied by a terrier, made the ascent to the intense astonishment of a sentinel. The garrison amounts to 14,000 men, and has been hitherto under the command of Governor Premloymski who belongs to the Eighth Army Corps, commanded by General Herwarth, whose headquarters are in Coblenz, on the opposite side of the river. The troops are furnished with water by an artesian well, and the fortress contains a steam cooking apparatus of unexampled magnitude. Provisions for three years are continually kept in store, and the greatest precautions are taken to prevent a knowledge of the fortifications falling into the hands of strangers. The Ehrenbreitstein has been besieged many times by the French, and was taken only on one occasion in 1799, when the garrison was forced to surrender from lack of supplies. The chief danger now is from the hills in rear, which command the lower works of fortifications from the increased power of modern projectiles, but though much of the citadel might be laid in ruins it would seem impossible to take it by regular assault, or by a coup de main. Ehrenbreitstein is mounted with 600 pieces of artillery, and its lines cost $3,750,000. Coblenz may be considered under the same head. It is situated on the confluence of the Moselle and the Rhine, and its fortifications were built by the famous Vauban, and afterward by Montatembeck. Its garrison is very large, and is chiefly from the Eighth Corps. In time of war Coblenz and Ehrenbreitstein will accommodate 50,000 men. Coblenz was taken, by the French Directory, in 1794, after a very severe struggle. The French built a stone bridge over the Moselle here, and fortified it with a tete du pont bristling with cannon.

COLOGNE.

On the left bank of the Rhine, 35 miles above Coblentz. It is built close upon the river, in the form of a crescent, and is connected with the town Deutz on the other side by a handsome double bridge, erected in 1860. It is surrounded by walls of very ancient date, which from a circuit of several miles. Outside these, which are not considered of any strength, are houses and gardens and a considerable suburb. Yet there are strong fortifications in the rear in front of the bridges, and there is a fortified camp garrisoned by 7,000 men of the Eighth Army Corps, under Lieutenant Frankenberg, and the number of troops may will probably be increased very considerably, for Cologne is a strategic point of importance, since it commands the approaches into Hesse-Cassel, and Hanover. It will probably be the station of a corps d'armée.

THE FRENCH COMMANDER.

The Duke de Magenta or, as he is best known, Marshal McMahon, who will command the French army in the coming struggle with Prussia, comes of a fighting stock. His ancestors in Ireland espoused the unfortunate cause of James II., and when his star set they shared his exile, and entering the French army gained signal honors in many a hard fought battle, and through advantageous marriages mingled their blood with the highest nobility of their adopted country. The Marshal was born at Sully in 1808, and after graduating in the military school of St Cyr, was sent to Algeria in 1830. As aide-de-camp to General Achard, he took part in the expedition to Antwerp in 1832, was made Captain in 1733, Major of foot chasseurs in 1840, Lieutenant-Colonel of the foreign Legion in 1842, Colonel of the Forty-first regiment of the line in 1845, and General of Brigade in 1848. When Canrobert was recalled from the Crimea in 1855, McMahon was appointed his successor as a general of division and in that capacity reaped laurels by his valorous bearing at the assault on the Malakoff. He was invested with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor, and at the close of the Crimean campaign he was made Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath. But it was in the Franco-Italian war of 1859 that he made his name illustrious. He won the battle of Magenta and with it a Marshal's baton, and the title he now wears. Honours after that poured in upon him, and in 1864 he was nominated Governor-General of Algeria.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE!!

The New York papers give great prominence to the announcement that Colonel Billy Wilson, who raised a regiment of pickpockets for the service of the Federal Government during the late war, intends to collect a mob of the same description, and start to the assistance of the Emperor Napoleon.

Detective Fisher of New Jersey, is about to depart for Prussia to take up arms against the French Government, and his friends in Newark have presented him with a sword and belt!!!

THE MARKET.—The usual poor Monday show was made on the square. With the exception of a fair quantity of vegetables there was little to attract attention.

POLICE COURT.—The man Kelly, who was charged with an aggravated assault on a soldier of the 60th Rifles, was again remanded, owing to the inability of the complainant to attend from the injuries received.

About half-past twelve o'clock last night part of a shed on the Valiquette property, St. Patrick street, was discovered to be on fire. An alarm was quickly made, and the fire was as rapidly extinguished by the Lower Town Fire Companies. The fire possibly originated from the remains of the late fire.

We are happy to state that the Dominion Telegraph Company have got their poles planted and the glasses in them as far as the city limits. The Company fully expect that by Saturday next the line will be brought into the city and connected with the People's Telegraph line, when communication will be established with all Canada and the United States. This extra double line accommodation will be of great benefit to the city.

City Council.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the City Council was held last evening. Present—His Worship the Mayor, Aldermen Cunningham, Bangs, Robinson, Featherston, Lapierre, Goulden, McDougall, Guerard, Heney, May, Mosgrove, Pratt. Several letters and petitions were presented, and referred to the Standing Committee.

A petition from M. O'Gara, Esq., for an increase of salary as Police Magistrate, was presented by Ald. Cunningham, and an increase of $200 granted.

His Worship the Mayor read a communication from the Department of Public Works of Canada, acknowledging the receipt of a letter from the City of Ottawa, on the dangerous state of Pooley's Bridge, and calling on the Government to repair the same.

The communication was referred to the Board of Works.

A week's leave of absence was granted to the City Chamberlain.

Tenders for different city improvements were then opened and awarded.

Some discussion took place as to the route of the Canada Central through the city, during which R. W. Scott, Esq., was heard at the bar of the Council.

The question was referred to the Board of Works.

A communication from the Board of School Trustees, praying for the laying of a sidewalk on the east side of Hugh street from Sparks to Maria street, for the accommodation of children attending the Central School West, was presented.

Considerable discussion took place upon the motion for the granting of the prayer in the above communiction. Some Aldermen thought that if a sidewalk were constructed with means from the general funds for the accommodation of one school or church in one ward, others should be constructed in the same way to other churches or schools in other wards.

Several amendments were presented which prolonged the discussion until the adjournment of the Council, which took place as Ald. Pratt was about to present an amendment.

THE SCOTTISH PROVINCIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY.

CAPITAL:—ONE MILLION STERLING.

INVESTED IN CANADA.....$300,000.

Canada Head Office:—Montreal.

A DAVIDSON PARKER, Manager.

BENEFIT OF LIFE ASSURANCE.

In illustration of the benefits which have accrued to Participating Policies of Life Assurance the following examples may be quoted, taken from the Books of the Canada Branch of THE SCOTTISH PROVINCIAL ASSURANCE COMPANY:—

Policy, 5313, effected October 1861, for £600. Additions amounted in 1867 to £51 10s. Total outlay by assured, £51 2s; the Bonus thus amounting to seventy-five per cent. of premium paid.

Referring to same policy—should it become a claim during current year (1870), the Bonus Additions will amount to £112 10s Sterling, exceeding the Total Amount of premiums paid at the date (First Division in 1867). This is accounted for by the INTERMEDIATE BONUS allowed by the "SCOTTISH PROVINCIAL."

Policy 4234. Bonus Additions, £41 17s. 6d., or nearly seventy per cent. of £61 2s. and 6d., the amount of premiums paid.

These Benefits must be evident to all. It may be asked whether, in the event of the Assured giving up the Policy, all such benefits would be lost? In reply, attention is directed to the following

REGULATION AS TO SURRENDER OF POLICIES.

For surrender of Policies for the term of life, fixed at uniform premiums, and which have been three years in force, a return of 40 per cent. on the amount of ordinary premiums received, will, at any time, be allowed, besides the value of vested bonuses, where such have been declared. An objection, often urged against Life Assurance, that there is no certainty of value being obtained, in the event of surrender, is thus completely invalidated.

Thus: Should Policy above referred to (No. 4234) be surrendered now (1870) the sum of over $200 will be paid to policy holder.

Loans granted under Policies when surrender value is of not less amount than One Hundred Dollars.
