FIRE.—The names of the tenants burned out by Saturday morning's fire are, Daniel Devins, Mr. Cousineau, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Evans The fire is supposed to have originated in Cousineau's bakery It will be remembered that about eighteen months ago Cousineau's bakery on St. Patrick street, was destroyed by fire, and his companion, burned to death in the flames.

MAGICAL NIGHT OF CHRIST CHURCH READINGS.—In the hurry of making up our columns after the readings at Gowan's Hall on Friday night, we omitted to mention the exquisite performance of Dr. Vilade on the piano, which elicited a warm encore. Also we find that we have not done full justice to Madame Beaubien, whose artistic rendition of "Robert! toi que j'aime!" was almost electric; her encore song "I'll Pray for Thee!" was also a gem in its way.

Monuments to the memory of the gallant General Lee are to be erected in New Orleans and at Richmond.

A NEW KIND OF FUEL.

Mr. Wm. Smith, Detective of London, Ont, has patented a new kind of peat fuel, which bids fair to supersede wood and even coke and coal, to which it is said to be far superior. The London Evening Herald and Prototype speaks thus of it:—It has more than double the heating power of either wood or coal, and burns where there is a good draught with a bright, crackling blaze, and what is better still, requires no kindling to set it going. It is particularly adapted for furnaces, locomotives, boilers, &c., as it will raise steam in short order, and keep it up with very little attention. Mr. Smith put it to a practical test by running our engine yesterday, and raised steam in just half the time that we have been doing with either wood, coke or coal. Our engineer commends it in the strongest terms, and he has had considerable experience, even on the Mississippi, where they consider it a pastime to explode their boilers, in their efforts to attain a high rate of speed. It is quite a common thing to use whole barrels of pork and sides of bacon for fuel, and oil itself, and Mr. Smith's fuel will make as strong a fire as that. Another great recommendation in its favor is, that it will not cost much more than half the price of wood or coal, and there is no expense of wood sawyers, &c. It is simply a prepared peat, patented by Mr. Smith. For lighting fires it will prove of inestimable value.

O'Donoghue, Smith, Favreau, jr, and D. Smith, be a solicitory sub committee for the Dominion Day celebration, with power to add to their number such citizens as may volunteer to aid them. Carried.

Moved by Capt. Living, seconded by Capt. McKay, that the $50 donated by Mrs. Stewart for the services of the Brigade at the late fire be handed over to our Treasurer to head the list of subscriptions for the tournament on the 1st of July. Carried.

Moved by Capt. Living, seconded by Mr. Higman that John Langford, Esq., chief, be and is hereby appointed Treasurer of the Ottawa Fire Brigade to take charge of the monies collected for the fund to be applied for the tournament of the 1st July. Carried.

A LOCAL TICHBORNE GAME

How easy it is for a person to act the imposter and support his pretensions with an appearance of justice and candour may be understood after reading what follows.

About fifteen years ago a lumberman of the Ottawa had in his employ, a person who, for convenience sake we will call Jean Baptiste. He was a man of energy and honesty, thoroughly acquainted with the Ottawa river and exceedingly valuable as a foreman or manager of a lumber business. Fifteen years ago, he left this country and went to the United States, where he is still living for ought we know to the contrary. However, a few days ago, the lumberman in question was informed that his old servant had returned and that he was at Aylmer, seeking employment. Eager to secure the services of so useful a man he proceeded almost immediately to Aylmer where he was confronted by an individual who, with a wonderful degree of coolness and brazen faced presumption, took the lumberman by the hand, and with apparent surprise asked if he did not recognize him—Jean Baptiste, who worked for him fifteen years ago. The lumberman examined him closely for a few seconds, and then declared that he could trace no resemblance between him and Jean Baptiste; he might be the "Simon Pure," but if so he must have undergone a great change. To satisfy himself, he put several questions to the pretender, all which he answered with a correctness that astonished the gentleman, who began to doubt his memory. What strengthed his assumption more than anything else was his statement that his only son who had lost an arm, was teaching school at —— The lumberman having known Jean Baptist's son years ago, was now all but persuaded that his father was the man standing before him. The only cause of doubt was the lack of semblance between the man whom he knew in time past and the individual now seeking employment as that same person. Turning away for a few minutes the lumberman met a party to whom he remarked that Jean Baptiste had undergone a wonderful change during his absence. "Jean Baptiste!" ejaculated the party, "where is he?" Lumberman—"Inside in the room." "That is Francis Baptiste" answered the other, the brother of Jean.

A sudden light broke in upon the lumberman and he recollected that this low contriver was actually the brother of Jean with whom he had worked fifteen years ago and thus was enabled to answer correctly the questions put to him. He acknowledge as much finally and slunk off wretched and abashed. His aim was, as may easily be observed, to obtain high wages on the strength of his brother's reputation. He came near succeeding in his attempt, but his inferior ability would no doubt soon have betrayed him. This little event shows, however, how easy it is to build up a claim, and how far bold deception may carry a person We may term our true story "The Tichborne case made easy."

Forty years ago a blooming young girl of sixteen married an old man of sixty for his money, expecting that he would soon die and leave her a wealthy young widow. Last week the lady died at the respectable age of fifty six, leaving a husband, aged 100, and four children to mourn their loss.

It is rather curious that all animals are really two joined together. Every man is corporeally made up of two halves, precisely alike, united in a medial line. Thus, we have two brains, separated by a vertical partition; two eyes, two ears, two nasal passages, two arms, two legs, and so on. In case of a palsy of one-half the body—a very common circumstance—the functions of life and mental operations are carried on by the well half.
