BERKELEY, Sept. 1869.—Gentlemen, I feel it a duty I owe to you to express my gratitude for the great benefit I have derived by taking "Norton's Camomile Pills." I applied to your agent, Mr. Bell, Berkeley, for the above Pills, for wind in the stomach, from which I suffered excruciating pain for a length of time, having tried nearly every remedy prescribed, but without any benefit at all. After taking two bottles of your valuable pills, I was quite restored to my usual state of health. Please give this publicity—for the benefit of those who may think he afflicted.—I am, Sir, Yours truly, HENRY ALLPASS. To the Proprietors of NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS. 2595

FOWLE'S
PILE AND HUMOR CURE.
For Internal and External Use.
WARRANTED A SURE AND PERFECT CURE for all kinds of Piles, Leprosy, Scrofula, Tetter or Ring-Worm, Salt Rheum, and all diseases of the Skin.
This remedy has been faithfully tested and found to be an almost infallible cure for the above named diseases. Its success has been so universal that the Proprietor guarantees a cure to those who will use his medicine, or in case of failure to refund the money paid. Since it was first introduced he has received many testimonials of its remarkable, proving its efficacy for sands of testimonials, proving its efficacy for the cure of the awful diseases it is recommended for. The Pile and Humor cure is entirely vegetable in its composition, and can be used in perfect safety in all cases. There is no danger of driving the humor in, as it cures on the surface and the patient's bodily health continually improves while under this treatment.
Price 1$ per Bottle. Sold by all druggists.

The Company is formed to take up and develope lands in Manitoba or North-West Territory, extending to 250,000 ACRES,
Obtained in free grant on condition of settlement from the Dominion Government.

First—By settling upon the lands suitable emigrants from Great Britain or other countries, to whom free grants of alternate lots for moderate sized farms will be given by the Company along with advances for passage money, implements, seed, &c., and Second—To hold for increased value the alternate reserved farms, and sites suitable for towns, or lying in the line of projected railway routes to the west or of mineral value. Two millions of emigrants leave Britain in the course of every ten years, and from the knowledge acquired of the business and the facilities possessed by the Company for obtaining the proper class of emigrants, it is expected that the number stipulated for by the Government to be settled in ten years, viz., one thousand families, may be see inpublished in about half that time. Seven townships were selected last summer situated on both banks of the Little Saskatchewan River and admitted by all who have been in that part of the country to be of the most fertile and beautiful character to be found in the North-West.

Prospectuses, with full details, can be obtained, and applications for stock made at the office of

LEA & PERRINS'
Celebrated
Worcestershire Sauce!
Declared by connoisseurs to be
THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE.

CAUTION AGAINST FRAUD
The success of this most delicious and unrivalled Condiment having caused certain dealers to apply the name of "Worcestershire Sauce" to their own inferior compounds, the public is hereby informed that the only way to secure the genuine is to ASK FOR LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and to see that their names are upon the wrapper, label, bottle, stopper and bottle.
Some of the foreign markets having been supplied with a spurious Worcestershire Sauce, upon the wrapper and labels of which the names of Lea and Perrins have been forged, L. and P. give notice that they have furnished their correspondents with powers of attorney to take instant proceedings against Manufacturers and Vendors of such, or any other imitations by which their right may be infringed.
Ask for LEA & PERRINS' Sauce, and see Name on Wrapper, Label, Bottle, and Stopper.
Wholesale and for Export by the proprietors, Worcester; Crosse and Blackwell, London, &c., &c., and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

THE NEW GAS ENTERPRISE.

The cheap gas enterprise is one which is at the present time attracting considerable attention on the part of long-suffering housekeepers, whose purses have been heavily taxed for the maintenance of an expensive, but almost indispensable, necessity to home comfort. In the matter of gas-lighting, high rates and poor quality—a combination of conditions that is anything but satisfactory under any circumstances—have been hitherto borne, not altogether with unmurmuring patience, but rather with a grudging submission to what appeared to be the inevitable. It has long been felt by the patrons of gas companies in our cities that they were being hardly used, and the opinion has been freely expressed that the public patience has been sufficiently taxed, and that the time has come for a change. The demand, in obedience to the invariable law, has created a supply, and an association of capitalists has arisen in our midst, with the object of furnishing consumers with good light at just and equitable rates.

The Canadian Gas Lighting Company, whose bill of incorporation passed its third reading last week, is now prepared to commence operations in this city, where it is proposed to establish the head-quarters for Central Canada. Of the success of the Company, which has, in its bill, received liberal and extensive privileges, there cannot, we think, be the faintest doubt. The object it aims at is one of too much importance to the public at large to allow of any lack of support on the part of the public; while sufficient proof has already been given of the capability of the system it is proposed to introduce to guarantee satisfaction to those who may be induced either to invest their capital in the new Company or to extend to it their patronage. During the last five weeks the TIMES office has been supplied with gas by the "Star Gas Machine," introduced by Mr. MacMartin, local manager of the Canadian Gas Lighting Company, and all who have witnessed the operation of this machine, including numerous representatives of different sections of the country and most of our prominent citizens, have expressed their unqualified approbation of and satisfaction with the results. Speaking from our own experience we may state that the light supplied by this machine is, in point of softness, steadiness and brilliancy, simply unapproachable by any other light we have hitherto had occasion to use. The apparatus requires little or no attention, and our engineer informs us that he has had no trouble whatever with the machines except that of oiling them once a week. In point of cost the results are equally satisfactory, as will be seen by the following figures. During eighteen nights the total amount of oil consumed—this being the sole item of expense in the production of the new gas—was 396 gallons, at 35 cents per gallon, or $7.70 per night. With the coal gas during a period of 14 nights 58,000 cubic feet were consumed, which, at $4 per foot, gives a nightly expense of $16.57. In both cases the gas was burning the whole night throughout the greater portion of the building. It will thus be seen that in point of expense the advantage is over 50 per cent. in favour of the article furnished by the new company; while all who have seen the light supplied are willing to concede that it is fifty per cent. better than that of the coal gas.

With such satisfactory results in its favour, there can be no doubt that success awaits the operations of the Gas Lighting Company. Indeed, the indications are that the expectations at first entertained will be very far exceeded. Already the number of machines ordered of the agent will suffice to pay a large percentage on the amount of capital invested, and the condition of the new enterprise holds out every promise for the future of giving satisfaction alike to those who have embarked therein, and to the large number who cannot fail to patronize it.

We understand that it is the intention of the Local Manager, during the week, to open the Company's office to the public and to submit the illuminating powers of the new gas to a public inspection and trial. The office of the Company is at present in the Merchants' Bank building, Sparks street.

The Hudson River Floods

ALBANY, April 5.—The water in the river is slowly receding, but the docks are still submerged. A new gorge has formed at Castleton, ten miles below Albany, and the water is still on the Hudson River Railroad tracks. Trains have to be switched off at Hudson and reach here by way of Chatham, some two or three hours behind time. Superintendent Toucey telegraphs that if the state of the water permits the damage will be repaired to-morrow, so that communication via the Hudson River Railroad track may be resumed.

The Canal Frauds Investigation.

Governor Tilden has signed the bill giving the Canal Commission power to proceed with the investigation. There is still a question as to the efficiency in not strictly complying with the requirements of the new constitution by a resolution for a commission, instead of merely referring to it.

Troops for the Scene of the Miners' Riots.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., April 5.—The Westchester Greys, Washington Troop and Delaney Guards, have received orders to prepare to hold themselves in readiness to move at one hour's notice to the coal fields of Pennsylvania.

Floods in Massachusetts.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., April 5.—One span of the railroad bridge at Bartwell's ferry, on the Troy and Green Point Railroad, has been swept away by the flood, and the regular running of trains on the Hoosac tunnel lines which began to-day is therefore stopped until the bridge can be rebuilt.

Death of a $30,000 Stallion.

PARIS, Ky., April 5th.—The Stallion "Abdallah," valued at $30,000, was instantly killed here to-day by coming in contact with a team and being pierced by the shaft.

The President on the Mexican Raids.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—President Grant to-day in conversation with a writer here remarked in reply to a question that he was somewhat amused lately at the newspaper statements of what he would do in relation to the recent outrages by armed bands of Mexicans invading the Texas frontier. Such statements were mere inventions, as he had not since these events expressed his views to any person, not even to the Secretary of State, who, like himself, had been absent from the city. It was already known to the public that orders had been issued to the military for the protection of our citizens on the frontier, but in addition to this nothing has been done. The Government was not yet fully advised of the extent of the outrages, although it had been officially informed of the arrest of a mail carrier and the burning of a post office by the invaders. The Mexican Government had repeatedly been reminded of outrages heretofore committed by Mexicans on citizens of the United States, both in Mexico and on the United States soil.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., April 5.—A brakeman employed on a passenger train, acting as special policeman, was shot and fired upon one night and wounded. He returned the fire and wounded one of his assailants. The Shamokin collieries have applied for 1,000 cars for the immediate shipment of coal. This is an indication that all the men have not joined the Union, and that there will be an increased tonnage from that section during the present week.

Appointment of U. S. Treasurer.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—The commission of John Chew, of Indiana, to be Treasurer of the United States, June 30th next, was signed by the President to-day.

Condition of the Connecticut River.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 5.—The Connecticut river is now clear of ice from Holyoke, Mass., to the Sound, and the water is rapidly subsiding.

Traffic Through the Hoosac Tunnel.

The regular running of freight trains through the Hoosac Tunnel commenced to-day.

The Cigar Makers' Strike.

NEW YORK, April 5.—The Spanish and Cuban cigar-makers of this city to-day struck in consequence of a notification by the employers that rates would be reduced $2 per thousand.

Hotel Thief Bailed.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Charlie McLean, who hails from Troy, is held in $3,000 bail for robbing one of the boarders in the Westminster Hotel of $500 worth of jewellery and money.

Death from an Overdose of Hemlock.

The death of Prof. Walker, of Brooklyn, from an overdose of hemlock, was a remarkable one. He took hemlock for disease of the nerves, and when he found himself sinking from an overdose of the drug, dictated to his wife, in the interest of science, a dying testimonial of its effects. He was one of the victims of the National Hotel of Washington epidemic, and narrowly escaped with his life then.

Corruption in the Post Office Department.

A Washington despatch says investigations have been going on for some time in the Post Office Department in regard to the alleged corruption in the mail contracts in the South-West. It is said that several clerks have been discovered to be acting as accomplices of the contractors, and that they have tendered their resignations, which have been refused by the Postmaster-General, who has, however, endeavoured to keep the matter quiet for the present. The allegation is that these clerks have received regular salaries from the contractors for altering their bids and aiding them in getting the contracts awarded to them.

Blackmail, Theft and Suicide.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y., April 5.—On Saturday night John Erwin, a lad eighteen years of age, clerk in Hoyt's store, was detected stealing five dollars' worth of dry goods. His parents reside in Newburgh and were sent for, when Hoyt settled the matter with the father for $50, and then a search was made for the boy—he was found in an outhouse dead, having taken poison. Letters found on him revealed the fact that for some time he had been the victim of a blackmailer in Lowell, Mass., who kept demanding money and goods from him at intervals, as the price for hushing something young Erwin had done, but what it was does not transpire.

THE BEECHER-TILTON TRIAL.

BEECHER'S EVIDENCE.

New York, April 5.

When the Brooklyn City Court room opened this morning every available inch of space was occupied. The number of ladies in attendance was greatly increased. Judge Neilson was prompt in attendance, and beside him on the bench were David Dudley Field, Judge Reynolds, and John E. Parsons, a New York lawyer.

Judge Neilson admonished the audience against any outbreaks of applause, and while he was doing this Beecher resumed his place on the witness-stand.

WITNESS, being handed a paper, said that it was in an interview with Moulton in his (Beecher's) study when the paper was drawn. I believed Moulton's stories with regard to Tilton's innocence were true, and I was glad to believe it.

Witness was asked if that paper was his, and answered—In no sense of the wordwas it his composition, nor did he dictate it.

The foregoing question was objected to by Fullerton, but Judge Neilson decided on taking the answer.

WITNESS then continued, his attention being called to the clause, "I ask through you Theodore Tilton's forgiveness." I did express those words or their equivalent that night. I did say that in view of the statements I had made I felt I had wronged him, and had humbled myself before God and was willing to humble myself before Theodore Tilton. In that conversation I repelled the idea that I was acting consciously. The words "I wish that I were dead," &c., are not my phraseology, and I did not express my feeling of sorrow. I was not in a logical mood and am afraid I mixed my metaphors. I did not use the phrase, "I will die before anyone but myself shall be implicated." I did express myself strongly that I would sooner die than have caused such trouble. This was due to a strong feeling of remorse at the mischief which seemed to have been committed by me. Very likely I expressed the phrase about "the poor child lying there with closed hands" in substance, but not in that form.—I saw her who had been a dear child and friend of mine lying there like one dead," very likely. I used the the words, "She is guiltless and bears the sins of another." I had been intimate in the household for many years, and if I had been the cause of her distress I took the blame to myself, and did so until the year 1874. The words, "her forgiveness I have, and I humbly pray God that he may put it into the heart of her husband to forgive me" are not my dictation. I may have said that I had done Elizabeth incalculable wrong, but that she had forgiven me and I was awaiting her husband's forgiveness. Moulton tried to impress on me that Tilton was impressed with the belief that I was an enemy to him.

The letter of June 1st, 1873, was shown, written by him to Moulton.

WITNESS said: "It refers to a letter of mine that I hold in my hand." Witness continued: In my interview with Tilton on the 30th of December, I do not recollect making any reference to Daniels. During that interview he did not accuse me of adultery with his wife, nor intimate to me that his wife had accused me of adultery to him. There was no such question, topic or allusion made in any manner whatsoever about it. There was nothing but a memorandum read about improper solicitation; there was no allusion to the arguments by which I had triumphed over her chastity. On the 2nd of January, 1871, according to custom, my house was open on that day to receive calls from ten o'clock until seven. I cannot recall such day, but only remember the customs of these days. According to my knowledge and belief, I received about 800 callers on that day. I have only the most shadowy impression that Tilton called on me. There could have been no confidence of any kind; there was none. I did not go upstairs or into my study with Moulton on that, nor was there any conversation about the propriety of the sale of pews in Plymouth Church that belonged to the Trustees. The sale had usually taken place on the first Tuesday after the first Sunday in the month of January. There was no conversation with him about a letter Tilton was writing or about to write to Bowen. On the 3rd January or thereabouts there was an interview with Moulton and myself at Moulton's house, in his chamber. He was in bed, I think from sickness, though he was sometimes in bed from late hours. I never saw him too ill to receive callers. While I was there Tilton came in. I had not had any intercourse with him since the 30th of December. We had no salutation between us. Moulton began by referring to the conversation passing between him and me, and was proceeding to tell Tilton something I said to him when I struck in. I had been telling Moulton of Tilton and of his hard position and circumstances; it was not a prolonged conversation, but something of that character. After Moulton told him this, I turned to Tilton and told him how sorry I was at being connected in any way with the misfortunes he had suffered from Bowen, and also with the unhappiness which was in his house. I said I would do all in my power to help him. Moulton said this was an apology which any gentleman could accept. He said,—"Theodore, you ought to accept this apology when he expresses regret for the past, and promises to help you in the future." Tilton then accepted my apology, we shook hands and Tilton withdrew. I do not think there was any talk of the charges made by Mrs. Tilton on this occasion. After Tilton left I do not recall much of what passed between Moulton and myself. There was no such thing said by Moulton when Tilton came in as, "He has done all that a man could do, except to make a public statement of facts," or anything to that effect; there was not a word said to me by Tilton about "how he could be expected to forgive a man who had ruined his home and family." Attributing this language to me is fiction. I did not say I would bow my head to go out of public life, or ask whether it would be better to sell Plymouth Church. I made no statement with regard to suicide or going on a voyage. There was nothing at that interview said about Tilton desiring to give publicity to the matter. There was nothing said about informing my wife, or that she would become my enemy, or that to refrain from telling her would be an additional favour. I said, on that occasion, my feeling was not for myself, but for Elizabeth, and that my age and experience ought to have led me to avoid this
