To French Compositors.

THREE French Compositors WANTED
—AT THE—
GOVT PRINTING OFFICE,
Wellington Street.

To the Independent Electors
—OF THE—
COUNTY OF OTTAWA.

GENTLEMEN,—
The powers, with which you honoured me as your representative, having expired, you will shortly be called upon, under the Constitution, to exercise the elective franchise in re-electing them. A large number of electors have requested me to run again a candidate, and, having served you faithfully to the best of my ability, and not being conscious of having violated, in any way, the trust reposed in me, I come forward to ask a renewal of your confidence, and to solicit your suffrages at the ensuing election.
During the time I have represented this county, many changes have taken place; and they have all been in the way of progress. The increase of industry has greatly augmented our population, and commerce, manufactures and agriculture have largely increased by their combined influence the comfort and material happiness of all classes. It has been my good fortune to obtain large grants of public money, which have been expended in colonization roads and other improvements, calculated to give remote settlements access to the best markets for their produce. Over twenty-five thousand dollars of public money have been laid out in this way and have produced most beneficial results. I have also, with other patriotic representatives, had the privilege of devoting my utmost exertions to promote the construction of a railroad on the north shore of the Ottawa, which, commencing at Quebec, will extend through Montreal to Aylmer. This road by-law is to be completed before the close of the present year; and, no doubt, a continuance of the same patriotic policy on the part of the Government, will enable your next representative, on retiring from office, to congratulate you upon the completion of this line to Georgian Bay. This will make the Valley of the Ottawa the principal channel through which the rich products of North Western America will seek the markets of Europe, and will enrich the whole region through which it will pass, with the arts and comforts of civilized life. If elected, it will be my pleasing duty to support in Parliament every measure for these and kindred objects.
I have not hitherto noticed the diatribes and abuse of certain parties relative to the charter of Hull. The business of such people is agitation. To excite one class of our fellow-citizens against another, is their means of action. Their personal interests is their object. To bring themselves into notice, even though it be upon the ruins of the peace of the community, is what they desire. If I had offices to give these people or gold to buy them, they would flatter me sincerely as they have abused me. To them I will not deign to reply. But to my old and tried Catholic friends, I can say, with the full conviction that they will believe me, that at the last meeting of the Council of the Township of Hull, it was agreed that the provisions with respect to schools should be in strict conformity with the school law of Montreal and Quebec; and when I consented to Mr. Bellingham, I instructed him to see that this understanding was carried out. As, however, there are clauses in the act which bear harshly on the Catholic population, I sincerely regret that these features were not noticed before the act was passed. As it is, I will, if elected, lose no time in having these defects corrected. When I am accused of neglecting the interests of the people of Hull, I can only point to my record, my labours and the busy industry that surrounds my home, and which my perseverence under many adverse circumstances has created. Let these agitators point out some public or private work, tending to public welfare, in which they have participated, and I will reply, until then all I can do is to assure the public that in this as in all my public life, I have acted in perfect good faith, and with the sole view of promoting the best interests of the people, irrespective of class or creed. They will judge, between me and this worthless, newly-arrived tribe of adventurers, who, with an eye on this election, have for months, been stirring up strife among us.
As an independent member, I have heretofore supported only the measures which in my judgment promoted the public welfare, caring very little for political theorie. Should I be elected I will follow the same course, and shall always be found on the side of the men and the measures that tend, by practical legislation, to the good of the Ottawa Valley, and the development of its resources. I think that even my opponents will admit I have some interest, and have shewn some practical ability in this direction.
If a system of industrious immigration could be directed to this county, it would repay our industry in the production of wealth. I shall give my best exertions to that end. I admit that those who, having got into a good thing, would close the door to others of any nationality, but in my opinion the best way to promote immigration is by building up our manufactures, and by the prosecution of works of public utility, that will give high wages to the laborer and good market to agriculturists,—by giving immigrants good laws and equal rights, and making them feel that they are in every sense to participate in the privileges of British subjects. To do this we must trample out every vestige of class narrow, selfish, Know nothing spirit that would exclude any class of industrious immigration, or restrict in its operation the broad principles of British justice.
I have made this address longer than would be necessary if I could have the privilege of seeing you personally to explain myself. Many causes prevent me from doing so at the present time. All I can do is to ask all good citizens to join heartily in the duty consultation, to promote the prosperity of this County; and, if they deem me worthy to be entrusted with the interests of its honest, industrious and peaceable population, to record their votes for me at this election, and to believe me, whether in public or private life, their
Obedient Servant,
E. B. EDDY.
