LACROSSE.—The game of Lacrosse announced to be played between the Wide Awakes and the Montcalms on last Saturday did not take place, to the disappointment of the many persons who were present. There was some disagreement among the members of the two clubs which resulted in a pugilistic encounter.

GOING TO OGDENSBURG.—Two Lacrosse Clubs from this city will visit Ogdensburg on the 8th of September, having been invited to play at a grand "pic nic" to be held there on that day. Our Yankee friends have fine sport in store as a contest at this game between two of our best clubs will doubtless afford a large amount of amusement to spectators.

The Ottawa Ladies College opens on Monday the 1st September. Mr. Butler's successor, Prof. Edward Fischer late of Berlin, Germany, is very highly recommended by Julius Eichberg of the Boston Conservatory, and other musical notabilities. The boarding list includes many new names. 3925-2

FIRE.—An alarm of fire was sounded yesterday evening from a box near Ashburnham [illegible]. The fire was in a veneered brick tenement building, owned by Mr. James Currell. The reels were promptly to hand, and soon succeeded in extinguishing the flames. The damage will not exceed three or four hundred dollars, which is fully covered by insurance.

A HASTY ACT.—It is rumoured that the City Engineer has given the Gas Company permission to drain into the main sewer. If this be true it is deeply to be regretted, for the condition of the bed of the lake By Wash with tar ought to be a sufficient warning to prevent its being allowed to destroy the sewer. Nothing that is likely to prove of injury to this main drain should be allowed to enter it. It is to be hoped the hint will be acted upon at once.

NUMBERING HOUSES.—Most of the streets have been gone over and prepared for numbering, in accordance with a resolution of the Council passed a short time ago. It is somewhat singular, however, that the contractor entrusted with putting up the tin plates, did not follow, so that the work would be more complete. The new Directory will shortly be issued and will contain the changes recently ordered, but it will be an anomalous state of affairs to find a work of this kind misleading the public. The names of the streets should be put up at the corners at the same time, as many of the names have been changed by the recent by law.

OPEN DRAINS ON BANK STREET.

Nearly a Serious Accident.

A couple of open trenches for supplying water service pipes to houses on Bank Street, not far from its junction with Sparks, were left in such an unprotected state last night as to be positively dangerous. On one trench there was but a single faint light about the centre of the road, and from its location it was impossible to tell which side of it to go to avoid the danger of going right into the trench, there being no fence to prevent such a thing happening. On the other trench, nearer Sparks street, the man in charge did not deem a light necessary at all, notwithstanding that the drain was fully three feet deep. As a proof of the danger, a horse belonging to Mr. R. S. Cassells was being driven down Bank street in a buggy containing his son and a couple of ladies, when he took the wrong side of the light and went right into the trench, the occupants of the vehicle barely escaping with their lives. A large crowd gathered and after considerable trouble and the cutting of the harness the poor animal was extricated from his perilous position. A young man who apparently, had charge of the trenches in question when remonstrated with as to the necessity of putting a light on the other trench, was somewhat impertinent, in fact so much so that a magistrate was sent for, who immediately procured a couple of policemen to see that the trenches were properly protected, and left instructions to see that the contractor was duly prosecuted. There has been so much gross carelessness for the last year or two by contractors in the matter of digging trenches, and so many accidents have taken place, that it is high time an example were made of some of them. On Hugh street, between Queen and Maria streets, there were also several ditches open and not a solitary light on any one of them. This state of things should not be allowed to exist another night in the city.

LETTER FROM BISHOP DUHAMEL.

The following letter, accompanied by a handsome donation, was received yesterday by Mr. Connell Higgins, Secretary of the late O'Connell Celebration Committee, from His Lordship Bishop Duhamel. The absence of His Lordship from the city on a pastoral visit through the Diocese prevented its being done earlier, but the tone of the letter is of such a character in regard to the recent great event that we, with pleasure, give space for its publication:—

To Connell Higgins, Esq., Sec. of O'C.C.C.

SIR,—I heartily congratulate the Sub-Committee of the O'Connell Centennial Celebration Committee upon their good thought of procuring a statue or portrait of the great Irish Liberator, to be presented to the Dominion Parliament.

Every Irishman will, no doubt, countenance and support the movement, for every one owes a debt of gratitude to the great man who, with so few means, restored beauty and liberty to Christian Ireland, and whose eloquent voice has taught us to remember the soul in the midst of political life, and in the midst of religious life to remember our country.

Please accept this small amount as the contribution of an admirer of Daniel O'Connell.

I have the honor to be,
Truly yours,
J. THOMAS,
Bishop of Ottawa.

Ottawa, Aug. 30, 1875.

HOME AGAIN.—Mr. O'Gara, Police Magistrate, has returned from the seaside and again resumed his duties on the bench, much to the relief of the City Fathers who have in turn for the last few weeks been endeavoring to dispense justice in the halls of the Police Court.

A HORSE TAKES FRIGHT.—As two young men were driving down Metcalfe street last evening, their horse took fright at a dead horse lying in front of Mr. Buckley's livery stables. They were thrown from the vehicle, but were only slightly injured. No further damage was done beyond some slight scratches to the buggy.

THE GYPSIES.—A band of Gypsies are at present loitering in and around the city. They monopolized the corner of Sparks and Elgin streets for over an hour yesterday in selling and trading horses, greatly to the annoyance of those who had to pass that way. These wandering refuges had better hereafter proceed to the Market Square to transact such business.

Col. Baker's Quarters.

HOW HE IS TREATED IN JAIL—A LIBERAL ALLOWANCE OF LIQUOR.

From the London Daily Telegraph

Since the conviction of Col Baker a great deal of speculation has been on foot as to the actual effect of the sentence pronounced upon him by Mr. Justice Brett, whose words, as reported, led first to a very widespread misapprehension with regard to their technical signification. They were:

The sentence I pass is that you be imprisoned in the common jail of this county in such a way as shall not subject you to the physical degradations of which I speak, for twelve calendar months; that you be fined £500, or be further imprisoned until you pay that fine; and that you pay the costs of the prosecution, and be imprisoned for a further time not exceeding three months until you have paid those costs

In the absence of a closer definition of the particular sort of penalty involved in this sentence, it has been supposed that an altogether exceptional punishment had been meted out to Col. Baker; but this supposition is somewhat erroneous. The real fact is that, though not expressly stated, or even suggested, by the phraseology employed by the Judge, the sentence passed on Col. Baker was that of a first-class misdemeanant, and the order for his imprisonment in the Surrey county jail was as a first-class misdemeanant, and was so signed by Mr. Justice Brett. This being the case, the manner in which the prisoner's punishment is carried out is in no respect exceptional. His position and treatment by the prison authorities are clearly laid down by an order of the visiting Justices, and sanctioned by the Home Secretary, in conformity with the act of 1865, the last direction from the Home Office being dated 1866, and signed by Mr. Walpole. As a matter of fact, the treatment to which he is subjected is almost precisely that which, in the days of imprisonment for debt, was applied to debtors of the first class. By the accident of their being no debtors at present confined in Horsemonger lane jail, Col. Baker occupies two rooms of the debtors' side of the prison. He is permitted to furnish these rooms in any way he likes, subject to the sanction of the Governor of the jail. He is not called upon to perform any of the menial work, such as cleaning his rooms and making his own bed, which prisoners in a lower category have to do, and he is permitted to supply himself with food, the only limitation being as to the quantity of wine and beer; of the former he is allowed to consume one pint per diem, of the latter one quart. Between the hours of nine in the morning and six in the evening, Sundays excepted, he may receive visitors in strict privacy. On Sundays he has a pew in the prison chapel apart from the other prisoners. He can, at his pleasure, take exercise alone or in company with other prisoners of his class; but, as there happens to be none at present in the prison, he is not called upon to make election in the matter. With books and papers he is free to supply himself, and it is only with regard to his correspondence that any special surveillance is exercised. All letters addressed to him or written by him to persons outside of the prison are scrutinized by the Governor before passing to his hands or before being posted. Such are the regulations, made by the visiting Justices, and duly sanctioned by the Home Secretary, under which the imprisonment of Colonel Baker is being carried on. Our only purpose in explaining them now is to furnish information that would not have been necessary if the Judge had, in passing the sentence, made it perfectly clear that he regarded Col. Baker as a "first-class misdemeanant."

Thurlow Weed Poisoned.

THE VETERAN RETIRED JOURNALIST'S ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD PROSTRATED—CULPABLE CARELESSNESS IN THE MANAGEMENT OF THE KITCHEN.

Mr. Thurlow Weed's household in West Twelfth street, near Fifth avenue, have been strangely affected within the last few days. He and his daughters and his servants have been suffering severely from a complaint resembling cholera. They were first attacked on Saturday last, a few hours after they had their midday luncheon. William, Mr. Weed's aged colored waiter, who has been with him many years, was the first to complain. He had violent pains soon afterwards. Mrs. Timmerman, one of the servants, exhibited like symptoms, and at about five o'clock in the afternoon Miss Harriet Weed was stricken. She had severe spasms, followed by retchings, and was compelled to take to her bed. Mr. Weed was greatly alarmed and sent for his family physician, Dr. Taber, of West Thirteenth street; he, as well as his partner, Dr. Reynolds, being away, Dr. Oliver White, West Twelfth street, was called in. The doctor thought at first that the symtoms were those of cholera, but on inquiry of each of the patients he learned that none of them had eaten anything that was likely to disturb them. He prescribed for them, and after he had gone Miss Weed's maid was attacked as the others had been. Mr. Weed was seized with pains at midnight, and three physicians were summoned to his bedside. They were puzzled.

One of the servants said that the copper tea kettle had been scoured that day with oxalic acid, and that the kettle was used to boil water for the tea and coffee that was served at luncheon. It was supposed that some of the oxalic acid had been accidentally left in the kettle, just enough to act on the copper in forming a slight combination of arseniate of copper, a deadly poison. Mr. Weed was not able to walk until Monday afternoon. When he was first attacked a telegram was sent to his married daughter, Mrs Barnes of Albany, as it was feared that he would not survive the attack. The physicians say that he and Miss Weed and the three servants had a narrow escape.

PROPOSED CAR COMPETITION.—A meeting of railway officials was held in Detroit a few days ago, James F. Joy, W. B. Strong, H. B. Ledyard, Frederick Broughton, and Gen. Horace Porter being among the number present. The meeting was for the purpose of consulting with Webster Wagner, of the Wagner Palace Car Company, who is endeavoring to procure a right of way for his palace cars over roads in the West at least equal to that employed by the Pullman Palace Car Company. The Wagner interest has equal rights in the roads of the East, as far west as Suspension Bridge, and it is proposed to carry the project through to Chicago at least, and to the Mississippi if possible. The roads represented at Monday's meeting are the Michigan Central and its branches, the Great Western of Canada and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy line, all of which are at present practically monopolized by the Pullman Company, the Wagner Company being allowed to run only one car over the roads per day. The Pullman Company, besides the earnings of their cars, charge the railroads a mileage of four cents, and the Wagner corporation offer to rely entirely upon car earnings if the privilege asked for is granted. After thoroughly discussing the matter, Mr. Wagner was assured by Mr. Joy, of the Central, and Mr. Broughton, of the Great Western, that they would present his proposition at the next meeting of the Board of Directors. It is understood that Mr. Wagner will, if successful in his right of way project, establish the general office for the western division of the Wagner Palace Car Company at Detroit.

The Scottish word "rink" is familar in both Great Britain and America, from the establishment of skating rinks and the game of curling on the ice. Jamieson, in his Scottish Dictionary, says, "rink is used in the South of Scotland for a straight line." Dr. Charles Mackay derives the word from the Gaelic rian, order, arrangement, adjustment; and rianaich (abbreviated and corrupted into rink), to arrange, adjust, and set in order.

The children of the poor, who thirty or forty years ago were all brought up to drink milk, now drink tea without milk at every meal, and fail in consequence to develope either bone or muscle. There can be no doubt that this loss of milk; which is nearly universal, and extends to the country as well as to the town, is the greatest loss that children have sustained, and unfortunately it is nearly irremediable. In the country milk can only be obtained by the poor with great trouble and exertion, even when, as is now rarely the case, the farmers will sell it to them; and in cities it is far too expensive for habitual use. A good supply of milk to a household of four children would cost nearly as much as meat, and to prescribe a milk diet to a factory lad of twe ve is as sensible as to prescribe champagne.—Spectator.
