Lady Neill has a family of nine—six sons and three daughters—the eldest still under age.

The Pays states that the British troops sent from England to India, via Egypt, had arrived at Aden from Malta in twelve days. Stores and an hospital had been established at Aden for the reception of troops.

The following advertisement appeared in one of the St. Petersburg papers:—"To be sold, portraits of Nana Sahib, the Indian chief, the slayer of the English, at 15 copecks each, the proceeds for the relief of the sufferers in the Crimea."

Two more volumes of Lord Macaulay's history, bringing it down to the end of the reign of Queen Anne, are approaching completion; and it is said that they will be published shortly after the completion of the cheap edition now in course of issue in monthly volumes.

The East India Company, at a special general court held on the 16th, carried a resolution granted to Major General Sir Archdale Wilson an annuity of £1000, and to Lady Neill and Mrs. Nicholson, mother of the late Brigadier-General John Nicholson, special pensions of £500 per annum respectively.

It appears that one Englishman at Delhi, having been captured by the mutineers, lent them important assistance as an artilleryman, to save his life. Four others also, at Moradabad, turned Mussulmans for the same purpose. But when we reflect that out of 5,000 Christians, exposed to death and still more horrible tortures, only five yielded their faith to their fears, we cannot but recognize an unswerving fidelity to religious faith not exceeded even in the more noisy era of the crusaders.

General Canrobert has written to a lady now in Paris, widow of an English general killed in the Crimea, a letter full of the deepest admiration of the British troops in India. "No one who has seen the skill and valour displayed by the British officers can have had any doubt of the issue," says the Marshall; "but even we are astonished at the speed with which these immense results have been accomplished."—Court Journal.

A letter from Allahabad says—"Nana Sahib has again bolted. His last advice to his men is rich: "Keep out of the way of the blue caps (Madras fusiliers). They hit without firing (in allusion to the long range of the Enfield rifles, the report of which was often not heard); and when the Highlanders get near any village kill all the women, for these are the men who have been sent out by the Queen to avenge the death of their women and children, and that is the reason they go into action with kilts!"

Gallant Exploit.—The following is an extract from a private letter from her Majesty's ship "Highflyer," dated Hong Kong, 13th of October: "Two of our midshipmen, a few days since, whilst paddling up one of the creeks in a canoe, came suddenly upon a long rowboat. Cheering at the top of their voices, the younsters pulled alongside, when the Chinese crew, anticipating, no doubt, that the small boat was only the first of an expeditionary force, were taken by surprise, and jumped overboard. The two officers jumped on board, and, finding the rowboat deserted, cut her cable, and towed her down to the ship. This easily-won prize had five guns, a quantity of other arms, and rowed thirty-six oars."

The editor of a Western paper owes a bank about $1,000, for which they hold his note. The defaulting wag announces thus in his paper: There is a large and rare collection of the autographs of distinguished individuals deposited for safe keeping in the cabinet of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank, each accompanied with a note in the handwriting of the autographist. We learn that they have cost the bank a great deal of money. They paid over a thousand for ours. We hope great care is taken to preserve these capital and interesting relics, as should they be lost, we doubt whether they could be easily collected again. Should the bank, however, be so unfortunate as to lose ours we'll let them have another at half price in consequence of the very hard times."—N. O. Delta.

Monster Ships.—In the midst of the attention which the recent attempt to launch the Great Eastern has caused in England, we find that already a still larger vessel is projected; and one, in comparison to which the unlaunched monster will herself look small. This new ship is projected by Mr. Clare, an engineer of Liverpool; and though he proposes she shall be 30,000 tons measurement, and 1,000 feet in length, she is to draw less water than the Great Eastern, and to sail much faster. Her characteristics are to be: side-wheels, with propellor, and flat bottom. It is stated that Mr. Clare's proposals have received flattering encouragement from the Government; and that, should the Great Eastern be successful he will undoubtedly be able to interest sufficient capital to undertake his plan.

The Plunder in Delhi.—A letter from a soldier of the 6th Carabineers says: "For a description of the riches of Delhi my pen is inadequate. Cashmere shawls, inlaid with gold, bodies covered with gold lace, skirts of dresses, watches, bars of gold, beds of silk and down, such as no nobleman's house in England could produce—you would see Sikhs carrying out of Delhi the first day as if they were almost nothing. A shawl which in England would fetch £100, they were selling for four rupees, and you may depend our fellows were not behind them. It is supposed the Rifles will go to England with upwards of £1000 each, though General Wilson has issued an order that the prizes shall be all put together and divided. Most of our men are worth upwards of 100 rupees."

Decimal Currency, and Decimal Weights.—Our merchants are now obliged to send their checks to the banks in dollars and cents and to draw their promissory notes and bills (except in sterling) in dollars and cents. This almost of necessity, involves keeping the cash book and the bill book in the same currency, a step which would further render necessary a similar change in all the books of account. We take it to their advantage if not absolutely necessary, to follow the example of the banks and the Government. The public convenience arising from the change will be much enhanced by the movement being general—in truth will mainly depend on it. No man in his senses can doubt the decimal currency is infinitely superior to the old system, however much many people's affections may cling round the pounds, shillings and pence, which for long years will continue to be popularly used in common parlance, just as shillings and pence still have in the United States. There is nothing more difficult to change than the forms and languages of account to which a people has been accustomed. Inconvenience will for a while be felt from the want of the necessary coins to represent the new currency in small change; but we expect soon to receive these. We informed our readers some time ago of the preparation of the dies then in process. As far as we can gather, the proposal to introduce decimal weights, which we before advocate, meets with much favor; and we hope will become general.—Montreal Gazette.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

London, 18th December, 1857.

The business of the brief Session of Parliament was brought to a close on Saturday, and both Houses are adjourned until Thursday, the 4th of February. The Government proposal of a life pension of £1,000 a year to General Havelock was generally felt, both in and out of Parliament to be a very shabby acknowledgment of that distinguished officer's services, and its continuance for two lives was strongly urged on all hands. Lord Palmerston, making a virtue of necessity, intimated on Friday that in the further progress of the bill government were prepared to yield to the generally expressed wish on the subject. Another bill has been brought into the Commons by Lord John Russell, with the view of enabling Baron Rothschild to take his seat in Parliament. No opposition was offered to its introduction, but Sir F. Thesiger and several other members expressed their determination to contest the measure in its subsequent stages. The bill will very likely pass the Commons, but little doubt is entertained of its defeat in the Lords. From a statement made by the Premier on Saturday it appears that the vexed question of Church-rates will from a subject of legislation on the re-assembling of Parliament. What with India, Reform, Jewish Disabilities, and the Church-rates, we should imagine honorable members will have quite enough on their hands for one session.—London cor. of Colonist.

MARRIAGE OF THE PRINCESS ROYAL.

The 25th of January is now positively fixed for the marriage of the Princess Royal. The current rumor is that the Parisian custom of open theatres on days of national rejoicing is to be introduced here at the coming wedding. These dramatic representations "by command," are at all events to be given at Her Majesty's Theatre, whether the admittance is gratuitous or not. A tragedy, an English opera, and a comedy will be performed. Our readers may imagine the anxiety which will be felt to be present at these state performance. The more important ceremony will take place in the Chapel Royal, St. James, which is now being fitted up for the occasion. Whilst one daughter is shortly to be married, the hand of another is about to be demanded. The Princess Alice is sought in marriage by the Prince of Orange, and Lieutenant General Von Omphal has, we are told, set out from the Hague to make an official "demand" to this effect.

THE RELIEF OF LUCKNOW.

The intelligence brought by Overland Mail which arrived in London on Sunday night is of a most cheering character. The garrison of Lucknow was bravely holding out, notwithstanding all communication with the fortified post of Alumbagh was cut off, and the extensive plain lying between the latter place and Lucknow was occupied by upwards of 50,000 rebels, under, it is supposed, the command of the arch-traitor Nana Sahib. Indeed the garrison was so well circumstanced that General Outram had intimated to the Commander-in-Chief that it could hold out for some days, and he begged that no thought of its danger might interfere with a complete victory. Meanwhile, it is satisfactory to know that vigorous and prompt measures were being taken not only to relieve the beleaguered fortress, but also to deal a death blow to the rapidly declining cause of the mutineers. Shortly after the battle of Agra, Col. Greathed's victorious column was merged into that of Brigadier Grant, and the united force, 3,500 strong, under the command of the latter officer, continued its march to Cawnpore, where it arrived on the 26th of October. Having been reinforced to 5,000, the Brigadier crossed the Ganges on the 30th, with a large convoy of provisions, and proceeded without interruption to Alumbagh, where he awaited the arrival of Sir Colin Campbell. We learn that Sir Colin reached Cawnpore on the 3rd of November, and he left again for Lucknow on the 9th at the head of a force variously stated at from 1,500 to 5,000 men. He was expected to arrive at Alumbagh on the 13th or 14th, when he would at once take command of the whole of the troops at that place. Great confidence is expressed in the result of Sir Colin Campbell's advance towards Lucknow, although it is obvious his movements will be opposed by whatever force Nana Sahib can muster against him. With three head like Havelock, Outram, and Campbell ranged against him, Nana Sahib, may begin to consider his latter end.

The King of Portugal

A Lisbon letter relates the following exemplificative of the devotedness of the young King of Portugal in one of his visits to the military hospital:—"Approaching a bed on which was lying the trumpeter of a cavalry regiment, he stooped down and throwing his arms round the almost inanimate body of the patient, cried out with a firm but kindly voice: "Cheer up, friend, cheer up! You are not going to die yet. Take courage! I am sure I shall one of these days hear the sound of your trumpet under the windows of my palace!" The sick man seemed to rouse up at the sound of the young King's voice, his eyes opened, and a faint colour rose to his cheek. He pressed his sovereign's hand in token of gratitude, and from that moment revived to existence, and he is now not only out of danger, but recovering rapidly." "Galignani," in repeating this anecdote, says: "We believe we can state that the Emperor of the French has been so struck by the courage and devotedness displayed by the King of Portugal during the whole of the visitation of the yellow fever that his Majesty has charged Count Walewski, Minister of Foreign Affairs, to transmit to the King, through Baron de Pavia Portuguese Minister, the expression of his sincere admiration."

TORONTO MARKETS.

Toronto January 6, 1858.

The market for the past week has been very meagrely supplied with all descriptions of produce; the election in the counties had some effect on the supply.

Wheat—There was not over 1000 bushels produced in the market for the past week, ending this day, and the average price may be quoted at 4s per bushel.

Flour has been very dull, on sales of any amount having taken place, the consumption being all local. We quote prices as follow: Superfine $3 25 a $3 50; Fancy $3 50 a $3 78; Extra $4 00 a $4 50.

Barley has been in supply for the past week to the extent of about 500 bushels, and has ranged from 1s 10½d a 2s 8d per bushel. The brewers seem to be fully supplied, and are not at all anxious to raise the price by competition.

Oats have been in short supply, according to the demand, for the past week consequently prices have advanced, viz., 1s 6d a 1s 8d per bushel.

Hay has been in good supply during the week, but prices are rather downward. Not over $19 has been obtained for the best quality.
