Poetry.

MAY MORNING.

BY ALEXANDER M'LACHLAN.

There's joy in the greenwood,
For morn has awoke;
O'er mountain and valley
The song is afloat.
A joy as of Eden,
A gladness, a bloom,
As if earth contain'd not
A tear, nor a tomb.

On hills and in valleys
The lambs are at play;
The cuckoo is calling
In woods far away:
The streams are rejoicing
To wander with spring;
With the songs of their gladness
The valleys do ring.

The Spirit of Beauty
Is ranging abroad,
And show'ring her daisies
To deck the green sod,
She's over the mountain
And through the deep dell,
And hangs by the fountain
Her pretty blue bell.

She cleeds with her ivy
The old ruin'd wall,
And leans o'er the cliff and
The steep waterfall;
And where she has tarried
Beside the lone spring,
The primrose bank hangs like
A beautiful dream.

Her footsteps we trace, where
The violet blows,
And the joy of her face, in
The laughing wild rose.
A mighty emotion,
Old ocean, thou art;
But the song of the syren
Has hush'd thy great heart.

The wild bee is humming;
The lark is on the wing;
The cushet is cooing
Beside the lone spring:
The Poet is coming
To join the glad throng,
Impell'd by love's spirit,
The soul of his song.

Why is the letter S like a sewing machine? Because it makes needles needless.

A word to the weaker vessel.—A lady who obstinately persists in wearing hoops, ought not to complain of being ridiculed. If she will make a barrel of herself, she must expect to be treated as a butt.—Punch.

Bachelors are not quite so stupid as involuntary maidens would have us believe. One of the inveterates being asked, the other day, why he did not secure some fond one's company in his voyage on the ocean of life, replied,—

"I would, if I were sure such an ocean would be Pacific.

Text and Toilet.—"Mary, my love, do you remember the text this morning?"

Mary—"No, pa, I never can remember the text, I've such a bad memory.'

Mother—"By the way, Mary, did you notice Susan Brown?"

Mary—"Oh, Yes. What a fright She had on her last year's bonnet done up, a pea-green silk, a black lace mantilla, brown gaiters, an imitation Honiton collar, a lava, bracelet, her old ear rings, and such a fan? Oh, my!"

Mother—"Well, my dear, your memory is certainly bad."

During the search for female compositors, it is reported that the following dialogue took place:

"Good morning, Mr. Henpeck. Have you any daughters that would make good type-setters?"

"No, but I have got a wife that would make very fine 'devil.'"

A gentleman, taking an apartment, said to a land-lady—

"I assure you, madam, I never left a lodging but the landlady shed tears."

"I hope, sir," said she, "it was not because you went away without paying."

There was recently a concert on the skirts of Newcastle, and the audience comprised some amateurs from a mine. In the course of the evening the Paganini of the orchestra stepped forward to play "a solo on the violin." His ambitious selection was the famous "Carnival," through which he struggled with exemplary courage, and at the end he dropped his bow and fiddle by his side, right and left, and made obeisance, expecting a burst of applause; instead of which his ears were astounded by an exclamation from the back seats:

"Aw say, fiddler, are ye gaun to be all neet tunin' that fiddle o' yourn, or are ye gaun to give us a tune?"

Prosy was boring Jerrold with a long story, and wound up with, "I thought I should have died with laughter."

'I wish to Heaven you had,' said Jerrold.

'That cat has got a cold,' said a friend to Jerrold, pointing to a domestic favorite.

'Yes,' Jerrold replied, 'the poor thing s subject to cat-arrh.'

Pat was hungry, and got out of the cars for refreshment. The cars thoughtlessly went on without him, which excited Pat's ire to the utmost. 'Ye spalpeen!' he cried starting on a run, and shaking his fist as he flew after the train, 'stop there, ye ould stame waggin, ye murtherin stame ingin—re've got a passenger aboard that's lift behind!'

SLIGHT MISTAKE.—'Did you say my brother Jim didn't know as much as Smith's dog?' 'No, I said Smith's dog knew more than your brother Jim.'

A man had a horse to sell. A wag asked him if the animal had the botts.—'Shure an' he has the botts an' ivery other advantage.'

Little boy—'What's the use of an eclipse?' Astronomer—'Oh, it gives the sun time for reflection.'

If you would know one of the minor secrets of happiness it is this: cultivate, cheap pleasures. Good taste is not the ruinous thing it has been supposed to be; but bad taste is always expensive. For instance, did you notice our breakfast ware? Almost without ornament and of common earthenware, yet you could not but have remarked, if you noticed it at all that the forms were good; they were, indeed, copied from classical models.

EDITING IN THE EAST INDIES.—In the account of the trial of the ex-King of Delhi, we read:

"The court was occupied the whole of the eleventh day with the examination of a person named Chunee, formerly editor of a daily paper entitled the Delhi News, conducted on a novel principle—the editor's duty being to write his paper full, and then carry it around and read it to his subscribers.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD BUTTER.

Canada has notoriously and egregiously failed in producing good butter. The defects of nearly all that comes to market are numerous and great, and the deception, and annoyance, disputing, trouble and profanity occasioned by dirty, mixed, slovenly, rancid and oversalted butter, constitute in the aggregate an evil of no common magnitude.

The importance of the butter trade to Canada can scarcely be over-estimated and every farmer and merchant and newspaper in the Province, should do what in them lies to improve and develope this staple production.

We have been at pains to procure from the best practical authorities the information necessary for making and putting up a superior article, and if the following rules be attended to they will probably add several hundred thousand dollars to the income of Canada annually. We divide them into three heads entitled, the Farming Department, the Dairy Department, and the Packing Department.

THE FARMING DEPARTMENT.

In order to procure good butter, good pasture and good cows are necessary. Pastures should be cleared of all garlic, leeks, or other evil weeds, and be harrowed thoroughly and topdressed every fall. In order to give good hay for butter purposes, a very rich field should be sowed with vetches and clover.—The vetches will be fit for mowing in July, and again in September just at the time when pastures fail, and the clover will produce a crop of hay next year, and for four or five years following. A proportion of clover hay helps to produce good milk.

The Cows should be of a good breed, giving sweet rich milk, and they should be kept in good condition, inasmuch as poor cows will never give rich butter. A proper proportion of carrots and mangold wurtzels should be cultivated for winter feed, but turnips should in no case be given to Milch Cows.

THE DAIRY DEPARTMENT.

A clean, sweet, airy, cool apartment, if possible a cellar, should be used as a milk house, and all the dishes should be kept scrupulously clean by frequent washing or scalding. The temperature at churning should be always the same. The color of the butter should be as far as practicable uniform, and that a rich yellowish white.—The cream should not be allowed to become in any degree rotten or bad tasted. This fault is a most common one and destroys butter. It is the result of careless, slovenly, dirty habits on the part of the person having charge of the dairy, and is quite unpardonable. If any cream is spoiled, it should on no account be made into butter. Another very common fault is to leave a portion of the milk in the butter—indeed it is scarcely ever taken out with sufficient care. All milk and whey should be most scrupulously worked and washed out, but too much washing is injurious as it tends to take the fine freshness of the butter, and to give it a waxy tallowy character. Great care should be used in salting; the salt should be fine, clean, and thoroughly worked in. Neither too much nor too little.

PACKING DEPARTMENT.

The following particulars are from a practical man who has great experience in the butter trade, and handles a large quantity annually. The usual way of packing butter in country stores, is to receive the kegs from the cooper in a pretty rough state, often of unseasoned or sapwood, and sometimes even charred by the fire used to smooth and clean them. Then an assistant in the store is told to pack these kegs with butter from the puncheons or large tube, into which the lumps were thrown as bought from the farmers. This youth jams as many lumps as he can into the keg covers them with brine and heads up; and when one of these kegs is striped, it presnts an extraordinary appearance. The lumps, if the weather has been cold, are all distinct with crevices between. They are all of different colors, some being pretty good quality, while others are rancid. The outsides are discolored by the cask, and perhaps by the charcoal of which we have spoken. And very likely both ends of the keg have had a heavy layer of coarse salt which has worked into the butter. No two kegs, however, can be relied on as alike. If the weather has been warm, the mass has run together, and does not nearly fill the keg, whilst the discoloration from the unseasoned wood is much greater, and altogether the appearance, smell and taste are anything but inviting.

There are a number of careful and experience packers in Canada who send only good butter, and that in fine order, but the greater number adopt something like the slovenly plan indicated above. How important than that this carelessnes should be remedied! and the remedy is not difficult.—The kegs should be made of well seasoned white or black ash, white being the best, but sapwood must on no account be used. Let them be smooth and clean in the inside and with the dry tare marked distinctly on each keg by the cooper. Soak them thoroughly with cold water for a night, and scald them thoroughly with boiling water to take of any bad taste. Let them cool completely, wash them out with brine, and pack the butter as closely as possible, each quality and color being kept seperate. A cotton cloth soaked with brine should be laid on the bottom before packing, and another on the top, the last covered with a thin layer of damp salt. An excellent plan for storekeepers to adopt would be to keep three or four kegs of different qualities and colors, always packing, and whenever they purchase a lump pack it at once in the keg that it most nearly matched, incorporating it as completely as posssible with what had gone before, and seeing that it was kept covered with brine till the keg was full and headed up.

Each store should have a clean, airy celler, expressly for packing and storing butter, until it can be forwarded to market. Tubs or tinnets sell best for city use; kegs for exportation.

LORD NAPIER.

At the anniversary celebration of the St. George's Society in New York, Lord Napier, the British Ambassador, was among the guests. The news of the capture of Lucknow had just arrived and caused considerable animation. On his health being proposed, his lordship delivered a very elegant address, in the course of which he said:—"England repudiates the sordid safety of an insolated and idle power. It is the boast of England to be embarked on a course of ubiquitous activity and unceasing progress.—We believe that our purposes are good that our actions are honest, that our work deserves, on the whole; the commendation of men and the favor of Providence. This very day we have learned that the fantastic fabric of barbarous empire, supported by delusion and despair, has crumbled under the thunders of the British guns—(vehement cheering)—and that the Indian mutiny—with all its associations of horror and anguish, of faith, of tenderness, and glory—is vanishing away leaving to us the duties of mercy and the task of restoration. When the gloom had gathered most thickly, then a voice of comfort and encouragement burst from the American people.—[Cheers] That was a fraternal voice, and its tones will not soon expire in the grateful memory of England." His lordship then referred to the marriage of the Princess Royal with the Prince of Prussia. "The union to which I allude has become the gentle symbol of that profound and ancient sympathy which, notwithstanding the disturbances of contemporary politics, still prevails between the nations of Germany and England. That sympathy is founded in the deep and durable engagements of the past. We trace it in our common birth, our common faith, our kindred thought, our confederate arms; in our standards always planted side by side, in the recollections of the great Frederick and of the great duke, on the soil of the German fatherland moistened by our mingled blood. [Loud cheers] Gentlemen [he added, before sitting down], whatever may be the dictinctions between a Palmerston and a Derby Adminstration in the sphere of domestic politics, or on the ampler scene of foreign and colonial affairs, there is one in which the policy of the present Cabinet will strictly coincide with that of their predecessors, in seeking to maintain the most intimate and friendly relations with the United States." [Cheers.]

DR. AMOS & SON, Corner of Main and Quay Streets, Buffalo, New York, are the only Physicians in the State who are members of the Royal College of Surgeons, London. May be consulted from 8 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock at night, on every state and symptom of disease.

The treatment they adopt is the result of upwards of 30 years' extensive and successful practice in London. The most inveterate symptoms of Disease eradicated in eight or nine days, and cases of a slight nature in two or three days at a very moderate expense.—The cure effected without confinement or hindrance from business.

Young Men—Take Particular Notice.

There is an evil habit sometimes indulged in by boys, in solitude, often growing up with them to manhood, and which, if not reformed by them in due time, not only begets serious obstacles to matrimonial happiness, but gives rise to a series of protracted, insidious, and devastating affections. Few of those who give way to this pernicious practice are aware of the consequences, until they find the nervous system shattered, feel strange and unaccountable feelings, and vague fears in the mind.

A Most Scientific Invention.

An instrument for the cure of Genital Debility, or more properly known as Seminal Weakness, Nervous Debility, &c., which are permanently cured in from 15 to 20 days by the use of this instrument, when used conjointly with medicines.

New Remedies and Quick Cures.

DR. AMOS & SON take pleasure in announcing that they have invented a most important instrument for the cure of the above diseases. It has been subjected to a test by the most eminent physicians in London, Paris, Philadelphia and New York. It has been declared the only useful instrument ever yet invented for the cure of Seminal Weakness, or any disease of the genital organs, caused by the secret habits of youth.

Dr. Amos & Son, in order to satisfy the most skeptical as to the merits of these instruments, pledge themselves, that in any instance where they may prove unsatisfactory after a fair trial, the money will be refunded by returning the instrument in good order.

Persons wishing the above useful instrument will observe, that the price, with the accompanying directions, securely packed and sent by mail or express, is ten dollars.

Beware of Imposition.

Beware of empirics and itinerant self-styled professors, who ATTEMPT cures, but never succeed.

Dr Amos & Son have for a long series of years been engaged in an extensive practice in the treatment of these delicate complaints, and are the only legally qualified Physicians who now advertise to cure certain complaints, or from whom genuine European remedies can be obtained.

PERSONS IN ANY PART OF THE WORLD may be successfully treated by forwarding a correct detail of their cases, with a remittance for Medicines, &c., which will be returned with the utmost dispatch, and secure from observation.

DR. MORSE'S
Indian Root Pills.

DR. MORSE, the inventor of Morse's Indian Root Pills, has spent the greater portion of his life in travelling, having visited Europe, Asia and Africa, as well as North America—has spent three years among the Indians of our Western country—it was in this way that the Indian Root Pills were first discovered. Dr. Morse was the first man to establish the fact that all diseases arise from IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD—that our strength, health and life depended upon this vital fluid.

When the various passages become clogged, and do not act in perfect harmony with the different functions of the body, the blood loses its action, becomes thick, corrupted and diseased; thus causing all pains, sickness and distress of every name; our strength is exhausted, our health we are deprived of, and if nature is not assisted in throwing off the stagnant humors, the blood will become choked and cease to act, and thus our light of life will be forever blown out. How important then that we should keep the various passages of the body free and open. And how pleasant to us that we have it in our power to put a medicine in your reach, namely, Morse's Indian Root Pills, manufactured from plants and roots which grow around the mountainous cliffs in Nature's Garden, for the health and recovery of diseased man. One of the roots from which these Pills are made is a Sudorific, which opens the pores of the skin, and assists Nature in throwing out the finer parts of the corruption within. The second is a plant which is an Expectorant, that opens and unclogs the passage to the lungs by copious spitting. The third is a Diuretic, which gives ease and double strength to the kidneys; thus encouraged, they draw large amounts of impurity from the blood, which is then thrown out bountifully by the urinary or water passage, and which could not have been discharged in any other way. The fourth is a Cathartic, and accompanies the other properties of the Pills while engaged in purifying the blood; the coarser particles of impurity which cannot pass by the other outlets, are thus taken up and conveyed off in great quantities by the bowels.

From the above, it is shown that Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills not only enter the stomach, but become united with the blood, for they find their way to every part, and completely rout and release the system from all impurity, and the life of the body, which is the blood, becomes perfectly healthy; consequently all sickness and pain is driven from the system, for they cannot remain when the body becomes so pure and clear.

The reason why people are so distressed when sick, and why so many die, is because they do not get a medicine which will pass to the afflicted parts, and which will open the natural passage for the disease to be cast out; hence, a large quantity of food and other matter is lodged, and the stomach and intestines are literally overflowing with the corrupted mass; thus undergoing disagreeable fermentation, constantly mixing with the blood, which throws the corrupted matter through every vein and artery, until life is taken from the body by disease. Dr. Morse's PILLS have added to themselves victory upon victory, by restoring millions of the sick to blooming health and happiness. Yes, thousands who have been racked or tormented with sickness, pain and anguish, and whose feeble frames have been scorched by the burning elements of fever, and who have been brought, as it were, within a step of the silent grave, now stand ready to testify that they would have been numbered with the dead, had it not been for this great and wonderful medicine, Morse's Indian Root Pills. After one or two doses had been taken, they were astonished, and absolutely surprised, in witnessing their charming effects. Not only do they give immediate ease and strength, and take away all sickness, pain and anguish, but they at once go to work at the foundation of the disease, which is the blood. Therefore, it will be shown, especially by those who use these Pills, that they will so cleanse and purify, that disease—that deadly enemy—will take its flight, and the flush of youth and beauty will again return, and the prospect of a long and happy life will cherish and brighten your days.
