Poetry.

THE MAIDEN'S HEART.

...tting and twisting her golden hair,
...shaded a brow both young and fair,
...maiden sat alone;
...were the gems the maiden wore,
...t for all that the maiden was poor,
...her heart was not her own.

...las! a stranger came one day—
...ole the maiden's heart away,
And gave her in return
...ooth words and a treach'rous kiss,
...poor moments of fancied bliss,
And a bitter lesson to learn.

...knows not—sitting, dreaming there—
...the bitter walking she must bear,
...the cloud that hangs above;
...ade is on her fair young brow,
...is whisp'ring ever soft and low,
"Come back to me, my love!"

...ly a heart is worth more than this—
...than flattering words and a kiss.
...t there! 'tis ever so;
...are not always what they seem,
...love, though fair enough in a dream,
...another word for woe.

Miscellaneous.

Misery loves company, and so does a marriageable young lady.

Genius feeds on adversity, sickens on praise, starves on success.

Women never truly command till they have given their promise to obey.

Poverty sticks to a man after all his friends and the rest of mankind have deserted him.

The man who can hold his ground against a mortgage must be a pretty athletic fellow.

Don't undertake to throw cold water on your wife's darling schemes, unless you want to get into hot.

Josh Billings thinks there used to be more fun in thirty cents than there is now in seven dollars and a half.

The joke at present current in Parliament is, that Ministers have got "Bright's disease," which is always fatal. The pretention, like the joke, is too gloomy.

A boarder at one of the hotels, recently, was observed to shed tears when the cheese was passed. Upon being asked the cause of his agitation, he replied that the cheese was a very moving sight.

The editor who did not mind his stops, introduced some verses thus:—The poem published this week was composed by an unknown friend who has lain in his grave many years for his own amusement.

A Quaint Boy.—A little boy some six years old was using his slate and pencil on the Sabbath, when his father, who was a minister, entered and said:—My son, I prefer that you should not use your slate on the Lord's day. I am drawing churches, father, was the prompt reply.

A windy orator got up once and said, "Sir, after much reflection, consideration, and examination, I have calmly, deliberately, and carefully come to the determined conclusion that those cities where the population is very large, there are a great number of men, women, and children.

The following is an easy method of detecting whether the red color of wine is artificial or otherwise:—A small piece of bread or of sponge which has been well washed is dipped into the wine, and then placed in the water. If the colour is artificial the water will be at once colored: otherwise the color will not be apparent for half an hour.

A gentleman walking along the docks had his attention directed to the floating church. Ah! very unstable principles here—a change twice in every twenty-four hour!" he exclaimed. Listened could see it, and asked how that could be: and was answered, "Don't you see it's High Church or Low Church according to the state of the tide.?"

Will Hamilton, the half wit of Ayr, was hanging about the vicinity of a loch, which was partially frozen. Three young ladies were deliberating as to whether they should venture upon the lake's surface, when one of them suggested that Will should be asked to walk on it first. The proposal was made to him. "Though I'm daft, I'm no ill-bred quickly responded Will; "after you, leddies!"

The other night at a hotel, a convivially disposed gentleman, retiring late, walking independently and somewhat noisily up the stairs and along the corridor to his room. 'Why, what a noise you make, 'said his wife, 'who heard with some anxity the heavy tread of his boots, "how heavily you walk.' "Well, my dear," was the gruff response, "if you can get a barrel of whiskey up stairs with any less noise, I should like to see you do it."

Duplicate Psalm.—With respect to doubt versions, he had heard of a Presbytery where one member moved that there was no use for duplicate versions of any Psalms, and that those we have should be expunged. This was seconded, on which another member made this remark:—"The brother who has made this motion is a very weak brother, and he who has seconded it is another of the same.

A Fall in Mitres. One of the wooden mitres, carved by Grinling Gibbons over a prebend's stall in the Cathedral Church of Canterbury happening to become loose, Jesse White, the surveyor of that edifice, inquired of the Dean whether he should make it fast—"for, perhaps," said Jesse, it may fall on your reverence's head. Well Jesse, said the humorous Cantab, suppose it does falled on my head, I don't think that a mitre falling on my head would hurt it'

Upwards of 4000 clerks been thrown out of employment in London in consequence of the recent bank failures.

Two lawyers, one of whom had grey hair and the other, though just as old a man as his learned friend, had hair which suspiciously black, had some altercation about some question of practice, in which the gentleman with the dark hair remarked to his opponent at the same time looking at the barrister's gray head, A person at your time of life, sir, ought to have had long enough experience to know what is customary in such cases. "Yes sir," was the reply; "you may store at my grey hair if you like. My hair will be grey as long as I live and yours will be black as long as you live.

PROSPECTUS
RICHMOND HILL
PETROLEUM OIL COMPANY!

WHEREAS there exists in the neighborhood very strong indications that OIL exists in paying quantities in several localities, it is highly desirable that a Company should be established to test the matter, and obtain it if possible.

Since in the opinion of many well qualified to judge, SIGNS OF OIL of a most encouraging character exist in the greatest abundance on Mr. Klink's farm, 1½ miles east of Gamble's toll-gate. It is proposed to sink a well there, as being the place most favorable for operations.

The Land can be obtained for ten years, for one-tenth of the Oil. Ten acres have already been leased to secure the site. The probable cost of sinking the well will be about $2,000, about one-half of which will be required to procure material, and go on with the work.

The capital of the Company is to be $2,000, in 40 shares of $50 each; two shares entitles any member to become a director.

As the successful prosecution of the enterprise will confer untold advantages of wealth and prosperity on our village and neighborhood, it is hoped that sufficient support and encouragement may be given to justify its prosecution.
