Dr. W. Brehault Speaker At Ross Doan H. & S.

by M. E. Taylor

Interesting factors were disclosed and a few pet axioms held by many were disputed, if not disproved, during the Ross Doan Home and School meeting on November 2nd.

Dr. Brehault of the Ontario College of Education, Department of Research, whose endeavours are in the field of research into the problems of education, and who has conducted studies for the Atkinson Foundation and for the Carnegie Institute, gave his audience an appreciation for educational research which looks for the different learning abilities of children and the factors which influence their ability to learn, and the barriers which hinder them. He said that research is discovering that children learn through meaningful experiences, that learning must be motivated, and that where he feels at ease the pupil learns more easily. Dr. Brehault gave others facts which research has brought to light: attacking tough unpleasant material is a negative approach to learning; the promotion regularly is generally better than holding back the pupil for another year; that repitition does not ensure learning; that there are NO superior subjects to develop learning. "There are superior learning situations — superior teachers, yes — superior subjects, no." Dr. Brehault stated, "Latin and geometry are no better than home economics and basket-weaving," he said.

Dr. Brehault then led his audience into an active discussion of factors contributing to the fall-out of students as they progress from Grade 1 to University graduation. He gave figures obtained by the Department of Research and the Department of Education from their observation of one hundred pupils who entered school in Grade 1. At Grade 9, 61 were in school; at Grade 10, 56; in Grade 11, 46; in Grade 12, 21; in grade 13, 13. Of these 13, four entered University, and of these four three obtained degrees. "And yet" Dr. Brehault said, "Research shows that one of every three pupils has the gray matter to profit by a university education."

Hat Century And Half Old Answers Roll Call At Vellore W. I. Meet

The topic for the November meeting of Vellore Sr. Women's Institute was Historical Research and Current Events and the motto — What is our generation leaving behind for the future?

The response to the roll call was to wear an old hat and tell about it. One of these hats was at least one hundred and fifty years old. Others were in age groups of fifties, forties, and thirties, and some more modern.

Mrs. H. Stephenson, convenor of the programme, read a paper on the motto showing the progress that had been made in education, health, research and inventions.

Mrs. J. Brownlee presented a history of Richmond Hill, past and present telling origin of the name, establishing of churches, schools and other buildings; changes due to coming of the railroad. Rise in population due to subdivisions, and also of the present numerous clubs and lodges.

Mrs. J. Kyle read a history of Amos Baker's 200 acre farm. This included the erection of the buildings and the making of furniture by Mr. Baker's grandfather. Varieties of apple trees now scarcely known were grown. The influence of religious belief on character and home life was emphasized.

Mrs. A. L. McNeil added a few more points to the history of the McNeil farm on the 6th Concession of Vaughan. She also told of the duties the early settlers were supposed to carry out in order to acquire a title to property.

Mrs. J. McNeil introduced Mrs. Barker who told about the 100th anniversary of Woodbridge Fair held in 1947. This was followed by coloured slides showing pictures of the fair over a period of several years.

Vellore Institute held Family Night on October 31, a Hallowe'en party. The large number in attendance and the varied costumes made the evening a success for fun.

Final arrangements were made for the bazaar to be held at Vellore Memorial Hall, November 21, at 2.30 p.m. Members not present at the meeting can obtain information by phoning a member of the executive committee.

Bring a food gift, a box of cookies, to the December meeting.
