Our I's and.... ....Other Eyes.

Our I's are just as strong as they were fifty years ago, when we have cause to use them. But we have less and less cause to praise ourselves, since others do the praising, and we are more than willing for you to see us through other eyes. This is how we look to S. F. Boyce, wholesale and retail druggist, Duluth, Minn, who after a quarter of a century of observation writes:

"I have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla for more than 25 years, both at wholesale and retail, and have never heard anything but words of praise from my customers; not a single complaint has ever reached me. I believe Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier, that has been introduced to the general public." This, from a man who has sold thousands of dozens of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, is strong testimony. But it only echoes popular sentiment the world over, which has, "Nothing but words of praise for Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Town Council.

Met Monday night. Notice was given that an action for damages, for an unstated sum, was to be taken by Mrs Gilmour on account of injuries sustained by her horse running away last spring near Mr D Ormistons residence. The town solicitor was instructed to take action to defend the same. The following accounts were ordered to be paid. Town and market property—Hatch & Bro for coal oil and locks for lockup, $4 80; A. H. Ailin, methylated spirits, 40c; Jno Blow coal, $11.40; Robt Barnes. lock for lockup and putting on same, $2.70. Streets and improvements—Jno. McCarl, work, $24.63; Wm. Hopper, do $29 20; Jno. Bravender, do $5; Hatch & Bro., nails etc., $3.67: W. H. Noble, lumber and work, $10.13. Relief com.—Mrs. Jennings 5 weeks keep of Mrs Rice, $11.25. W. H. Warner, coal $5.50. Councillor Noble said he noticed in town and market report an item for coal, and asked if tenders had not been asked for and demanded an explanation why one of the tenders made had not been accepted. Deputy Scott said there was evidentally a coal combine existing in town. Coun. Robson stated that as the committee had been given to understand that there was no immediate need for coal the matter had been laid over. Reeve Pringle explained that Mr. Blow had been instructed to supply any coal that was needed and in the meantime, the quality of Mr. Warners coal to be ascertained. Coun. Robson said that it was recommended that Warners coal be accepted. Coun. Noble was satisfied that there was a nigger in the fence. He said that it was not businesslike to dispose of the tender in such a manner. Coun. Hayward contended that Warners coal was of the same relative value as the coal offered by the other tenderers. Deputy Scott remarked that apparently Coun. Noble was taking exception to everything, was in fact brightening up. He was glad if such were the case, as Coun. Nobles department needed a little brightening up. He had inquired into the quality of Warners coal, and had found it highly recommended. The mayor suggested that while the committee is deciding this difficult question of accepting a tender, that some of the coal be procured and its efficacy tested. The street committee recommended the purchase of a quantity of cedar and planks for repairing and building new crossings, and the jail stone for putting on the roads. The Reeve thought that it would be advisable that the different committees strive to economise as far as possible, since the town had so many law suites on hand. Probably before the corporation was through with these matters considerable expense would be entailed, and if such were the case it would be desirable to draw from the appropriations of each department, otherwise money would have to be borrowed. Coun. Smith explained that it was the intention not to pay for the jail stone this year, and the only expense would be the hauling of the same. Considerable discussion as to the right time of year to put stone on the road, the right kind of crossings to build—stone, block or plank—took place without any solution of the problem being arrived at. The reeve eulogized Coun. Smiths management as chairman of streets, but advocated a curtailment of expenditure for the rest of the year. Coun. Hayward understood that a certain appropriation was made and would suppose that that amount was almost exhausted. He did not think it well to put stone on the road at this time of year. Coun. Noble prognosticated that we would have a short, dry fall, and early freezing up, therefore would not put on the stone, which would not work into the road when frozen. Coun. Smith explained that he did not intend to do more than was actually necessary and the mattter was finally left to his discretion. The town band was granted the use of the music hall for a smoking concert. The clerk read a communication from the town solicitor stating that he had been served with a notice of appeal, by the solicitor of Thomas G Deverill, from the judgement of Chancellor Boyd pronounced in the action of Rice vs. Town of Whitby, Thomas Deverill 3rd party. A resolution was passed appointing the Mayor and the finance committee a committee to instruct the town solicitor to enter an appeal and take whatever action was necessary in prosecuting said appeal. The passing of the bylaw appointing returning officers and fixing polling places, was deferred until next meeting and the clerk was requested to negotiate, in the meantime, where polling place, may be secured. Deputy Reeve Scott facetiously proposed that the corporation of the town of Whitby pass a resolution requesting all those who have in any manner whatsoever a grievance against the town to make it known at once, while the council is robed in war paint and feathers or forever hold their peace. Having issued this challenge to all and singular the world in general, the fathers adjourned.

Live Stock Pointers.

Feed cattle by cutting up the shocked corn. It is economical.

The hog that quietly eats and keeps on eating is the hog for profit.

Defective eyesight is often a cause of shying, and the whip will not help that, will it?

One ounce of Scotch snuff to a pound of grease, makes a good application for lice on cattle.

Shorts, corn and oats, with some oil meal, will keep the fall pig growing during the winter.

Feeding cattle on a large scale cannot possibly be done so economically as on a small scale.

It is best to feed cattle only long enough to get a fair profit on them and then let them go.

Lice and worms are the hogs great enemies. When changing hogs from one feed to another it should be done with some care, as well as with other animals.

A Queer Scottish Custom.

In Scotland the custom still prevails of taking down the window blinds when there is a corpse in a house and hanging white sheets across the windows. The custom also prevails in some parts of England, particularly in the northern part, and in many families a special "death sheet" is reserved for the chamber in which the corpse may lie and is often used for many generations.

Turning the Tables.

A Story About Jones and Dobbs That Will be Well Relished.

Science has not yet discovered whether the creature known as the practical joker belongs to the genus homo or to the genus simla. In appearance he resembles the former, while his actions are decidedly those of the latter.

In the case of Dobbs, so pronounced was his mania for joking that his closest friends hardly knew what to make of him, but, since his experience with Jones hopes are entertained that he is at last beginning to see the error of his way and may ultimately reach a point in his development where there will be no doubt of the fact that he belongs to the human family.

It appears that one of Dobbs most cherished antics was to approach a friend on the street, from behind, and softly twitch his pocket as though feeling for a purse. Of course the friend would finally feel the twitching clap his hands on the pocket and turn upon the supposed thief with kindling eye and excited demeanor. Then Dobbs would laugh heartily and thoroughly enjoy himself.

One day he tried this joke on his intimate friend, Jones. A near-by policeman, who was not acquainted with the nature of the case, rushed up just as Jones halted wildly and whirled about with blood in eye. Dobbs joyous laugh was cut short by the policeman who laid a hand on his shoulder and remarked to Jones:

"He was trying to rob you, sir; I saw the whole affair."

"Nonesense!" returned Dobbs; "It is only a joke. This gentlemen is a friend of mine."

But Jones never cracked a smile.

"Is that a fact?" asked the policeman, appealing to Jones.

"Why," returned Jones, by a happy impulse, "I never saw the scoundrel before! Run him in!"

"Thats what I will, sir," returned the blue-coat, taking tighter grip on Dobbs and starting for the patrol-box; "he is a pretty neat grafter—evidently an old hand at the business."

"Look here, Jones," cried Dobbs, "what do you mean? Why this is an outrage! Let me go officer!"

"Not on your life! If you do not stop pulling away i'll give you a taste of my club. Oh, you are a fine bird. You have got gallows written all over your face!"

This was all Jones could stand and he broke away from the rapidly collecting crowd and had a quiet laugh around the corner.

As for Dobbs he was carted off to the station and ultimately bailed out. Before the matter proceeded farther. Jones called at the police headquarters, explained the situtation and the case was wiped off the calender.

It was some time before Dobbs could bring himself to speak to Jones; but at last they met on the street and Dobbs presented his cigar case, inviting Jones to help himself to a perfecto. Then, together they wiffed the smoke of peace. For a wonder, the cigar was not loaded!

The only permanent cure for chronic catarrh is to thoroughly expel the poison from the system by the faithful and persistent use of Ayers Sarsaparilla. This wonderful remedy proves successful when all other treatment has failed to relieve the sufferer.

Mistress—Didnt the ladies who called leave cards?

Maid—They wanted to, mum, but I told them you had plenty of your own, and better, too.

Our Recipe Column.

To Cure Dandrpff.—Use equal parts of listerine, ounce each of benzoin and camphor, and and half rose water, glycerine and rain-water as a wash for the scalp, after thoroughly washing the hair with castile soap. This is an excellent tonic for the hair and softens it wonderfully. A few weeks use of this lotion will eradicate any trace of dandruff.

For an Itching Scalp.—Wash the scalp every night with bay-rum to which a small quantity of quinine powder, oil of rosemary and cantharides has been added. Rub the scalp well with strong sage tea, two or three times a week. A temporary relief is raw salt sprinkled through the hair, and rubbed into the scalp. This will not injure the hair, and is easily brushed or washed out. A strong burdock tea is also a good rememedy. Lanoline rubbed on the scalp makes it healthy. Lanoline is too sticky and should be used with vaseline. Massage the scalp well every night, but do scratch with the finger nails.

To Prevent Bad Breath.—Keep the stomach in order, the bowels regular and the teeth and mouth clean. Wash the teeth often in water in which a few drops of myrrh has been dropped. Wash the mouth with a solution of listerine and water, equal quantities. Wash the mouth several times a day with water in which carbolic acid has been dropped, ten drops to a glassful of water. Pure licorice is one of the best breath sweeteners; it has the advantage of having but little odor of its own. Chip it in small pieces and let a piece lie in the mouth until it melts. A good remedy for disordered stomach is an infusion of wild cherry and boneset. When the color is that of strong tea, strain it through a fine cloth, sweeten and add a few drops of sarsaparilla. Bottle and and cork; drink a wine glass every morning an hour after breakfast. This will not keep more than two days.

For Aching Feet.—Wash them every night in cold water.

Cracks in Floors.—Weigh out a pound of flour and measure three quarts of water. Stir into the flour as much of the water as it is necessary to make a smooth paste. Add the remainder of the water and a tablespoonful of pulverized alum, mixing thoroughly. Tear newspapers into bits, putting as much as it will absorb into this paste, let it stand an hour then let it come to a boil, stirring until the pulp is of the consistency of putty. Fill the cracks with this, allowing it to harden before painting or staining the floor. Last year I filled the cracks of my kitchen floor with putty, before painting it, as the painter came unexpectedly, and there was no time to prepare the paper pulp. It has been in constant use for months and shows no signs of coming loose, but I cannot tell whether or not it will prove as durable as the paper pulp.

To Mend Tin.—It can be done in at least three different ways. I write from experience, having tried them all. First clean and scrape the part to be mended, sprinkle it with powdered resin, lay over the hole a bit of solder, which must be melted and run around the hole with the soldering iron. Old soldering irons can often be bought at the tinners for a trifle which will answer very well. The solder is hard to cut, so, when you are making a purchase at a hardware store, buy the lead and ask them to cut it into small bits. The second method of mending tin is by means of soldering fluid. Put some hydro-chloric acid into a bottle and drop bits of zinc into it until it will dissolve no more. Apply this with a stick, being very careful not to get any of the liquid on the hands or clothing. The third method of mending tin requires a solder that comes in bunches of a half dozen or more, long, narrow strips. This is to be put on the outside, around the place to be mended, with a lamp held on the inside until the solder melts. It is usually effective, but is apt to make a discoloration, which scouring will not remove. Of these three methods, I prefer the first The following is also recommended, but I have not tried it: Clean the spot, apply soldering fluid, place a bright piece of tin over the hole, melt some solder in an iron spoon, and pour it around the edges. Or, cut tin foil to cover the place, wet the surfaces with a feather, dipped in sal ammoniac, and heat with a hot iron until the tin foil is melted. To insure success with this method, the surfaces must be perfectly free from grease, and made a little rough by scraping. The lining of tea chests makes a good solder.

To Mend Granite or Porcelain Kettles.—I have mended them with soft rivets, which can be found of different sizes at the hardware store. Put the rivet in from the inside of the kettle, and pound it carafully from either side. This is not always successful, however. If the material is poor, it sometimes breaks away around the rivet; then the kettle must go to the tinners and be soldered over and around the rivet on the inside, or, it is possible that that, too, may be done at home.

Barley as Food for Chickens.

I have used barley for this purpose for a long time, and since the price of wheat has risen my full-grown hens have received barley as the evening feed for 12 months past, or more during the summer with corn added for winter feed. When meat or blood meal, linseed (oil cake) or cooked meat is given them in their soft food once a day, or when green cut bone is used instead, I believe that barley serves the same purpose for fowls as wheat would. I use by preference beardless barley. Young chicks will learn to like this very soon. I crack it in the beginning for a few weeks; when four weeks old they eat it whole. It must however, be kept stored in bins, because mice, rats, or other rodents also like it in preference to other grain, even to oats.

Englands Opium Consumption,

Eighty-five tons of opium are annually consumed in England. According to Mulhall, the quantity of opium imported into that country is 270 tons, of which 185 tons is reshipped to other places, leaving 85 tons for home use. The quantity is a decreasing one, as in 1895 the import was 290 tons, reshipment 170 tons leaving 120 tons for home consumption. China, with its countless millions of opium smokers, is the greatest opium using nation in the world.
