THE CANADIAN CHAMPION.

MILTON, AUGUST 13, 1885

FREE WHISKEY.

The Independent, in response our challenge, promises to publish this week the particulars of a case of free whiskey distribution which it alleges occurred in Oakville. As the Young organ apologises for its delay in furnishing its particulars on the ground that they are "somewhat lengthy;" we shall expect them to include the names and addresses of the distributors and recipients of the soul destroying liquid. Unless they do this they will amount to nothing.

A CHEEKY CHARGE.

It is notorious that the numerous sheebeens which now exist in Halton have all sprung up under the regime of the Scott Act. It is equally notorious that the prohibitionists of our county, while making matters as hot as possible for hotel keepers, have pursued the policy of ignoring the sheebeens, for the obvious reason that every conviction of a sheebeen keeper would have been strong evidence of the failure of prohibition, and that all the convictions of sheebeen men were secured by Inspector Frazer, the man whom the prohibition party tried to oust from office because he was "not in sympathy with the Scott Act."

The CHAMPION has repeatedly denounced the dishonest policy of the Scott Act wire-pullers and called upon them to give the sheebeen keepers a little of the attention bestowed by them on the hotel men, but the retort has invariably been, "We don't know of any sheebeens. If you do, it is your duty to bring their keepers to justice, and to help to enforce the law."

Police Magistrate Young knows the truth of what we have stated above better, perhaps, than anyone else in the county, and yet his organ, the Oakville Independent, has had the sublime cheek to accuse the CHAMPION of allowing its "name and influence to be used as a shield for the sheebeen keepers."

It is something to have our statements as to the existence in Halton of sheebeens, which has been so often denied by Scott Act men, verified at last by no less an authority than our learned, veracious and cultured police magistrate, and to have that distinguished personage recognise the CHAMPION as a newspaper of some "influence." We beg to assure His Worship that we feel greatly flattered by the compliment which he has perhaps unintentionally paid us, and we shall leave the public to judge who it is that has shielded the sheebeen keepers.

PAST PRAYING FOR.

We feel decidedly anxious about our local contemporary. It seems, according to the Oakville Independent, that he is the possessor of a "diseased brain and a demonized heart" and has given "indications of lunacy far stranger than Riel's." "His dagger is carried under his robe" in direct contravention of the Blake Act against concealed weapons, and is lugged around with fell designs on "the sacred cause of temperance and the Methodist Church!" He has the presumption to attempt to do something akin to "blotting the morning star or binding the 'pleadies' in their sweet influence." He is trying by some wicked scheme to injure "those whose homes are turned into donteau hells," (whatever they are) by the Scott Act, probably. He has actually assayed too, the hopeless and impossible task of trying to convince the people of the county that W. H. Young is a "Pharisee, hypocrite and liar," and that that eminent christian gentleman is not a temperance man from "principal," but rather from interest. Lastly "the best men, all the women and children of this county are against him (the Sun man), not a prayer goes up to heaven for him." All know that christians are enjoined to love their enemies and pray for those that despitefully use them and persecute them. The editor of the Sun, then, must indeed be past redemption when his case is made an exception to this Divine command by the earnest and devoted christians who compose the Scott Act party, and who doubtless are endowed with a fair share of that charity which suffereth long and is kind.

Though conducting a rival printing establishment we have all along had the impression that the editor of the Sun was a fairly moral man, regular in his attendance at public worship and in his religious duties (he is an official in a Milton church), and last, not least, we have heretofore understood that he was a total abstainer. It seems, however, that we have been mistaken in him, and our mistake will be a warning to us henceforth not to be too ready to judge from appearances.

The terrible accusations of the Independent are worded in a style that forcibly reminds us of that of Police Magistrate Young, whose elegance of diction is proverbial, and the sublime contempt of orthography and syntax displayed in the article confirm us in the opinion that the immaculate William could no other was the man who penned it. It is true that William is spoken of in it as one "of the acknowledged foremost christian gentlemen" of the county, and it is possible that there are those who in view of this may be so uncharitable as to accuse him of a lack of modesty. The worthy police magistrate, however, occupies a position far above the reach of such despicable cavillers, and his many admirers will agree in the opinion that he is perfectly justified in toeting his own horn, and would be foolish to hide his light under a bushel.

Let the editor of the Sun beware how he assails this "acknowledged foremost christian gentleman."

Mr. Blake's Salary Grab.

Montreal Star (Independent.)

Mr. Blake, in a fit of virtue, hands over his special indemnity of $500 to the West Durham agricultural association, thus converting it into political capital. We respectfully submit that by so doing Mr. Blake applied it to as strictly personal a use as if he had employed it in the purchase of a pair of horses for his carriage. The latter investment, or some similar one, would indeed in our opinion have been the more proper of the two. Political influence is not a good thing to buy even with one's own money, not to speak of money which one does not feel like calling his own. If Mr. Blake thought that money should not have been paid to him, his proper course was to refuse it or else to pay it back into the treasury. There is lots of room for it there.

The Grant Monument Fund now amounts to $36,120.

THE RIEL TRIAL.

Hon. Wm. McDougall Attacks the Constitutionality of the Proceedings.

An Ottawa despatch says: Hon. Wm. McDougall in a published article says that "the contention of those who object to Riel's trial as unconstitutional is that a trial for treason must be before a judge of assize and before a jury of twelve men selected as jurors are ordinarily selected and subject to the same right of challenge. Riel was tried before a stipendiary magistrate and not a judge of assize, before six jurors and not twelve. The jury was selected from a list specially prepared by the Crown and not in the ordinary way, and the indications are that the Government deliberately chose this illegal and unconstitutional mode of procedure with the intention of letting Riel escape. Not only then was the selection of a stipendiary magistrate wrong, but the mode of selecting the jury was wrong also. It is an outrage that the whole ordinary mode of procedure in conducting a trial by jury should be set aside in a trial so important as this. It is monstrous that the Crown should be allowed to pack the jury list by excluding all the half-breeds and to select jurymen from districts other than those affected by the trial. This is in gross violation of the ordinary conception of a trial by jury. Then again there were only six jurors to return a verdict instead of twelve. Well might Riel sarcastically tell the court that he was tried by only 'half a jury.' Canada cannot afford to have her future content disturbed by any portion of her population believing that Riel died as a martyr. The pressure brought upon the Government will be so strong as to compel it to grant Riel a brief respite. The country cannot afford to run in the case of Riel any such risk as was run in the case of Connors."

The Dilke Scandal.

LONDON, Aug. 9.—It was hoped up to the last moment that the charges against Sir Charles Dilke, which have been the common property of the clubs and society papers for the last couple of weeks, could be kept out of the courts. But Mr. Donald Crawford, refusing the $25,000 offered by Sir Charles Dilke as hush money, has commenced divorce proceedings against his wife, in which Sir Charles Dilke is made co-respondent. All the parties move in the best society. Mrs. Crawford, who is only twenty years of age, and almost young enough to be her husband's child, is daughter of Mr. Thomas Eustace Smith, the Radical member for Tynemouth, and her sister is the widow of Mr. Ashton Dilke. Mr. Crawford is a barrister, and held an important official position in the office of the Lord Advocate for Scotland, in Whitehall. It is reported that all revelation of a sensational kind, for which the public is all agog, will be averted by Mrs. Crawford consenting to a divorce and Sir Charles pleading guilty. Several Tory papers yesterday, in referring to the divorce proceedings, gave as full particulars of the disgraceful affair as they could and keep within the limit of the law, while the Radical papers either made a bare announcement of the fact or were entirely silent. The Weekly Despatch, which is owned by a brother of Sir Charles Dilke, and is usually keen after all social scandals, wholly ignores the subject and does not mention it even in its law reports. Sir Charles Dilke has written a letter to the electors of Chelsea, in which he assumes an air of injured innocence, and asserts that he is entirely guiltless of the grievous sin charged against him.

Salvationists in Court.

The case against the Salvation Army, or rather against the officers of the army, came up for final hearing on Tuesday of last week. The defendants were charged with obstructing the streets on the night of Sunday, 19th of July, and disturbing the public worship in St. Paul's church by beating a drum and making other unseemly noises contrary to the by-law against such extravagances as it were. The offence they were charged with committing has been referred to before, and the circumstances of the arrest made public and need not here be repeated. A partial hearing of the case was held on Friday, July 24th, but judgment deferred. On Tuesday the matter was opened afresh. Mr. T. Stewart appearing as counsel for the defence and Chief of Police Bell as prosecutor. Captain Scott and Lieut. Godfrey were charged with obstructing the street, considerable evidence of a conflicting character was taken, and the magistrate ruled that the defendants, Capt. Scott and Lieut Godfrey, should be acquitted. Charge of disturbing public worship was taken up, and counsel for the defence claimed that there had been no wilful disturbance made. The magistrate then crossed out the charge and amended the information so as to make it a charge of breach of the by-law prohibiting shouting and noises on the streets. Considerable evidence was taken to show that the drum had been used, but none of the witnesses either for the prosecution or from the army who were called could identify the drummer. Of course it was known who the drummer was, but as a matter of law he was not identified. However, the officers were convicted on this charge, and Captain Scott returned to imprisonment in the gaol for twenty five days, and Lieut. Godfrey for ten days. A great deal of feeling was aroused over the trial, but it will eventually simmer down.—Lindsay Post.

Sympathy for Riel.

MONTREAL, Aug 9.—A large mass meeting of French Canadians, fully 12 000 people being present, assembled on the Champ de Mars this afternoon to devise some means to have the death penalty of Riel commuted. Among the speakers were Messrs. L. O. David, C. C. Delormier, Q. C., Hon. R. Laflamme, Hon. C. Champagne, Dr. Marcil, Geo. Duhamel, A. E. Porter, B. C. St. Pierre, and others. The speeches were eloquent and the crowd displayed warm sympathy for the Halfbreeds and Riel, and denounced the Government's action and negligence throughout. The meeting was non-political. A resolution was adopted which set forth that the Halfbreeds had for years demanded redress of their grievances, that the Government before the commencement of the troubles recognized the justice of their complaints by sending commissioners to arrange and settle those complaints; that Riel was the instrument rather than the chief of the movement; that he was sent for from the United States; that his trial took place before a tribunal as to whose legality there were great doubts; that the mental condition of Riel rendered him not always responsible for his acts; that the offence with which he was charged was a political one, and that the execution of the sentence of death, if carried out, would be considered as the result of prejudice and fanaticism, and would be destructive of the harmony so necessary in a mixed community like ours. It was then resolved and carried that a subscription be opened on behalf of Riel to enable him to bring his case before a more competent tribunal.

Stirring Up Nastiness.

LONDON, Aug. 11th.—A French woman who was formerly mistress of Sir Charles Dilke has been cited for the plaintiff in the Crawford divorce case. She, it is alleged, will be a leading witness to prove the treason of Sir Charles with Mrs. Crawford. The social purity society is agitating for a new trial of Mrs Jeffreys, for the purpose of securing a public disclosure of the names of politicians and noblemen who frequent her house.

THE Canada Medical and Surgical Journal for August contains the following original communications: 'Extra Uterine Foetation treated by Electricity,' Dr. Wm. Gardner; 'Notes on the Morbid Anatomy of Typhoid Fever,' Dr. Wm. Osler; and "Case of Tetany of Five Years' Duration," Dr. Jas. Stewart. There are numerous reviews by prominent medical men, there is a full report of debates at meetings of the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Montreal, and the editorial department is full and interesting. Terms $3 a year. Printed and published by the Gazette Printing Co., Montreal.

Why allow a cough to lacerate your throat and lungs? Why incur the imminent danger of consumption, when in an incredibly short space of time, and for an insignificant sum, you may cure yourself? THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL does the business thoroughly. A single bottle often suffices to relieve the difficulty. This peerless remedy overcomes with equal certainty, swelling of the neck, inflammation of the muscles and stiffness of the joints, lameness and crick in the back, tumors, piles, dysentery and a variety of other painful and harrassing disorders. It may be taken inwardly with as much safety as it is applied outwardly. Colic, whether of man or beast, is cured by it in fifteen or twenty minutes. Sores, excoriations and abrasions of the skin, are healed by it with gratifying rapidity. All medicine dealers sell it.

A FRIGHTFUL CALAMITY.

A dispatch from St. Thomas, Ont., received here last evening conveyed the following terrible intelligence: "A horrible accident took place this afternoon at the L. & P. S. railway crossing near the fair grounds, whereby three persons lost their lives—Mr. J. C. Dempsey, of Hamilton; his sister, Mrs. Fred Sanders, wife of Mr. Fred Sanders, lumber merchant of this city, and her little 6-year-old son. A train coming from Port Stanley struck their buggy and knocked it into splinters. Mrs. Sanders' body was found lying twenty yards from the crossing, with the head completely severed from the body, and the child was taken from the cow-catcher of the engine dead. Mr. Dempsey's body was found some seventy-five yards from the crossing. Life was extinct, but the body was not badly mutilated."

Mr. Dempsey and Mrs. Sanders were son and daughter of Mr. Geo. Dempsey, of this city. Mrs. Sanders, with her little son, had been on a visit to her parents, and left Hamilton for St Thomas on Thursday afternoon, accompanied by young Mr. Dempsey. She was brought up and educated in Hamilton, and had many friends here. About seven years ago she was married to Mr. Sanders, and her only child was the boy who perished with her.

Mr. Dempsey was a fine, manly young man, and was widely known and well liked in the city. He excelled in athletic exercises, especially in rowing, and, as a member of the Leander rowing club, distinguished himself several times in the aquatic arena. Mr. Dempsey was twenty-eight years of age, and unmarried. He was born in Milton, but the family moved to Hamilton when he was very young, and he received the greater part of his education here. When 15 years old he received an appointment in the city post office, and remained in the service ever since. Latterly he was engaged in the forwarding department. Three weeks ago he went off on his annual vacation, and was to have returned to work next Monday. Poor fellow, he was at the regatta at Toronto yesterday with his friends, and keenly enjoyed the competitions, which few could appreciate better than he.—Spectator, Aug. 8.

The London Free Press of Saturday says: "Mr. Sanders has the sympathy of the community in his terrible affliction, the family being widely known and highly respected throughout the southwestern section of the Province. His many friends in London and vicinity will most sincerely regret to learn of the terrible calamity that has no suddenly bereft him of a loving wife and only son.

"The crossing at which the terrible affair occurred is in a very dangerous condition, and the necessity of a watchman being stationed there has frequently been remarked. It is situated a short distance south of the railway bridge that spans the valley near Alma College, and its surroundings are such as to render the view of an approaching train difficult to obtain. This is especially the case on the west, for along the southern side of the roadway and upon the west side of the railway track runs a section of the high board fence that surrounds the Exhibition Grounds. Between this fence and the track stands a closed watch-house, and the two objects conspire to form a very serious obstruction, rendering it utterly impossible for a person approaching from the west to observe a train coming from Port Stanley until almost on the crossing, when it would be too late to do anything. There is a low open fence on the northeast, southeast and northwest of the track, but this would not be likely to be a reference in any way with the accident, as any person driving along. The high fence and watch-house doubtless were the cause of the unfortunate people failing to observe the oncoming train in time to stop their horse.

"The fact of the victims seemingly running right before the train has led many to wonder if the engine whistle had been blown to warn them of its approach, and it certainly seems that it was not, as it had been they would surely not have attempted to cross. A person who was on board the train is said to have stated in conversation last night that the whistle was not blown, but a coroner's inquest will probably determine whether it was or not. Funerals of all three of the victims of the accident were buried at Tyrconnell on Sunday.

Hamilton Times 10th inst.—At 9.5 yesterday morning an immense concourse of persons had surrounded the residence of Mr. Fred Sanders, at St. Catharines street, to show their respect for that gentleman and to express their sympathy with the relatives of the deceased. The remains of the victims were placed in their coffins and conveyed to Trinity Church, St. Catharines street, where impressive services were held by the rector of the church officiating. At the conclusion of the service the cortège formed and proceeded to Tyrconnell, a village situated about twenty miles from St. Thomas. Unlike most funeral processions, the long line of vehicles, instead of diminishing as the cortège advanced, had, being constantly lengthened by residents on the route joining in with their carriages as the funeral passed. At 3.45 p. m. Tyrconnell was reached, and the hearses were driven into the peaceful and romantically situated burying ground. Three open graves awaited the sad occupants, the unfortunate mother, and as each body was lowered into its last resting place but few dry eyes were observed amongst the large assemblage present. The services at the cemetery were impressively read by the incumbent of the adjoining church, after which the mournful services were concluded.

A special train left London yesterday morning, conveying the number of friends from that city, together with the pall bearers, from Hamilton—the latter conveyed by Messrs. Egan, Crasp, Eccleston and Smith, of the Post-office, and Messrs. Kittson and Staunton, barristers. Among others who attended the funeral were observed Messrs. Casey, M. P.; Mr. Ermatinger, M. P. P.; the Messrs. McBeth, Talbot, Dawson and D. Gustin, of London.

The news of the terrible death of Mrs. Sanders and her brother-in-law has a great shock to their relatives and friends in the neighborhood of Milton, and great sympathy is felt here for their family.

LOWVILLE.

One of the most dastardly and cowardly assaults that has ever come under our notice took place in the basement of the Lowville Methodist Church on Monday evening, August 3rd, as the Quarterly Board for this circuit was doing its regular business. A point of business came up which by the truthfulness of an absent gentleman was under consideration, when a member of the Board stated that he would as soon believe the absentee as the person who appeared to doubt his word. Another member of the Board who, by the by, is a school teacher, who was sitting behind this person, struck him a violent blow across his face. Great excitement was caused by this violation, some urging order, others crying "Paste him! Paste him!" and in the confusion the pugilistic steward "hustled his man out into open air. Legal proceedings are talked of, and we suppose a church trial also. There is quite a change in some members of this board. Only three months ago this same person who is now so ready to use his fists said that if we had any hard feelings or difficulties we ought to pray over them. Now his motto seems to be "If praying wont do, let us fight over our differences."

The Scott Act, I suppose, is the law of this country, but would it not be better for all concerned if we had licensed houses here again, so that there would be other and more congenial places for some people to spend their evenings, and then the numbers that attend Quarterly Board would
