Non-Partisan Temperance.

When the Women's Christian Temperance Union went into the campaign for St. John in 1884 and with the ill concealed purpose to defeat the Republicans, the women of Cleveland, Ohio, withdrew from the organization and formed a non partisan temperance organization. This independent body of workers has had Francis Murphy, the temperance apostle, in its employ in Cleveland. So great success did he meet with that he has had been called to other cities and towns and everywhere is organizing non-partisan Unions. The new movement has already resulted in a State organization, with Mrs. Finney at its head, who was formerly chief of the W. C. T. U. It is the general conviction of the temperance women of Ohio that the old methods are best, and that they gain nothing and lose much by practical politics. Mr. Murphy's opinion has always been in favor of individual prohibition, with which State constitutions and laws cannot interfere. Recently at Springfield, Ill., Dr. Leonard, who was the Prohibition candidate for Governor in 1884, gave his hearty endorsement to the non-partisan movement. With high license and individual effort, temperance has more hope of success than from the most stringent prohibitory laws or constitutional amendments.

No law or constitutional amendment can execute itself. The temptation and opportunity of evasion is so great that the moment a stringent law is adopted, temperance people lay aside their armor and effort, and in a short time the situation is as bad as ever. We have seen recent accounts from towns in Maine, saying that there is just as much intemperance there as anywhere in the country. Liquor is sold in open defiance of law and men are seen staggering through the streets without any notice being taken of it and with but little attempt to enforce the statute.

There is certainly no use of having laws unless they can be enforced, and this cannot be done until public opinion has advanced a long way ahead of where it is now in any part of the country. If all the money and effort spent in prohibition movements were spent in individual exertion there would be vastly more good fruit to show for it.—Helena Herald.

The Power of Prohibition.

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch

The suppression of the saloon in Iowa has produced an extraordinary increase of slight maladies requiring alcoholic treatment, although the death rate of the state is no higher than it was in the golden age of the dram shop. A druggist in a town of 3000 inhabitants filled eighty-four liquor prescriptions in one day, and in one county with no large town 5000 pints were sold for medicine during the month of June. Various causes are assigned for this wonderful consumption of strong drink for medicinal purposes. Some ascribe it to the prolonged drought, some to the prohibitory liquor law, and others think that it proceeds from planetary influence. Drinking liquor sometimes produces planetary results, or the seeing of stars, but is very uncommon to regard the consumption of liquor as a result of planetary influence.

Some curious persons with a scientific turn of his mind have compiled statistics relating to the extraordinary use of alcoholic medicine in Iowa. These figures show that this medicine produces very few permanent cures; that symptoms are liable to be developed at any time; that the favorite medicine is beer, which is administered for dyspepsia, languor, rheumatism, dimness of vision, stiff joints, sore toes, hic-coughs and sore eyes. The Iowa situation is commended to Prohibitionist for exhaustive and analytical study. It should engage the especial notice of those scientific Prohibition ladies who so strenuously insist on the study of alcohol in the public schools, and who would like to establish alcohol professorships in our colleges and seminaries.

Nonsense About Mushrooms.

London Globe.

Every year we hear and read a lot of nonsense about poisonous mushrooms. Experts are asked to formulate some golden rule whereby edibles and poisons can be readily differentiated from each other. No one is foolish enough to suppose that such a rule exists as a possibility in any other department of the vegetable kingdom. Then why, in the great name of ignorance do they suppose that one can be found for fungi? Poisonous toadstools, by the way, are a very small minority among the great mass of the fungi congeners. But any one who wishes to make a headlong plunge into fungoid lore had better be warned that here "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing" in good south, and that it is advisable to "Drink deep or taste not the Pierean spring" if one would become expert in fungology so far as it relates to what is not. Peasants on the continent are accustomed to teach their children how to recognize unerringly the half dozen or dozen species of toadstools they are in the habit of largely eating, and we suppose that such limited popular knowledge might be easily attained by English people. And indeed Dr. Badham and Mrs. Hussey, and their living disciples tell us that the safe and more commendable esculent fungi of our woods and fields may be individually recognized and distinguished from all evil sorts with as much ease as a cowship may be differentiated from a nettle, without any recourse to what is technical and scientific. Vegetarians should look into the matter, since we are also informed that fungi are among the most nutritious of esculent plants.

CANADIAN ARTILLERYMEN.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The capital shooting of the Canadian team is opening the eyes of English artillerists, and competitors have sprung up in big gun firing where they were least expected. On the 5th inst., at Shoeburyness the team won the Montreal cup; on the 8th, in the 64 pounder competition, it won Sir Richard Wallace's prize and nine silver cups and £45 in cash, and to-day it captured the Londonderry challenge cup and the Marquis of Lansdowne's prize. The following are the competing teams: 1st Cheshire and Carnarvon, 8 detachment; 2nd and 4th Durham, 12 and 7 detachments; 1st Fifeshire, 1; 1st Forfarshire, 1; 3rd Kent, 7; 1st, 2nd, 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th Lacashire, 10, 8, 2, 5, 4 and 4 detachments respectfully; 1st Lancashire, 1; 1st Midlothian (coast), 3; 2nd Northumberland, 2; 1st Shropshire and Stafford, 2; 1st East York, 3; 2nd East York, 6; 1st North York, 3; 4th West York, 2, and the Canadian artillery 2, making 93 competing detachments all told.

His Ruin Complete.

Sir Charles Dilke's name has been erased from the list of Privy Councillors. Such an event, it is said, has not occurred since the last century. His downfall is the more painful because so many women are affected by it, their friendship for him causing suspicion. This is particularly the case with Mrs. Rogerson, whose salon has in times past been a centre of very distinguished society. Her parties were noted, and people intrigued for invitations to her house. But her connection with the Dilke case puts an end to her social entertainments, and closes one of the pleasantest houses in London.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN WALES ABOUT A MARVELLOUS CURE. LIVING SIX YEARS WITHOUT GOING TO BED.

MR. EDITOR.—While spending a few days at the pleasant seaside town of Aberystyth, Cardiganshire, Wales, I heard related what seemed to me either a fabulous story or a marvellous cure.

The story was of a poor sufferer who had not been able to lie down in bed for six long years, given up to die by all the doctors had been speedily cured by some patent medicine. It was related with more implicit confidence from the circumstance, as was said, that the Vicar of Llanrystyd was familiar with the facts, and could vouch for the truth of the report.

Having a little curiosity to know how such stories grow in travelling, I took the liberty while the village of Llanrystyd to call upon the Vicar, the Rev. T. Evans, to enquire about this wonderful cure. Though a total stranger to him, both he and his wife most graciously entertained me in a half hour's conversation, principally touching the case of Mr. Pugh, in which they seemed to take a deep and sympathetic interest, having been familiar with his sufferings, and now rejoiced in what seemed to them a a most remarkable cure.

The Vicar remarked that he presumed his name had been connected with the report from his having mentioned the case to Mr. John Thomas, a chemist of Llanon. He said Mr. Pugh, was formerly a resident of his parish of Llanddeiniol.

He strongly vouched Mr. Wm. Pugh's character as a respectable farmer and worthy of credit. I left the venerable Vicar with a livelier sense of the happy relations of a pastor and people, feeling that he was one who truely sympathised with all who are afflicted in mind, body, or estate.

On my return to Aberystwity, I was impressed with a desire to see Mr. Pugh, whose reputation stood so high. His farm is called Pancoon-Mawr, signifying above the dimple, situated near the summit of a smooth round hill, overlooking a beautiful valley in which is situated the lovely ivy mantled Church of Llanddeiniol. I found Mr. Pugh, apparently about 40 years old, of medium height, rather slight, with a pleasant and intelligent face. I told him that I had heard of his great affliction and almost miraculous relief, and that I had come to learn from his own lips, what there of truth in the reports.

Mr. Pugh remarked that his neighbors had taken a kindly and sympathetic interest in his case for many years, but of late their interest had been greatly awakened by a happy change in his condition. What you report as having heard abroad, said he, is substantially true with one exception. I never understood my case was ever given up as hopeless by any physician. I have been by several doctors hereabouts, as good as any in Wales, but unfortunately no prescription of theirs ever brought the desired relief.

Fifteen years ago, he said, I first became conscious of a sour and deranged stomach and loss of appetite which the doctors told me was dyspepsia. What food I could hold in my stomach seemed to do me no good, and was often thrown up with painful retching. This was followed after a time with horseness and a raw soreness of the throat which the doctors called bronchitis, and I was treated for that, but with little success. Then came shortness of breath and a sense of suffocation, especially nights, with clammy sweat, and I would have to get out of bed and sometimes open a door or window in winter weather to fill my lungs with cold air.

About six years ago I became so bad that I could not sleep in bed, but had to take my unquiet rest and dreamy sleep sitting in an armchair. My affliction seemed to be working downward into my bowels as well as upwards into my lungs and throat. In violent coughing spasms which grew more frequent, my abdomen would expand and collapse and at times it would seem that I should suffocate. All this time I was reduced in strength so that I could perform no hard labor and my spirits were consequently much depressed.

Early in this last spring I had a still more severe spasmodic attack, and my family and neighbors became alarmed, believing that certainly I would not survive, when a neighbor, who had some knowledge, or had heard of the medicine, sent to Aberystwith by the driver of the Omnibus Post some seven miles distant, and fetched a bottle or Mother Seigel's Curative Syrup.

This medicine they administered to me according to the directions, when to their surprise and delight, no less than my own the spasm ceased. I became at ease, and my stomach was calmed. My bowels moved as by a gentle cathartic, and I felt a sense of quiet comfort as though such as I had not before realized in many years. I could walk around, the house and breathe comfortably in a few hours after I had taken the medicine. I continued to take the medicine daily now for something over two months, and I can lie down and sleep quietly at nights and have not since had a recurrence of those terrible spasms and sweats. I have been so long broken down and reduced in my whole system that I have not tried to perform any very hard outdoor labor, deeming it best to be prudent lest by over-exertion I may do myself injury before my strength is fully restored. I feel that my stomach and bowels have been and are being thoroughly renovated and renewed by the medicine. In fact I feel like a new man.

I have been much congratulated by my neighbors, especially by the good Vicar of Llanrystyd, who with his sympathetic wife have come three miles to shed tears of joy on my recovery.

I bade Mr Pugh good bye, happy that even one at least among the thousands had found a remedy for an aggravating disease.

Believing this remarkable case of Dyspeptic Asthma should be known to the public I beg to submit the above facts as they are related to me. P.T.W.

A TOUCHING SCENE, WITH A MORAL.

Commending on the grand demonstration in Dublin in honour of Lord and Lady Aberdeen on their departure from Ireland, the Detroit Free Press pertinently remarks:—The procession, the banners, the flowers, the shouts of enthusiasm, the passionate desire of the Dublin populace to press the hands of Lord and Lady Aberdeen, the good wishes showered upon both and the tears which such enthusiasm brought to the eyes of Lady Aberdeen, is an object lesson to the English people in the art of governing Ireland more potent and more illuminating than reams of statistics and volumes of history. In one brief day it taught them what they had need it, what 200 years of coercion has failed to teach them. This lesson is that beneath the sun which never sets in the Queen's dominions, no more affectionate, loyal or warm-hearted subjects of the British realm draw breath than in this same Ireland, when treated with kindness, their manhood recognized, and their demands for Home Rule conceded.

What the Scott Act Has Done at Guelph

At the prohibition camp at Hamilton Rev. Dr. Griffin, of Guelph, who was president of the Guelph Scott Act association, said they were in trouble and tribulation in Guelph. The enemy was defeating the Scott actors by means of hard, consistent and perfect false swearing. Last week every hotel-keeper in Guelph was summoned, tried and gloriously acquitted. The witnesses, no matter whether they had lager, beer, brandy, whiskey, wine or what, all swore with perfect consistency that they had nothing but pop. It is the hardest fight and the meanest kind of foe, and among the whole lot of them there are none meaner than the men that run this country to-day. They want their beer and toddy, and they are unwilling to give it up.

Assault on a Scott Act Magistrate.

ERNOTA, Ont., Aug. 11.—Police Magistrate Lowes, who was here to-day trying Scott Act cases, was assaulted twice. The first assault took place at the Commercial House about 6.30 this evening, when he was knocked down and not a word had been spoken. The second offence was committed about half an hour afterwards at the railway station, where he was waiting for the train.

In a busy village in P.E.I. it is said that one commercial traveller was forced for want of other accomodation to open his samples in a church.

According to statistics recently published in a German Journal on the railway enterprise of the world, the aggregate mileage at end of 1884 was 290,750 miles. Europe claimed of this total 117,694 miles; Asia, 12,757; Africa, 4,075; America, 148,738; and Australia, 7,480 miles. Not less than 60 per cent. of the whole mileage of the world is in English-speaking countries Australia has the largest amount of railway accommodation in proportion to population, and the United States and Canada come next.

A few days ago when a Michigan banker closed his doors against depositors, a women who had $800 on deposit took a revolver and sailed up to his house. The banker wasn't at home, but his wife was. She had on a pair of $600 diamonds, and a $200 gold watch, and a couple of bracelets worth $100 apiece. "Shed!" observed the women with the revolver. "What?" "I want that jewelry as a security for my money, and I'm in a hurry." She got it, but she had not held it for twenty-four hours before it was quietly redeemed, and she was asked to keep mum.

St. Catharines Journal: The first prosecution in this county under the Canada Temperance Act of 1878 took place in the police court in this city on Thursday. The Inspector, Mr. Fowlie, deserves every credit for his endeavor to do his duty in maintaining the law, but he does not appear to have been assisted in any way by the advocates of the Scott Act, or so-called temperance workers. Not one of them appeared in court to show that he at least sympathized with the proceedings.

LATEST SWINDLING DODGE.—One of the latest swindling schemes is for the swindler to get a check for a small amount from a depositor at a bank, and at the same time a blank check exactly like the filled-in check. Lay one check on the other so that the edges are exactly even, the two are torn so that the signature appears on one piece of the filled-in check, and the amount and name of the payee on the other. The blank check having been torn with the good check and in exactly the same way, the swindler can fill in on the layer piece of the blank check any amount he desires, and with the pieces of the genuine check containing the signature, is ready to tell how the checks became accidentally torn when he demands payment. The fact that the two pieces exactly match is calculated to deceive any bank teller.

A HINT ABOUT UMBRELLAS.—Umbrellas will last if, when wet, they are placed handle downwards to dry. The moisture falls from the edges of the frame and the fabric dries uniformly. If stood handle upward, which is commonly the case the top of the umbrella holds the moisture, owing to the lining underneath the ring and, therefore, takes a long time to dry, thus injuring the silk or other fabric with which it is covered. This is the prime cause of the top of the umbrella wearing out sooner than the other part. Umbrella cases too, are responsible for the rapid wear of silk. The constant friction causes the tiny holes that appear so provokingly early. When not in use, leave the umbrella loose; when wet, never leave it open to dry as the tense condition thus produced makes the silk stiff, and then it will soon crack.

There can be little shooting of any kind done till September 1st, the exception being woodcock, which come in on the 15th of August.

The Guelph Daily Mercury says:—"Toronto boasts the possession of a stage driver, widely known as 'Whiskey Bill,' who, born in 1820, has been engaged in driving horses on the roads about Toronto, with a seven years' interval of circus work, since 1831. Elora boasts—bus driver—Moses Selvisage, who drove on Yonge street at nearly as early a date as 'Whiskey Bill,' who has never gone into any other employment than mail carrying, and who has been engaged in post-office service for more than fifty years, has never been late with his mails, and may fairly be classed as the champion mail carrier of Ontario, if not of the Dominion. May he long live to keep his horses fat as butter and to carry passengers from the station to the hotel."
