

Watches among items taken in SportChek theft

Two suspects made off with several watches and other items after gaining entry into the SportChek outlet in the Georgetown Market Place mall early on New Year's Eve.

At approximately 2:55 a.m. earlier that day, Halton police say two male suspects entered the rear of the store wearing disguises and gloves, carrying a blue bin with them.

The males made their way through the back and entered the storefront by the "hockey door."

Glass was broken and displays were pried open to steal the items.

The police report does not indicate how the suspects were able to gain entry into the store, other than to state that the men exited the same way they entered.

The value of the property taken will be determined during inventory.

The investigation, which is not complete, determined through footprints in the snow that the thieves "went along the mall building across the rear driveway into a cut in the chain-link fence across the park area to Cotswold Court."
