MESSRS. McILWRAITH & McMASTER.

Grand Spring Opening of this Leading Dry Goods Firm.

Among the multitudes who thronged the leading dry goods establishments of the city to-day for the purpose of inspecting the the spring goods and styles, was a Times reporter, who, like most of the others, was prepared to see richer, larger and more beautiful displays of goods than any season has ever produced in Hamilton. With the assistance of the obliging clerks, the scribe was able to put upon paper something of what he saw, so as to tell to those who were unable to be at the opening of a little of what they may expect to see to-morrow and Saturday. A walk through the elegantly trimmed store and show rooms of McIlwraith & McMaster's to-day would have convinced the most sceptical that no past season has produced more striking and brilliant effects in millinery, mantles and dress wear than has the present. This firm is always in the lead in their choice of novelties for ladies' wear. Mr. McIlwraith twice a year spends some weeks in Paris making selections from the very newest and rarest of the French manufactures. And this year the productions in all departments are surpassingly lovely. To enumerate all would be useless; but a casual glance at odds and ends of beauty here and there may be of interest to Times readers.

When the pencil and notebook entered the store at an early hour the place was already thronged with visitors. Few ladies in the city think of selecting their millinery or dress wear until they have seen the shapes and modes shown by Messrs. Ilwraith & McMaster. This fact necessarily makes the opening days a little crowded, but the arrangements are such that every visitor can see at all times everything on exhibition. Scarcely inferior to the novelties of the millinery and mantle show rooms above is the display made down stairs. One pauses a moment, scarce knowing at what point to begin. As gloves form an important item of ladies' dress, therefore, a few words might be said on the kid gloves Messrs. McIlwraith & McMaster are now offering to their customers. These are the celebrated Xavier Jouvin gloves, made in Grenoble, France. No glove made is more full of wear or comfort, and the colors are rich and the kid highly finished. All the better gloves are guaranteed, a new pair being given in exchange for any that rip or are imperfect. A fine stock of silk gloves is also shown. Of lace goods and jets, fronts, panels and trimmings, the variety displayed is wonderful. Jet trimmings have risen to a rare art in these spring styles. Lace flounciing of exquisitely wrought patterns in durable net is also a feature for lighter spring wear. In cotton printed goods the designs are in very pretty patterns—odd sprays of flowers, daisies, rosebuds, etc., on light and tinted grounds. But it is among the wool dress stuffs that the most pronounced novelties are shown. The French truly excel in spring dress goods. They produce fabrics that have no equal in the world for beauty of color and finish. All the season's shades are here. Pearl greys, lavender greys, fawns, dores, ecrus, sapphires, etc., in all manner of stuffs, at prices from 25 cents to $1.25 per yard. There are also on exhibition some twenty-five Paris patterns, of which Mr. McIlwraith says there are no duplicates in the Province. These costumes are trimmed in needle and colored jet work as only Parisians can trim. The trimming embraces panel, front, collars and cuffs—so no other trimming is required. Each suit is much more stylish and novel than silk. The colors embrace slate, beige, ecru, tussore, fawn, fl. greys and blacks. The reputation of Messrs. McIlwraith & McMaster is second to none in Canada for silks. Their display is simply vast. Every color fashionable is here and at every price. In the millinery and mantle show rooms the latest shapes and modes are shown. Numbers of pattern bonnets and hats grace the long counters and stands and are grouped about the large plate mirrors. The pattern millinery was bought personally by Mr. McIlwraith from Mme. Eugène, Paris. The shapes are of the most bewitching and indescribable styles, trimmed with laces and airy pompons or light silk gauzes of the most delicate hues. They embrace all the fashionable hues of the season and match all the latest colors in dress goods. Prices range from $5 to $25. Lace and trimmings make the difference, some of the cheapest shapes being the same as the most expensive. The pattern mantles and dolmans are of new and novel cuts and trimmings—very attractive and graceful to the wearer. There is also a very large assortment of the latest things in Jersey jackets. Every lady who has not yet paid a visit to the opening of Messrs. McIlwraith & McMaster should not fail to do so to-morrow. The display will continue the balance of the week.—Hamilton Times.

How to Tell the Age of any Person.

Just hand this table to a young lady, and request her to tell you in which column or columns her age is contained, and add together the figures at the top of the column in which her age is found, and you have the secret. Thus, suppose her age to be 17, you will find that number in the first and fifth columns; add the first figures of these two columns, and you have her correct age.

Comic Singing as a Means of Grace.

Galt Reformer.

It is reported that Mr. W. Snyder, G. T. R. conductor on the W. G. and B. branch, who was converted by Sam Jones, is going to take the road as a revivalist. Snyder has quite a reputation as as a comic vocalist, and should make a successful revivalist of the Sam Jones stamp.

Mr. Attorney-General Mowat has purchased for the sum of 21,000 the large house on St. George-street, built by Mr. Nathaniel Dickey, and afterwards purchased by Sir John Macdonald and used by him as a residence. The lot has 100 feet frontage.

A Jubilee Reminiscense.

Mr. Calvin Phelps writes to the St. Catherines Journal an account of the announcement in Canada of the accession of Queen Victoria to the throne. He says: "I well remember the day when this event became known in St. Catharines. It was, I think, the 29th of June, now nearly fifty years ago. When the news arrived it came by way of New York, thence by steamboat to Albany, from which place it was brought by the "telegraph line" of mail coaches to Lewiston over the Ridge road, thence to Queenston and Niagara, which latter were the two most thriving and important places in Upper Canada peninsula. From Niagara the news was sent by a messenger on horseback to this and most other places in the Province. It was nearly noon on that June day when, as several loads of new made hay were being pitched into a large new brick barn, just completed by my father, on the old homestead place on Geneva street, near the "red mills" a man dressed as a cavalryman made his appearance at the junction of St. Paul, Geneva and Niagara streets, on a foaming horse, and carried a long tin horn on which he blew a tremendously loud blast, that called about him in a very short time nearly every person east of what is now the saw factory, and as soon as he could get his breath he made proclamation of the fact that the King (George the Fourth) was dead and that Victoria now reigned as the Queen of Great Britain and its dependences. Afterwards he proceeded to Shipman's old Welland Canal inn (back from the corner of St. Paul and Ontario streets), were he repeated his proclamamation to the rest of the people of St. Catharines, and then with a fresh horse began his journey towards the west, to make known to the rest of the people of Upper Canada this, to them, interesting and most important event."

A Scandalous Occupation.

London Free Press.

In the course of his letter to Lord Randolph Churchill, Archbishop Lynch says:—"An unjust law—improperly called law is—does not bind the conscience and can be resisted when possible." That is just the case as respects the Scott Act. It does not bind the conscience of the people, and hence it is treated with contempt and opposition whenever it is attempted to be put in force. It has been the occasion of more ill-will, of more perjury, of more deception and all kinds of roguery, of more drunkenness and violation of legislative enactment than any other that has been placed on the statute book. Indeed, there has been nothing to approach it in these respects. Generally speaking the law is well observed in Canada, because for the most part it is approved by the people. But the Scott Act is not approved by the people, as the continual infringements upon it testify. It is promoted by a class of informers that have sprung up under it, that had no previous existence, who go from town to town endeavouring to incite others to break the law, and then, informing against them, make profit by the transaction. That is the kind of morality that the Scott Act has given rise to. Yet there are those that wave their hats in favor of the perpetuation of the Act, as if the bonds of society would be loosened if it were to be abrogated.

How to Glue Woodwork.

Experienced woodworkers have always contended that a glued joint, properly done, is stronger than the wood itself. And yet the experience of amateur workers is that joints often give way at the surface where the glue is used, which is allowed for the bad material. A lack of skill is frequently the true cause. In glueing wood, it is asserted by competent authority, bad work is produced by applying glue to both surfaces; a good job is secured by applying glue hot, but not extremely so, to one surface, which should be cold, while the other surface should be heated at the stove, but should have no glue upon it. By this method the glue will permeate the wood and bind the surfaces together more firmly than nature binds the fibers.

Imprisonment for Debt.

The survival of the law for imprisonment for debt under the Division Court Act has long been a reproach to the Province. We are glad to notice Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, has introduced into the Provincial Legislature a Bill amending the law, which will abolish the power of a judge to commit a debtor to jail for refusing to pay under an order of court. The Bill, in fact, assimilates the practice in Division Court cases to that in the higher courts.—Toronto News.

Algoma Election Returns.

SAULT STE. MARIE, March 24.—Returning-Officer Wilson counted up the votes to day. The figures were:—Algoma East—Dawson, 760; Burke, 865; Algoma West—Dawson, 658; Burke, 542. Total—Dawson, 1,418; Burke, 1,407. Majority for Dawson, 11. No recount has been applied for so far.

Lippincott's Monthly Magazine.

Douglas Duane, the new romance by Edgar Fawcett, which appears complete in Lippincott's Monthly Magazine for April, is in a vein which this popular author has rarely essayed before. In fact, it reads more like R. L. Stevenson than Edgar Fawcett. The story is weird and strange, and is told with a power that holds the reader's interest to the end. No such absorbing psychological study has appeared since the publication of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Lucy C. Little, under the title of Belgravian Bohemia, gives an interesting sketch of the literary and artistic society of modern London, with glimpses of Wm. Black, Herbert Spencer, Gilbert, George Eliot, Carlyle, Ruskin, George Boughton, etc. An anonymous author contributes a bright and amusing sketch. My Lady's Maid, which she assures the reader is drawn from life. Will Carleton's Experiences of a Public Lecturer is an entertaining bit of autobiography, and will be eagerly perused by all the poet's admirers. Social Life at Princeton, by E. M. Hopkins, of the class of '88, is the first of a series of articles which are to describe the inner life of students at the principal colleges, and are to be written by students themselves. The poetry is excellent. Margaret J. Preston contributes a stirring American ballad, The Mystery of Cro-a-tan. Bessie Chandler has A Spring Song, and Philip Bourke Marston has a posthumous poem, My Grave, which is of unusual pathos and interest, in view of the fact that it was one of the very last things he wrote, and appears to have been written in the expectation of death.

The illegitimacy of Scotland has often been remarked on. By the last returns of the Registrar General it appears that matters are getting worse rather than better. Banffshire is always at the top of the tree in this respect, and the parish of Marnoch, where the discussion arose which issued in the disruption of the church of Scotland, is the worst in Banffshire. It is curious that for centuries Banffshire has had a bad pre eminence in this respect. While many counties have only some six or seven per cent. of registered illegitimate births in the year, Banffshire, as a whole, has from fifteen to seventeen per cent., and while this is the average for the county, the parish of Marnoch has within the last thirty years ranged from eighteen to forty per cent. per annum. One is curious to know how it comes to pass that Scotland has such a bad pre-eminence in the species of immortality which is thus shown to prevail.—Globe.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE for April opens with an article on "The South-rn Gateway of the Alleghanies" (the city of Chattanooga, Tenn.), by Edmund Kirke, in continuation of the timely series of Southern papers introduced by Mr. Warner's admirable descriptions of "New Orleans" and "The Acadian Land." The articles shows the extraordinary advantages by which nature has marked Chattanooga as conspicuously fitted to be the site of a great city, and which explain its prominence in Revolutionary struggles, in the Rebellion, and in the wonderful strides of recent Southern progress. The thrilling episodes of colonial times are graphically illustrated by Howard Pyle, and the picturesque aspects of the present Chattanooga by Harry Fenn.

"The Comedie Francaise," which is universally acknowledged to be "the first theatre of the world," is the subject of an exceedingly attractive article by Theodore Child, abundantly illustrated by French artists and photogaphers, including a portrait of the celebrated actor, Coquelin, who is soon to visit this country.

Kathleen O'Meara's story of Russian life, "Narka," progresses through the fourth part with great dramatic power. In connection with this novel a specially interesting article appears, entitled "Through the Caucasus," Part I.," in which Ralph Meeker narrates his tour through that region of Southern Russia least familiar to the world. The illustrations are by Frank D. Millet.

"The Stubblefield Contingents" is an admirable story sketch, by R. M. Johnson, of Georgia life thirty years ago, illustrated by E. W. Kemble.

Blackmore's novel, "Springhaven," comes to an end in this Number with the victory and death of Lord Nelson. Frederick Barnard's drawings illustrate the tragic conclusion, and one of Alfred Parson's pictures, "Corpse-walk Pit," is the frontispiece to the Number.

A remarkable contribution to the enlightenment of the labor problem is Lee Meriwether's account of "How Workingmen Live in Europe and America," based upon the author's life and observations among the toiling classes of Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France, Belgium, and the United States.

The third instalment of W. D. Howells's novel, "April Hopes," continues to portray Cambridge society life.

Charles Dudley Warner describes his recent tour to the city of Mexico, with the impressions derived from that journey, in the first part of a series of "Mexican Notes."

A curious little story, "Back from the Frozen Pole," by Ellen L. Dorsey, will interest lovers of the marvellous.

The departments are richly filled with choice reading. The Easy Chair chats of the recent Strike, Political Partisanship, the Old-time Lecture Lyceum, etc.; the Editor's Study discusses Pernicious Fiction, its effects and tests, and reviews some recent novels; add the Editors's Drawer presents many bright humors, with two illustrations by Hyde and Du Maurier.

THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURST for April, 1887, offers its readers a remarkable variety of interesting and instructive matter pertaining to the farm, garden, hearth and household. The front page engraving presents several spirited Florida scenes, another full page illustration portrays two noted types of English pheasants. Some fifty smaller original engravings are devoted to various animals, plants, implements, barn and house plans, etc., etc. Among the very many topics treated are: Wrong impressions on fish culture, by Seth Green; summer grafting, A. S. Fuller; sowing flower seeds, and floral designs, Peter Henderson; ornamental wild flowers of the plains, Prof. Chas. E. Bessey; orange culture in Florida, Dr. S. E. Newton; better seeding, Col. F. D. Curtis; truck farming in the South, Dr. A. Oemler; beneficial insects insects, Mrs. Mary Treat. The household and boys' and girls' departments are, as usual, replete with interesting matter, and in the pages devoted to the exposures of humbugs a relentless war against every kind of fraud is waged. Price, $1.50 per year, English or German. Single numbers, 15 cents. Address American Agriculturist, 751 Broad, New York.

The largest single purchase of cotton ever made in Texas, perhaps the largest ever known in any of the Southern States, was completed the other day in Galveston, when 6500 bales changed hands in one transaction. The lot was bought for export. The total spot sales the same day in Galveston footed up to over 8000 bales, or about $400,000 worth. Wonder if this large buying indicates a probable advance in the price of this important staple?

GUELPH, March 24.—Ex-Ald. Hartop, a grain buyer here, has absconded to the other side. His liabilities are heavy, caused by speculations in stocks on margins. His departure leaves many of his creditors in rather reduced circumstances. His brothers, one his partner on the market and the other a leading farmer and miller, suffer considerably through endorsing for him. Two of the local banks, it is said, are considerable losers also. He has always borne an honorable record heretofore.

BANKRUPT STOCKS.—A merchant writing to the St. Thomas Journal in reference to bankrupt stocks, says: "The continued sale of bankrupt stocks throughout the country is one of the most serious obstacles against which the average retail trader has to contend. He is crippled by every lot of goods thrown on the market by bankruptcy, and the way is paved for his own stock to ultimately share the same fate. No honest man who pays one hundred cents on the dollar, can sell his goods as cheaply as the man who buys for fifty cents on the dollar. The inevitable consequence is that he looses trade, prestige and heart.

An important measure for the further regulation of child labor is now before the New York Legislature. The present law of the State prohibits the employment in manufacturing establishments of children under 16 years. The Bill extends to mercantile houses the prohibition with regard to girls. It forbids the employment of children in cleaning machinery in motion, and insists on further safeguards against accidents to the little laborers. It also increases the penalty for violations of the law, and, what is still more important, provides an adequate force of inspectors to see that its provisions are complied with. That it is highly necessary, is proved by recent investigations, which show that at least 25,000 children in New York city alone are working in factories in defiance of the law and growing up in the densest ignorance. There are but two inspectors for the thousands of manufacturing establishments, and the proposal is to increase the number to two.

ANOTHER CHANCE FOR PUZZLE WORKERS

The Judge's Second Prize Offering

In Behalf of the

GRANT MONUMENT FUND.

In spite of its more or less complicated character, the Judge's Grand Word Contest, just ended, has proven a great success. By it Judge has enlisted over 3000 energetic, spirited and intelligent workers for the Grant Fund, has materially swelled the total previously received through the Grant Monument Committee by the contribution of a good sized check, and has in addition divided $300 among eight successful and happy puzzle workers as a reward for their labor and ingenuity. Judge now inaugurates a second contest of an even more popular character than the first—a contest in which every school child can engage and stand an equal chance with older competitors.

Every person who, in conformance with governing rules, sends to the Judge Grant Fund, on or before June 15th, 1887 (12 o'clock noon), 50 cents and the names of the eleven most popular living men in America will be entitled to participate in the contest. The money thus received will be appropriated as follows:

Twenty-five cents will be at once credited to the Grant Fund.

The remaining twenty-five cents, after deducting the legitimate expenses of advertising, will be placed in a common fund to be divided equally among the six competitors having the fullest list of the most popular people as indicated by a majority of all the lists sent in. The new contest is, in fact, based upon the principles of an election, each competitor being virtually acting in the nature of a ballot, and the six lists containing the greater number of the 11 names shown to be the most popular by a majority of all the lists will be the successful prize papers.

The magnitude of the prizes will depend on the amount of money received, or in other words, on the number of competitors. The names and contributions of competitors will be acknowledged (and the progress of the fund shown) from week to week in Judge. Governing ruling in this week's Judge; or circulars mailed on receipt of postage. Requests for copies of paper must be accompanied by ten cents.
