THE OPIUM HABIT.

THE MOST ABJECT OF SLAVERIES—IS THERE ANY EMANCIPATION?

The New York papers lately published a very pathetic story about a very popular emotional actress. It was to the effect that she had become a confirmed victim of the opium habit, involving an almost total loss of physical and mental powers, and actual destitution.

The story was at once denied by her friends, who say she has suffered simply from nervous prostration, is in no need of pecuniary aid, and is on the way to speedy recovery.

Opium victims are usually hopeless, helpless slaves, mind weakened, lacking energy for any effort toward recovery, rapidly drifting into imbecility and untimely graves.

A peculiar feature is that victims craftily conceal it from their nearest friends. A young lady at school near Philadelphia was recently found to be secretly addicted to it, keeping her "medicine" in a school-room inkstand, and injecting the fluid into her arm with a stylographic pen!

In the Chicago Farm, Field and Stockman, September 24, 1887, is this letter signed S. T. O., from Barstow, Ky.: "I missed the paper that had my letter in, so I did not know that you made the request to know what it was I used to break up the morphine habit, until I got a letter from a gentleman asking information. I should have answered sooner. It was Warner's safe cure. I should have given it when I wrote the letter, but it looked too much like an advertisement."

This voluntary statement goes to confirm the claim made by the proprietors of Warner's safe cure, that it is the only remedy in the world which has any decided power over diseases of the kidneys and liver, and that these organs have first been [illegible] to full health, because they are the ones chiefly affected by this drug.

Editor Wm. A. Bode, of Alton, Ill., was completely cured of the opium habit, acquired by long use in a painful malady, with Warner's safe cure. It cannot be cured at all if the kidneys and liver are diseased.

It is not claimed that there is anything in Warner's safe cure alone which will do away with the habit, except that it puts the kidneys and liver in a healthy condition, giving the whole system that strength and tone without which any attempt to throw off the habit would be vain.

It is because physicians have discovered that no other remedy is so beneficial in restoring health to the liver, kidneys and general system as the one stated that it has come into general use in connection with the special remedies for the cure of the dreadful opium habit.

One of the worst features of the opium habit is the deadening of mental and moral sensibilities in proportion as it weakens the physical system and the will power.

Nelson Council.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
Oct. 3rd, 1887.

Council met pursuant to adjournment. Members all present.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from Capt. A. C. Jones, in reference to the grant to No. 4 Co., 20th Batt., was read; also one from J. Dowar, in reference to a bridge over the Twelve Mile Creek.

C. Porter proved the loss of one sheep killed by dogs, H. Wilkins one killed and one damaged, Samuel Wilkins one killed and one damaged, Wm. Headon two lambs killed, and Andrew Wilson two sheep killed.

On motion of Mr. Pettit the following sums were ordered to be paid for the said damages, viz:—To C. Porter, $4; H. Wilkins, $4; Samuel Wilkins, $6.66; Wm. Headon, $4, and Andrew Wilson, $6.66.

On motion of Mr. Pettit, Geo. Irwin was paid $16 for culvert in div. No. 3.

A petition signed by C. Richardson and 19 others, asking for a grant to improve the road through the Nelson rocks, was presented by C. Richardson, who addressed the council in support thereof, and on motion of Mr. Peer $75 was granted in response to the said petition, on condition that the parties interested in the matter expend forty days' labour thereon, and that Councillor Harris and C. Richardson be commissioned to expend the said grant; also to repair the railing on the bank opposite the property of Thos. Sharp, in div. No. 70.

Jas. Allan and J. Karkriff addressed the council in reference to damage to engine and horses caused by falling over the approach to the N. & N. W. railway on the road between concessions 1 and 2, N. D. S., and the reeve and Councillor Hartley were appointed to get legal advice as to the liability of the council in the matter.

Mr. Pettit moved that the following accounts be paid, viz:—T. & F. Greenlees, for plank to divisions 78 & 80, $15.77; G. C. Crawford, for plank, $7.80; Jas. Coutts, for repairing bridge in div. 69, $7.—Carried.

Mr. Hartley moved that a special grant of $4, payable to the order of the mover, be made to procure clothing for the child of Isaac Armstrong.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Harris, $5.22 was ordered to be paid E. Ireland for plank in div. 80.

On motion of Mr. Peer, the reeve and Councillor Hartley were commissioned to get the bridge over the Twelve Mile Creek at Readhead's mill rebuilt.

The reeve and Councillors Hartley and Harris reported that they had examined the hill in road div. No. 75 and in their opinion it was not advisable to expend any money on it at present.

Report adopted.

The reeve reported that the council in committee of the whole met at Burlington Beach on the 10th of Sept. and, after examining the road, Mr. Pettit was appointed, with Capt. Campbell, to take measurements and to report to this council at the next meeting the probable cost of making the road on the west side of the railway.

Report adopted.

Mr. Pettit reported that he had met with Capt. Campbell at the Brant House on the 12th September and had measured the two proposed routes for a new road and found the route along the railroad had a good solid bottom, and very little water at present; the other across the point of the pond had an average depth of 8 1/6 feet of water, the deepest places measuring 5½ feet. They also found that the difference in grading the different routes would be about 800 cubic yards in favor of the route near the railroad, and that the probable cost of moving the road to the west of the railroad would be about $500.

Report adopted.

Mr. Hartley moved that the sum of $40 be granted to the Nelson Agricultural Society.—Carried.

Mr. Hartley moved that the reeve and the mover be appointed to examine the road in front of J. Agnew's place with a view to adopting some measure for preventing the water from overflowing the said road.—Carried.

Mr. Harris moved that the deputy-reeve be appointed to have the Beach road on the east side of the railroad made safe for public travel if it can be done for $45.—Carried.

Mr. Peer moved that the deputy-reeve be instructed to have a bridge built over the Rambo Creek in O. T. Springer's survey.—Carried.

The council adjourned, to meet on Monday, the 7th day of Nov., at 10 o'clock a. m.

DANIEL MCLAREN, Clerk.

How a Cowboy Justice of the Peace Administered the Law.

London Spectator.

His experience of western life is as racy as a volume of Bret Harte. Take the following, for instance: At a prairie town not far from his ranch, as distances go in the west, there is a state court of first instance, presided over by one Roy Bean, justice of the peace, who is also the owner of the principal grocery. Some cowboys had been drinking at the grocery one night, with the result that one of them remained on the floor, but with sense enough left to lie on the side of the pocket were he kept his dollars. In the morning it appeared that he had been "rolled"—Anglice, turned over and his pockets picked—whereupon a court was called to try a man on whom suspicion rested. Roy Bean sat on a barrel, swore in a jury, and then addressed the prisoner thus: "Now you give that man his money back." The culprit, who had sent for a lawyer of the place to defend him, hesitated for a moment, and then pulled out the money. "You treat this crowd," were Roy's next words; and while "drinks round" were handed to the delighted cowboys at the prisoner's expense Roy pulled out his watch and went on: "You've got just five minutes to clear out of this town, and if ever you come in again we'll hang you." The culprit made off just as his lawyer came up, who remonstrated with Roy, explaining that the proper course would have been to have heard the charge, convicted the prisoner, and sent him to the district court for trial. "And go off 7 miles, and hang round with the boys (witnesses) for you to pull the skunk through the touch the dollars!" said Roy, scornfully; whereupon the lawyer disappeared in pursuit of his client and unpaid fee.

It occurs to one to ask how much of the litigation of England might be saved if judges of first instance might open with Roy's formula—"Now you give that man his money back." I am bound to add that this practice is not without its scamy side. When the railway was making, two men came in from one of the gangs for a warrant. A brutal murder had been committed. Roy told his clerk (the boy in the grocery, he being no penman himself) to make out the paper,—"Wot's the corpse's name?" "Li Hung," was the reply. "Hold on!" shouted Roy to his clerk; and then to the purveyors—"Ef you can find anything in them books," pointing to the two or three supplied by the state, "about killin' a Chinaman, it ken go," and the purveyors had to travel on the next fount of justice.

Please find room for one more and I will promise to cut my next shorter. "My loaf brother" heard it himself as he was leaving Texas and laughed at it nearly all the way up. A group of cowboys at the station were discussing the problem of how long the world would last if this drought went on; the prevailing sentiment being that they would rather it worrited through somehow. A cowboy down on his luck here struck in:—"Wall, if the angel stood right thar," pointing across the room, "ready to sound, and looked across at me, I'd just say: 'Gabe! toot your old horn!'"

Antidotes For Poison.

"More than two-thirds of the deaths from poison could be avoided if men and women would only acquaint themselves with the simple remedies always at hand in every well regulated household." The speaker was a house surgeon at a city hospital. "I see the names of six persons on this record of mine whom I know might have been saved had their friends or the police known what to do," he continued. "All six died because too much time was lost in notifying the police, calling an ambulance, and in getting the sufferer to the hospital. Paris green, rough on rats, and laudanum seem to be the favorite poisons for suicide. For each of these poisons an antidote can be found in almost every household. The chief points in cases of poisoning are to encourage vomiting, and thus get rid of the substance; to counteract the poisons by antidotes and to check death by the use of stimulants and artificial respiration. Rough on rats is simply arsenic. Hardly a day passes but some one suicides by its aid. If on discovering that this poison has been taken, the sufferer is given one or two raw eggs, and the eggs are followed up with large draught of tepid water into which a tablespoonful of salt or mustard has been thrown, the stomach will usually throw the poison off. These, supplemented by a dose of castor oil, sweet oil, or milk to off-set the action of the poison, will usually save the life of the patient. The same treatment is the one to be followed when Paris green, opium, morphine, paregoric or laudanum is the poison used. When opium, morphine, paregoric or laudanum is swallowed, it is well to give a cup of strong black coffee after the emetic, to apply cold water to the head and neck, and to prevent sleep. These poisons represent the majority of those taken by accident, or by persons intent on suicide. When tartar emetic is taken, after encouraging vomiting, it is well to give milk and strong tea to drink. When poisons like mineral acids are used—such as oil of vitriol, aquafortis and oil of vitriol—after an emetic, solution of soda, magnesia, and even of plaster scraped from the walls, can be used with good effect. Oxalic and carbolic acid calls for the same treatment after using a little flour and water, the white of an egg, or castor oil, in order to protect the gullet and walls of the stomach. When poison like caustic potash, soda or lime is used, administer vinegar, lemon or orange juice in water, emetics and oil. If phosphorus is taken, like the ends of lucifer matches, for instance, keep up the vomiting and administer big doses of magnesia in water. Oils in such cases must not be used. For corrosive sublimate administer the white of an egg, flour and water or milk and then the emetic. In poisoning from chloroform or illuminating gas, let the patient have fresh air, loosen the clothing and dash cold water about the face and neck. All of these antidotes are, as a rule, always at hand, and if used will almost every time save the life of the patient and greatly facilitate the work of the physician when the case comes under his care."

CANADIAN ROMANCES.

Liberal Prize Offered to Canadian Authors.

AN EFFORT TO FIND OUT WHO CAN WRITE GOOD CANADIAN STORIES.

The Publisher of THE CANADIAN FIRESIDE WEEKLY offer a prize of $75 for the best Canadian Story, $30 for the second and $20 for the third best. All the Stories submitted are to become the property of THE FIRESIDE WEEKLY, and should contain not less than ten thousand and no more than fifteen thousand words. The judges will be appointed from among literary men whose impartiality will be above suspicion.

Each competitor must be a yearly subscriber to THE FIRESIDE WEEKLY, and should sign some name to his or her manuscript, and when sending in the material they have written, should enclose their name and address in a sealed envelope, on the outside of which should be written the same name as that on the manuscript. The envelopes containing the names and addresses will not be opened until after the prizes have been awarded, when it will be imperative that the name and address of each successful competitor shall be published. The competition will close on the 15th January, 1888, and the result will be announced as soon thereafter as possible. Those desiring any further information can receive it by addressing THE CANADIAN FIRESIDE WEEKLY No. 9 Adelaide street west, Toronto.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE for November is a very richly illustrated number, and has for its leading article an interesting paper, by William P. Apthorp, the musical critic of the Boston Transcript, on "Wagner and Scenic Art." Professor D. A. Sargent, M. D., of Harvard University, furnishes the second of his notable papers on physical training, entitled "The Physical Characteristics of the Athlete." The numerous illustrations are excellently engraved portraits of athletes who have reached distinction in their specialties. These have been made from instantaneous photographs taken expressly for the purpose, and include a notable full-page picture of two wrestlers. The Rev. Henry M. Field, D. D., describes a visit to a most interesting country, in Northern Algeria, known as Grand Kabylia—the Switzerland of Africa. The article is illustrated with woodengravings of portraits and landscapes. "A Diplomatic Episode" is a noteworthy paper by Miss Olive Risely Seward, the adopted daughter of ex-Secretary Seward, and his confidant in many important political affairs, explaining for the first time an incident in diplomic history relating to the failure of the negotiations for the purchase, from Denmark, of the islands of St. Thomas and St. John. Another illustrated article in the MAGAZINE is a very interesting description by John S. White, L. L. D., of "The Viking Ship" which was unearthed several years ago at Gokstad, in Norway, and which gives a complete idea of the ancient ship-building methods of the Vikings. General Francis A. Walker, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, contributes a vigorous, plain-spoken article, entitled "What Shall we Tell the Working-classes?" The fiction of the number embraces the conclusion of Harold Frederic's notable story, "Seth's Brother's Wife;" a dramatic tale of the Louisiana bayous, entitled "Tirar by Soult," by Rebecca Harding Davis; and a pathetic story by Miss Margaret Crosby, called "A Complete Misunderstanding." Among the poems is one of remarkable finish, melody, and fancy, by Andrew Lang, entitled "To Rhodocleia, on Her Melancholy Singing." Short poems are contributed by Susan Coolidge, Ellen Burroughs, Henrietta Christian Wright, Charles Henry Luders, and A. Lampman.

Published by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, at $3 a year, or 25c a copy.

THE November Wide Awake is enriched with several papers connecting so closely with some of the most delightful things in literature that both young and old will always keep this number of the magazine. First comes Mrs. Fremont's account of several visits with Hans Andersen in Copenhagen, entitled 'Haus Andersen at Home,' and full of the most unique incident and gossip. Of interest as general, is Miss Amanda B. Harris's article about 'The Luck of Edenhall,' filled with all manner of legend and fact concerning the old fairy drinking-glass of the Musgraves, so famous in ballad and story, and which is yet in existence at Edenhall. Lady Bartelot, of the Musgrave family, gave the author many of the incidents, and a drawing of the goblet, and the beautiful illustrations by Garrett were made at Edenhall. Closely related, too, to the world's literature is the closing paper of Margaret Sidney's series, 'Concord; her Highways and Byways,' abounding as it does with incident and reference concerning thor Immortals. A fourth tempting article, 'A Pleasant Author,' is about the delightful books for girls written by the English author, Annie Keary. Edward R. Payne tells a funny Boston story, entitled 'Baked Beans and Brown Bread,' which has three of Kemble's inimitable 'darkey' pictures. The La Rose Blanche story, 'Po'-Souls,' by Mrs. Davis, relates the coming home from the war of the boys on a Southern plantation. The serials, "Hosadiles," "A Young Prince of Commerce," and "The Lost Medicine of the Utes," come to a close, as does Mr. Holder's series, "Wonder-Wings," and Miss Guiney's "Fairy-Folk All." "Some Famous Pets," by Mrs Lewis, relates to "Pets in Artist Life," and has a dozen or so delicious pictures. The poems are entirely readable: "A Lost Leader," one of Susan Coolidge's finest; Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney's "Goldfinch," in "Bird-Talk," and Thanksgiving poems by Margaret Eytinge and Willis Boyd Allen.

☞ Serial stories, "My Uncle Florimond," by Sidney Luska, and "Those Cousins of Mabel's," by Mrs. John Sherwood, open in the next (Dec.) number.☜

Wike Awake is $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston, Mass.

NOTHING the near approach of the date for his retirement from the army, under the new rule, the Army and Navy Gazette pays this tribute to the officer commanding our militia: "The only retirement on the list of general officers taking place in November is that of Major-General Sir F. Middleton, commanding the Canadian militia, who will attain the age for compulsory retirement on the 4th of that month. He retires after forty-five years' service with a good record of staff service, and also of service in the field. He became a major-general (local) in 1884, when he was appointed commandant of the Dominion militia, and he attained the substantive rank in the following year During the three years he has been in Canada he has effected great improvements in the condition of the militia force, while his successful campaign against the rebels in the North-West considerably added to the reputation he bore prior to that event."

CAN YOU WRITE POETRY?

A CHANCE TO WIN THE FIRESIDE WEEKLY'S PRIZE.

The publishers of THE CANADIAN FIRESIDE WEEKLY offer a prize of $10 for the best poem on the subject, "Boys, Don' Leave the Farm;" $10 for the best poem "Girls, be Kind to Mother," and a third prize of $5 for the best poem on any subject. All the poems submitted will become the property of THE FIRESIDE WEEKLY following that date. No poems will be accepted except from yearly subscribers for the paper. THE Canada Medical & Surgical Journal for November contains the introductory lecture, McGill-University, by Dr. J. A. Grant; address on Obstetrics, Subinvolution of the Uterus, Dr. F. R. Eccles; and Eclampsia of Pregnancy, Dr. J. L. Addison. There are two clever reviews, Elements of Physiological Psychology, by Dr. G. T. Ladd, and Evacuant Medication, by Dr. H. M. Field. There are reports of the proceedings of the Medico-Chirurgical Society of Montreal and the International Medical Congress. The editorial and other departments are as interesting as usual. Published by the Gazette Printing Co., Montreal, at $3 per annum in advance.

Jenny Lind is dead.

Jefferson Davis is reported seriously ill.

The distressing paleness so often observed in young girls and women, is due in a great measure to a lack of the red corpuscles in the blood. To remedy this requires a medicine which will produce these necessary little blood constituents, and the best yet discovered is Johnson's Tonic Bitters. Price 50 cts. and $1 per bottle, at Watson's drug store, Milton.

A Milton Ballplayer.

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

As general of a small army of baseball players who win the glorious pennant this year, W. H. Watkins is a national hero. He sprang suddenly into the prominence which he enjoys as a league manager. Watkins arrived at Brantford, Can., a little more than 26 years ago. He has played the game of a practical baseball experience, and is educated in the national pastime from beginning to end. In 1870 he played with the academy team of Milton. During the seasons of 1879-80 he was a big factor in the Maple Leaf team of Guelph, who held the amateur championship of Canada. After a brief term with the amateur Atlantics of St. Thomas, he went to Port Huron in 1882, managing the club and playing third base. In 1883 he managed to get the state championship into the hands of the Port Hurons, and the next season took charge of the Bay Citys. He was instrumental that team to the fore for the Northwestern League championship, leading all the clubs except the Grand Rapids, with which the Bay Citys were tied, when the club disbanded. From Bay City Mr. Watkins went to Indianapolis, and had that city's club in the lead of the Western League when it was bought out by Detroit. Watkins has brought out some of the leading players of the country, and, with the team of sluggers he gathered about him, has made the race for the pennant, now over, a fast one.

A Romance of Rural Life.

"Widower Jones," the new story by Edmund E. Sheppard, editor and publisher of The Toronto News and author of the "Parlimin' Editor's Sketches" and "Dolly—The Young Widder up to Felder's," which were popular features of the Toronto Weekly News, will be begun on the 21st of November in THE CANADIAN FIRESIDE WEEKLY. THE FIRESIDE WEEKLY is a first-class story paper which is rapidly achieving a large circulation in Canada. For sale by all newsdealers, price 5 cents a copy. Scott Act Shebeens.

(Almonte Gazette.)

We understand that our temperance friends are about to inaugurate a vigorous campaign against unlicensed vendors of forty-rod, and are determined to keep it up until the law is made a terror to them. It is certainly time something was done. The Scott Act is now being openly violated in every town and village in the county, and here in Almonte several whiskey shebeens of the lowest type are alleged to be doing a flourishing business. We hope Mr. Robertson and his assistants will give the latter establishments their special attention as it is in them the worst mischief is done—enticing mere boys within their doors and crazing them with the vilest compound that passes for liquor. The sooner those places are rooted out the safer it will be for the youth of our town. Thus far the Scott Act as in operation in this county has provoked the contempt of not a few who were at first the strongest advocates; but many are confident that under the new order of things a change will be speedily brought about. The sooner the better.

NO A BOOK AGENT.

Mr. H. Watson, Druggist, is not a book agent, but has the agency in Milton for Johnson's Tonic Bitters, which he can heartily recommend for any complaint to which a tonic medicine is applicable. This valuable medicine has been used with most astonishingly good results in cases of general debility, weakness, irregularities peculiar to females, extreme paleness, impoverishment of the blood, stomach and liver troubles, loss of appetite, and for that general worn out feeling that nearly every one is troubled with at some part of the year. Don't forget the name Johnson's Tonic Bitters 50c. and $1 per bottle at Watson's drug store.

Sure Cure for Chapped Lips.

"As soon as the cold winds begin to blow," remarked a New York physician, "I am overrun with patients suffering from chapped lips. The trouble generally manifests itself in one wide cut in the middle of the lip. I used to treat such things as a laughable matter and prescribe some simple emollient, such as glycerine, for instance. But I soon found that such treatment was only a temporary remedy, for after partially healing, the cut would reopen at the slight est exertion of the lips. The more act of biting anything hard, laughing or yawning would make the unfortunate howl with pain. If the patient was addicted to the use of tobacco the chances were that he would have a bad lip all through the winter. In my researches for a permanent cure I ran across and old tramp printer, who had cubbed against the rough side of the world all his life and for whom every season had been a cold day. He told me that if I investigated the matter I would find that the people addicted to chapped lips were in the habit of touching them with their tongues. A sure cure, said he is to keep your tongue in your mouth. I have since followed his suggestion in my practice and never knew it to fail. The rough skin of the tongue scratches the lips, and when they have once become chapped the least contact is enough to keep the cut open."

Reliable Testimony.

Mr. John R. Wright, representing Messrs. Evans, Sons & Mason, wholesale druggists, Montreal, says—"Nasal Balm cured me of a long standing case of Catarrh after many other remedies failing."

In a deposit made by the city treasurer of Hamilton, at the Bank of Hamilton were several counterfeit $2 bills, which were detected by the teller. They are supposed to have been paid in for a fine imposed at the Police Court. A number of counterfeits of the same plate are in circulation in the neighborhood. The dates over the letter "H" are omitted in the imprint "British American Bank Note Co."

Pills 25 cents per bottle. Bitters 50 cents and $1 per bottle. Sold by H. Watson, Druggist Milton.

A committee of the Northwest Council has recommended that scrip be issued to all children of Halfbreeds born between July 15, 1870, and March 30, 1881.

Description.

Pleasing, soothing, healing, relieving, curing, is the description of Nasal Balm, which is receiving a national reputation as a cure for Catarrh, Cold in the Head, Hay Fever, etc.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis Catarrh, Asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers, in thousands of cases has felt it his duty to make it known to his fellow sufferers. Actuated by this motive and desiring to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power Block, Rochester N. Y.

Roper the Baker to the Front.
