THE CANADIAN CHAMPION

MILTON, JAN. 12, 1888.

THE Toronto World recommends ex-alderman John Turner, of Toronto, whose residence is at Oakville, as the Conservative candidate in the coming election in Halton, and says that Mr. James Beaty, Q. C., is also mentioned as a possible candidate on the same ticket.

MR. L. O. DAVID, M. P. P. for Montreal East, is preparing a bill for the regulation of the liquor traffic. The so-called temperance people have had their hopes centered in this bill, but Mr. David says he has come to the conclusion that absolute prohibition cannot be carried out in a country like our, and that such a law would merely have the effect of "substituting an illigitimate for a legitimate traffic," and would increase crime and the evil results generally of the liquor traffic. The idea of the proposed measure is to reduce the number of licenses by one-third, and to raise the license rate to $500. This, it is hoped, will clean out all low groggeries, make the traffic more respectable, and confine it to a limited number of establishments which will be easily looked after by a special police force created by the bill for that purpose. A heavy fine will be inflicted for a first offence against the new law, and imprisonment without the option of a fine will be the punishment for a second offence. No licenses will be granted to grocery stores. A most stringent inspection clause will be rigorously carried out, and where any liquor is found to be not up to the standard fixed by law, a severe fine will be imposed and the license of the vendor revoked at once. Mr. David is on the right track. Prohibition has been extensively tried in the United States, it has been found to be a disastrous failure, increasing drunkenness and general lawlessness and there is a strong reaction there in favor of high license, which Mr. David's proposed new law practically will be.

CRIME AS AN ALLY OF VIRTUE.—Is this possible? Can vice be worked in the same shafts as virtue? The question comes up in a practical form by the proceedings of those who are trying to enforce the Scott Act. Their policy is to send men disguised into towns and villages where by lying and all manner of deceit they get liquor, thus aiding and abetting and sharing in a breach of the Scott Act, or they try to obtain it and fail. If successful they become informers, and if not successful they swear they were. We have the very highest authority for stating that the whiskey informers employed on behalf of the Scott Act are men to whom perjury is nought—if it helps them.

The Canada Presbyterian thinks "the employment of detectives by temperance and other moral reform associations is a question that will stand more discussion but has yet been given to it. Is it right for Christian people to resort to what Mr. Hutchinson, County Attorney for Middlesex, as a criminal lawyer calls "questionable devices?" Is it right to employ a man who will deceive, tell lies, act lies, personate, drink, and do a good many doubtful things to convict liquor-sellers, or any other class off offenders? Should such means be employed by professedly Christian men in carrying on moral reforms? Does the business not look dangerously like doing evil that good may come?"

Look like it? It is making crime the agent, the ally, the partner of virtue! Characteristically enough, the Christian Guardian, the Methodist organ, thinks that the employing men to tell lies, act lies, swear lies, drink against the provisions of the Scott Act, and do other immoral acts, is eminently a Christian policy, that it is right and proper to employ the devil in the service of Christ. On the same lines the holding of political meeting on Sunday is approved by prohibitionists, in fact everything, and anything is justified that favors their cause. Prohibitionists make vice a virtue if vice helps prohibition.—Dominion Churchman.

Alowned, as in Burlington, Milton and Esquesing.

PORT PERRY, Jan. 8.—The municipal contest in the township of Reach was hotly fought on the question of the Scott Act. The temperance people had a ticket in the field headed with Robert Waring Reeve. They were all opposed and everyone of them overwhelmingly defeated, the Reeve by a majority of two hundred, the Deputy Reeve carried the way from 200 to 400. More than a complete expression of opinion against the Act could not well have been given. The temperance people forced the issue, the resident clergy took active parts and four of them stumped the township. Proof that the contest was not political lies in the fact that the township is largely Conservative in sentiment, whilst the newly elected Reeve is a Reformer.

In Port Perry the same question was made the sole issue between the candidates for the office of Deputy Reeve. The W. C. T. U. forced the fight from the first and their candidate was badly beaten. The temperance people are alone responsible for having forced public opinion to speak when it was not necessary. The Anti-Scott Act people will not take fresh courage, and judging from the votes referred to the Act will be swept out of the county when the time comes.

Soured on the Prohibitionist.

From the Mail of Saturday.

The citizens of Toronto did not vote against Mr. Rogers last Monday, but against the attempt of a few cliques of well-meaning but fussily-feeble bodies to dictate to the city in a matter with which most of us took the liberty to think they had no immediate concern. Temperance associations and Leagues of Purity are very good things in their place, but their place is not everywhere; and if they think it ought to be, and insist on forcing themselves on the public, in or out of season, they must not be at all surprised at often receiving the severe setting down they have had this week. Of course it is very cheering to come to think that we belong to the chosen few in intelligence and morality, and that all who do not gaze through our colored spectacles are mentally short-sighted and morally debased; but the worst of it is that the people are apt to resent all this; they do not believe in the tenets and spurn the unsolicited advice of those whom they regard as the goody-goody party—a party which here, as in other parts of the world, is apt to become towards outsiders a general condemnation association, while for all within the charmed circle it is verily a general admiration league.....There is no doubt that the importation of some professional female talking machines from the United States did the party harm; and Mr. Rogers doubtless now feels towards some of his late supporters as did the Spanish maiden, when to an objectionable suitor she exclaimed:—"Oh, spare me from your cruel hate and your still more cruel love."..... Whether those who have been mainly instrumental in bringing about the result will see it in this light is doubtful. They are still insulting those who had the temerity to differ from them, and while this is done they must not be surprised if the candidates whom they afflict with their perilous patronage achieve "moral victories" at the bottom of the poll. The minority claim they are not defeated; well, fancy will go a long way. When the lady who purchased the parrot complained to the seller that it would not talk, he admitted the defect but assured her that "it was a perfect beauty to think." And so in the present case, the enthusiasts might inspire themselves and cheer on their followers if they would adopt, as a suitable device just now, let us say: "Beaten at the Ballot-Box, but Devils at the Doxology."

An Absconder's Victims.

STREETSVILLE, Jan. 7th.—A meeting was held at Campbell's hotel here today of parties interested in the failure of J. G. Owen, the absconder. A large number of victimized people put in an appearance. Jas. Featherston, ex-reeve of Toronto Township, who has considerable financial interest in the scrape, was elected chairman, and T. J. Bell, of the Review, secretary. The chairman, in opening the meeting, said the situation was very bad, but that Mrs. Owen and her relatives and friends were proposing to make preparations to meet all her husband's liabilities. Mr. G. L. Tizard, of Oakville, asked any person present to make a statement in Owen's behalf, but there was no response. On motion of Mr. J. Featherston, Messrs. W. Andrews and Johnston Rogers were appointed a committee to wait upon the liquidators of the Central Bank, Toronto, to ask them to hold over claims against parties who have paid notes to J. G. Owen, and another motion was passed to the effect that all persons having claims against J. G. Owen on account of promissory notes made or negotiated by him be requested, by advertisement, to furnish particulars of said claims forthwith to T. J. Bell, secretary, said claims to be submitted to an executive committee, consisting of Joseph Featherston, W. Andrews and Johnston Rogers. A long and desultory conversation followed, during which it was freely hinted that some of Mr. and Mrs. Owen's friends would put up money enough to square off the liabilities, but not much stock was taken in these statements. A resolution, moved by J. Harvey Miller and George Crozier, expressing the deep sympathy of all present with Mrs. Owen in her trouble, was submitted and carried unanimously. After that the time was taken up for several hours in taking particulars regarding fraudulent notes, forgeries and so forth, and finally the meeting adjourned to meet again at the call of the chairman.

The End of a Brilliant Bad Man.

The late Rev. Isaac S. Kellock went to Washington Territory to die because it was so far away from the scenes of his former operations. Had he lived a little longer he would probably have pulled up in Alaska or China. He was a brilliant bad man. Physically handsome and intellectually bright, his ability to impress men and women from the pulpit and the platform was prostituted to the service of his ambition and his lust. He was compelled to vacate in disgrace every pulpit that he ever occupied, and he had been at different times the favorite preacher of Boston, Leavenworth and San Francisco. In Boston he was a Know Nothing leader, but in San Francisco he became a "moral Reformer and workingman's friend." As such he was elected Mayor by the assistance of Dennis Kearney. He made his pulpit a rostrum for the advocacy of himself and moral reform, and it fared ill with sinners who refused to vote as he dictated. They were cursed as children of Satan and enemies of God, and brimstone was dealt out to them with an unsparing hand. His favorite themes were temperance and moral reform, but it has since transpired that he was all the while leading a life of shameless immorality in secret. He became so violent a reformer that several shooting scrapes and at least one murder resulted from his campaign. The expiration of his term of office found him so utterly discredited that he had to go away and die among strangers. The moral of his immoral career is that the man who sets up too high a standard for others may be content with a much lower one for himself.—World.

Remarks from a Wellwisher.

Editors Champion:

SIRS,—I am an anti-Scott reader of your excellent paper. I have ever found it the zealous and consistent advocate of truth and righteousness, and the enemy of hypocrisy, cant, and tyranny in connection with the Scott Act. You may have been occasionally a little severe in your censures of those who administer this absurd, impracticable, and iniquitous law, but not more severe than are many of your readers. The law itself is bad enough, but when those whose business is to enforce it take the liberty of adding to it official acts of insult and cruelty, I for one, in view of such conduct, cannot blame a journalist much for an occasional outburst of indignation. In this matter you have done your duty in the past; and were I in your position as a journalist I should now consider myself as having done my duty for time to come. Why so? Because of the conduct of certain professed and prominent opponents of the Scott Act during the recent municipal election of reeve in Milton. Doubtless politics entered largely into the election; but it is well known that some, if not many, Scott Acters, who hate you for your journalistic truth-telling, and would fain therefore have you both ousted from office by the county council, openly declared that they would vote for the man as reeve who was the most likely in the council to give his influence in that direction. Politics are all very well in their own place, but it is questionable whether they should have any place at all in our municipal elections. There was and is a more immediate, important, and burning question which should have influenced the votes of your professed friends, and that is—the Scott Act. It has infinitely more to do with our welfare as a municipality and county than all our politics, either Grit or Conservative. But when professed anti-Scott men, under the plea of party politics, cast their votes virtually in favor of the Act and against your interests as pronounced and public opponents of the Act, it seems to me that you must have more of the self-denying spirit than is expected of you as journalists, provided you continue to champion a cause to which its leading men can so easily and unnecessarily become recreant. Were I in your position I should henceforth say to such men, "I have hitherto and for some years past done my duty in this good and righteous cause, while you have done but little or nothing. I have, in discharge of my duty to this cause, made many enemies, and incurred their spite and malice. Infamous falsehoods have been circulated about me; my temperance has been questioned, and I have been classed with 'the whiskey party' and 'the whiskey ring.' All of which, as you may imagine, is not at all pleasant, especially when one finds out that his supposed friends are not to be depended on. Therefore, gentlemen, I cannot any longer be your cats-paw. I must let you fight this battle yourselves. I am done with it. As for the Scott Act, I say now, 'Let her go, Gallagher!' Let the shebeens increase and flourish! Let perjury and drunkenness increase as they have been doing! Let our young men and boys go, as they are fast going, to the dogs with whiskey! Let our Scott Act hotels fume with alcoholic drinks in supplying secret drinking. Let more drunken men, women, and boys go staggering about our little town in one week than can be seen during the same period of time in Toronto or Hamilton! Let whiskey be peddled in bottles about our streets and along our country roads; and illicit stills run in quiet parts of the county! Let police magistrate and inspector continue their lucrative business, and prosecute and punish, and persecute and bulldoze to their heart's content! I shall henceforth be a silent witness of all these things. I shall not utter one word, nor give one scrape of my pen to rectify them. It is not for me now, but for you, gentlemen, to show that you are in earnest, and are willing to do what you can to get rid of this terrible, this blasting, this demoralizing evil that has come upon us."

Messrs. editors, that would be my course, and in following it I think I should only be doing my duty. It might at least impress some obtuse minds with the idea that in present circumstances the Scott Act question was of much greater consequence than party politics in municipal affairs.
