bodies as they fell from the platforms above.

There were very few persons on the scaffold. The Sheriff, the Gaoler, Dr. Oliver the Gaol Surgeon; the Rev. Mr. Bland, Rev. Mr. Hulin, Rev. Mr. Sutherland, Rev. Mr. Aylsworth, and Plymouth Brother, the Rev. Mr. Rousseau, Dr. Sparham and Dr. Day were present. There were two hangmen, both marked with black gauze bags enveloping their heads, and dressed in a sort of smock-frock, which completely invested their persons. The prisoner Mann was brought into Deacon's room shortly after 7 o'clock, and there was a very affecting greeting described by the clergyman. The two shook hands and expressed their great pleasure at seeing each other. The clergy present then engaged in devotional exercises until the executioners came and bound the prisoners, pinioning their hands behind them and tying their legs together with cords. It had been arranged that prayers should be said in the debtor's room, but this arrangement had to be dispensed with, and therefore the programme for the reading of portions of the Scripture, etc., was omitted. Both prisoners displayed about equal fortitude, and were both resigned and even anxious to meet death. It is said that in the procession to the scaffold Mann was seen to display a slight but yet perceptible nervous tremor; but the "abounding of grace," as described by the Rev. Mr. Bland, seemed to neutralize the nerv- [illegible] Both walked willingly and [illegible] the gaol. It was arranged by the Sheriff, that on a given signal, and while the clergymen were on their knees engaged in prayer, that the drop should fall.—At the devotions on the scaffold, the Rev. Mr. Hulin read from the 1st Corinthians, 15th chapter, commencing at the 42nd verse. Afterwards, the Rev. Mr. Bland engaged in prayer. It was while so engaged, and precisely at 8 o'clock, that the signal was given. The drop fell with a great noise, and the men fell about five feet; the fall was not sufficient to break either of their necks, so that they died of strangulation. Mann was bareheaded, but Deacon had on a black cap. Mann had his Penitentiary colored clothes on, and an old pair of slippers; Deacon was in grey trousers and vest, and in his shirt sleeves, wearing a red checked woolen shirt. The rope caught Mann's chin so as to force back his head, and he breathed heavily a second or two and his nostrils dilated, but he scarcely struggled, while Deacon's body moved with greater contortions, his arms being drawn up to the full extent of the cord and dropped again, and his legs being bent under him and stretched out again. Ultimately a suppressed moaning was heard for a moment which came principally from Deacon. It was ascertained from the gaol surgeon that Mann's pulse beat for 10 minutes and Deacon's for 15 minutes. The bodies were suspended for forty minutes. The Rev. Mr. Hulin informed the reporters that the prisoners were both in the one cell for some three-quarters of an hour, and that Deacon submitted to the adjustment of the rope, but that Mann gave orders to the executioner to move the rope close up to his chin. In the cell when Mr. Hulin arrived, Dr. Mair was engaged in prayer, and the Rev. Mr. Hulin and Rev. Mr. Bland also engaged in prayer, and Wesley's hymn "Arise my soul, arise," and also Watt's hymn "And did my Saviour bleed," were sung. The Rev. Mr. Sutherland then engaged in prayer, and Rev. Mr. Grafty, Baptist Minister, also prayed. The prisoners greeted each other when they came together, and embraced, uttering expressions of the triumphs of grace. Mr. Corbett, gaoler, informed the reporters that he went into Deacon's cell at 11 o'clock on the previous night, and he then appeared in a happy frame of mind, saying that he longed for the morning to come, that he was quite prepared to meet his end, and that he deserved the fate he was going to suffer. The Rev. Mr. Rosseau, Plymouth Brother, was up all night at the gaol.—The prisoners had no breakfast in the morning except a cup of tea. At eight o'clock, a. m., a black flag was sent up on a staff erected over the place of execution, and the bell of St. James' Church (the nearest church) was tolled. There were very few persons in the streets about the gaol, and those who passed that way looked at the flag and moved on. All the clergy testify to marks at particular passages, and these from which he received most consolation have his name written opposite them.—The testament he has bequeathed to his mother. After hanging 40 minutes the bodies were cut down by the executioners. The spectators were requested to retire into the debtor's room to allow of this being done. Privately, and after its completion, the executioners were secretly passed out of the gaol and the spectators were again admitted below the drop. The two bodies were placed in rough pine boxes with the rope still around their necks, and which the surgeons had removed to allow of an examination of the bones of the neck. It was found that Mann's neck had suffered considerable dislocation, but that Deacon's had not nearly so much, although Deacon was a heavier man.—Mann had more rope and fell a little lower than Deacon, and this, no doubt, accounted for it. The appearances of strangulation were witnessed by a number of medical students, whom the Sheriff admitted with this object. The marks of the rope, the tengidity of blood vessels, and other common appearances after death by hanging were pointed out by the different medical men present.

Rules for Life.

The following rules from the papers of Dr. West were, according to his memorandum, thrown together as general way[illegible]arks in the journey of life:

Never [illegible] ings,

ple are pro[illegible]

Never to resent a supposed injury till I know the views and motives of it. Nor on any account to retaliate.

Never to judge of a person's character by his personal appearance.

Always to take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.

Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing with me in political or religious opinion.

Sneezing.—If you sneeze on Monday you sneeze for danger.

Sneeze on Tuesday, you kiss a stranger;

Sneeze on Wednesday, sneeze for a letter;

Sneeze on Thursday something better;

Sneeze on Friday, sneezs for sorrow;

Sneeze on Saturday, see your lover to-morrow.

A man who has tried it says that all the short cuts to wealth are overcrowded.

Mr. R. McAdams, one of the proprietors of the Mount Forest Examiner, is about to remove to Petrolia. Mr. J. McLaren will continue the paper as heretofore.

Hugh S Genn owned a farm of 22,500 acres in Colusa county, California, and feeling cramped, spent $200,000 in adding 21,500 acres. He raises stock and grain.

Blowing Up.—Major N——, upon being asked if he was seriously hurt at the bursting of a steamboat, replied that he was not, as he had been blown up so many times by his wife that a steamboat explosion had no effect on him whatever.

An Example.—'Well,' said an old gentleman, the other day, 'I have been forty-seven years in business, and can say what very few can say after such experience; in all that time, my friend, I never disappointed but one single creditor.'

'Bless me, what an example for our young mercantile community!' replied the person addressed; 'What a pity one time occurred; how was it?

'Why,' responded the old gentleman. 'I paid the debt when it became due, and I never, in all my life, saw a man so much astonished as my creditor was.'

The Half of Five.—'How many are there ov ye's down there?' shouted an Irish overseer to some men in a coal pit. 'Five,' was the answer. 'Well then, the half ov ye's come up here' said he.

LOVELL'S

Dominion & Provincial Directories

To be Published in October, 1870.

NOTICE.—Learning that my name has been unwarrantably used in connection with Directories now being canvassed in the Provinces, and entirely distinct from my works, and that in other cases it has been stated that my Directories have been abandoned, I would request those desiring to give a preference to my works to see that persons representing themselves as acting for me are furnished with satisfactory credentials.

JOHN LOVELL, Publisher.

Montreal, March 16, 1870.

Lovell's Directories.

IT is intended to make these Directories the most complete and correct ever issued on this continent. They are not being prepared by correspondence, but by personal canvass, from door to door, of my own Agents, for the requisite information. I have now engaged on the work in the several Provinces Forty men and Twenty horses. These are engaged mainly on the towns and villages off the Railway and Steamboat Routes, important places on the lines being held till the completion of the former, to admit of correction to latest date.

I anticipate issuing, in October next, the Canadian Dominion Directory, and Six Provincial Directories, which will be a correct index to the Dominion of Canada, Newfoundland, and Prince Edward Island, and a combined Gazetteer, Directory and Hand Book of the six Provinces.
